HE CAN'T KILL, SO OFF TO JAIL

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — A U.S. soldier who refused to accept a rifle because he did not want to kill was sentenced to a year's hard labor and fined $540 by a court martial here today.

Pte. Adam R. Weber, 24, of New Orleans, said before his sentencing on conviction of a charge of disobeying an order that he would do any job that did not require him to kill.

He volunteered to serve as a front-line combat medical corpsman if he remains in the army.

The maximum sentence for the charge is five years' imprisonment with hard labor and a dishonorable discharge.

The court also reduced him to buck private, the lowest enlisted grade.

Police Arrest 100 Rebels In Hue Area

SAIGON (UPI) — Riot police and military forces arrested about 100 [illegible] the Hue area while Buddhist monks led thousands of followers on an anti-government march in the dissident northern city.

In Saigon, more than 100 monks and nuns joined a hunger strike as the newly launched Buddhist passive resistance campaign against the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky gained momentum.

Buddhist leaders called for a big demonstration Sunday in Saigon's main Vie Hoa Dao pagoda and moderate Buddhists announced the formation of a new political party to lead the church's campaign for a civilian government and Ky's ouster.

The creation of a national "Council of Protection of Nation and Buddhism" was announced by Thich (Rev.) Pham Minh, a lieutenant of moderate Buddhist leader Thich Tam Chau.

At the same time, Minh denounced as a "bluff" the military junta's inclusion of 10 civilians in the ruling 10-man military national leadership council.

Artillery, Bombers Unleashed

SAIGON (UPI)—American planes and artillery unleashed their full fury today on a bamboo jungle area swarming with Communists after surrounded U.S. paratroopers fought their way out to safety, ending an epic two-day stand.

With the five-day toll of Communist dead already around 700 in one of the biggest battles of the Vietnamese war, U.S. big guns and aircraft—including giant B52 Stratofortresses — zeroed in on the entire area 300 miles north of Saigon in the central highlands.

"We're going to plaster the area with everything we've got, everything we own," said Col. Theodore C. Mataxis of Seattle, deputy commander of the 101st Airborne's 1st Brigade.

FOOTBALL STAR

He spoke after two paratroop companies—one of them led by former West Point football star Bill Carpenter—slashed their way out through Communist machinegun fire, carrying their dead and wounded with them.

Carpenter called in U.S. planes to fire-bomb his own position when it appeared his company might be annihilated.

"Put the napalm (jellied-gasoline bombs) right on us," he told an air-control pilot. "They are overrunning us. At least we will get some of them, too."

BURNED SURVIVORS

Some of Carpenter's men were killed in the air attack and some of the survivors who fought their way to safety today were burned, but the company commander himself emerged without a scratch.

Before the paratroopers fought their way through heavy machine-gun fire to safety today, U.S. army marine and air force helicopters had tried repeatedly to break through the deadly hedge of fire the Communists had thrown around the encircled Americans.

A few made it but most had to turn back. One marine helicopter crashed, killing one and injuring another of its three crewmen.

"This is one of the heaviest battles of the Viet Nam conflict," a U.S. military spokesman said. He added, however, that overall U.S. casualties were "light."

Witnesses Face Lisbon Trial For Subversion

LISBON (AP)—Portugal will try a congregation of 48 Jehovah's Witnesses Tuesday for subversive activities against the state.

Members of the sect claim the case will set a precedent for general policy against Protestant and Jewish minorities in this country of 10,000,000 persons, 95 per cent of whom profess the Roman Catholic faith.

But the government of Premier Antonio Salazar thinks otherwise.

The official accusation against the Witnesses alleges that they are a political movement inciting disobedience, agitation and subversion of the masses, especially those of military age. The accusation specifically refers to the sect's refusal to salute any flag or submit to the draft.

ARRESTED AT MEETING

The 48 Witnesses were arrested during a meeting at Feijo, near Lisbon, June 1, 1965. Two ministers were detained for four months by police for questioning, but the other members, including 35 women, were released on bail.

Officials allege that the sect, which refused to recognize any law but the divine, has been infiltrated by Communists.

Indians Living Amid Squalor

CALGARY (CP) — Indians and teachers on two southern Alberta reserves have asked the federal government for a royal commission inquiry into Indian affairs and education.

Rev. Maurice McMahon, principal of the Crowfoot school at the Blackfoot reserve 70 miles east of here, said Friday the Indians are living in "absolute squalor, worse than any white slum."

The government is "skimpy and penny pinching just because the facilities are for the Indians," Father McMahon said. "You look at an armed forces school and you'll see they haven't spared a penny for those children.

"No wonder the Indians distrust the white man. We treat them like second - class citizens."

Built two years ago, the eight-room school has a coal furnace, no library space, insufficient classrooms and was built to a plan drawn up in 1947, he said. The Oblate fathers manage the school for the federal government.

WINDOWS WON'T OPEN

The school had to use two rooms in a 50-year old building that was condemned by fire inspectors two years ago, he said. There is no ventilation system and the windows won't open.

The Central Alberta Indian Teachers' Association and the Catholic Indian League have sent briefs to Northern Affairs Minister Laing on the subject.

Mr. Laing said in an interview from Ottawa there seemed to be "no great concern" over the problems and "no urgency in the matter."

Father McMahon said the reserve roads are so bad that

TWO BRITONS DIE OF COLD IN ANTARCTIC

LONDON (AP)—The colonial office announced today that its Antarctic survey expedition has lost two men on the west coast of Antarctica.

The ministry said survey director Sir Vivian Fuchs reported that Thomas John Allan, 26, and John Fraser, 24, were dead. Five dogs were also found dead when another party came upon their camp.

A radio message said the camp had apparently been destroyed by high winds.

The colonial office did not report the cause of the deaths. It was presumed to have been exposure after their tent blew away.

Quebec Strike Bogged Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Nicholson met separately today with labor and management negotiators in the Quebec longshoremen's strike but there was little sign of optimism for a settlement.

He and top labor department officials spent two hours with leaders of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) before going into a nine-minute joint session with the nine-man group from the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The federation group left the meeting in a parliament hill committee room and told reporters it was merely a luncheon break.

The earlier meeting with the union in Mr. Nicholson's private office was attended by Health Minister MacEachen, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian labor Congress, Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor and Judge Rene Lippe, the federal mediator.

WOULDN'T COMMENT

No person in any of the three groups would comment officially on the latest developments. But members of the shipping federation said privately they were not hopeful of an immediate settlement.

Mr. Jodoin said he attended the discussions as an observer but added:

"If I feel there is some advice to be given. I'm not shy about it."

Earlier, union lawyer Phil Cutler told reporters:

"We're bogged down on a number of points and until some of these are cleared away we won't know where we stand."

SWING BACK INTO ACTION WITH CLICKING SHUTTER

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Days are nearly at their longest, weather is at its best, children count the days until school ends, and it's THAT time of year again—time for the Amateur Snapshot Contest sponsored by the Victoria Daily Times.

Starting June 25, the six-week contest will offer the year's best chance for amateur camera fans to swing back into action . . . and make their pastime pay off, too.

This is the fourth year The Times has sponsored the contest and a record number of entries is expected.

Strictly for amateurs, the contest is geared for the photographer who does it for fun, not the one who goes around with camera permanently in hand, the words "say cheese" on his tongue, and tables of settings and shutter speeds always in mind.

It is for the one with a sharp eye, a steady hand and a quick mind for the unusual, the humorous and the touching scenes and situations.

These qualities could win you first prize, a spectacular trip for two around the world, or to Europe, Mexico, or the West Indies.

Add to this $1,000 spending money on the trip, and you have more than ample reason to reach for your camera.

This year the contest is divided into three categories, leaving lots of scope no matter what the subject of your picture is. You can choose from the topics—The World in Which We Live, People of the World, and Animals of the World—or enter photos in all of them.

Good judgment is more important for this contest

Alma Weeps On Leaving

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Tropical storm Alma pounded the North Carolina coast with gale force winds, drenching rain and moderately heavy surf today as she headed seaward.

Nearly eight inches of rain were reported in the Wilmington area as Alma remained on an east-northeast course past the coast and threatened shipping lanes off North Carolina's outer banks. The season's first such storm, she was downgraded from a hurricane Friday after leaving 47 dead.

Bandits Get Rich Haul

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two masked bandits robbed a downtown Washington jewelry store of between $250,000 and $500,000 in gems today, police reported.

A 16-year-old boy was wounded in the back when struck by a stray bullet fired at the fleeing gunmen.

SWINGING LONDON SET SHARES IN HONORS LIST

QUANT
. . . 'high priestess'

LONDON (Reuters) — Movie actor Peter Sellers and members of the "swinging" London set were included today in Queen Elizabeth's birthday honors list.

Sellers, fashion designer Mary Quant and avant-garde playwright Harold Pinter were among recipients in a crop of titles handed out to mark the Queen's official birthday, when worthy persons receive honors.

Royal recognition of figures who have contributed to the current British explosion of activity in the arts, "pop" culture and youthful dress and fashions followed a precedent set last year when the Beatles singing group were made Members of the Order of the British Empire (MBE).

Possibly the "high priestess" of the swinging London cult is Mary Quant, whose sharply distinctive styles for the young London set rocketed her to success.

Quant clothes now sell all over the world, and at the age of 32 she becomes an Officer of the Order of the British Empire (OBE).

Peter Sellers has appeared in many of Britain's top pictures of the 1960s. He was made a Commander of the Order of the British Empire (CBE).

SENSATIONAL PLAYS

Also made a CBE was Harold Pinter, whose new wave plays were a sensation on British television and whose play The Caretaker was a stage hit in London and New York.

Of the five persons made barons in the list, one is Sir John Hunt, who led the British conquest of Mount Everest in 1953.

Hunt, 55, was knighted soon after the Everest feat. For the last 10 years he has been secretary to Prince Philip's award program aimed at stimulating outdoor adventure by young persons.

The other baronies in today's list went to international affairs expert Ritchie Calder; Sir William McFadzean, chairman of the National export Council; John Cooper, General and Municipal Workers Union chief, and Arthur Moyle, once aide to former Labor prime minister Clement Attlee.

ATHLETES HONORED

Soccer was honored with a knighthood for Football League president Joe Richards. This award also went to leading British composer Michael Tippett, top Australian portrait painter William Dobell and Professor Martin Ryle, one of the world's leading radio astronomers.

Honors for sportsmen included the OBE for Australian racing driver Jack Brabham, twice world champion, and to chess expert Harry Golombek. The MBE went to Ron Clarke, Australian world long-distance champion runner.

In industry, the CBE went to union leader Joe O'Hagan — a member of the court of inquiry into Britain's current seamen's strike — and Christopher Cockerell, inventor of the Hovercraft, a seaborne vessel that travels on a cushion of air.

RUSK BLASTED ON FOREIGN POLICY CLAIM

'Terribly Misinformed' Charges Former Envoy

GALBRAITH
. . . allies ignore us

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Former U.S. ambassador John K. Galbraith said today State Secretary Dean Rusk is "terribly misinformed" in his estimates of support for the administration's foreign policy.

Speaking at the commencement exercises of Rhode Island College, Galbraith, now an economic professor at Harvard University, quoted Rusk as saying recently: "I have found that the objectives of American foreign policy are widely understood, respected and supported."

"I quote these words very precisely," the Canadian-born Galbraith said. "They are to be read in light of the fact that the secretary sits at the very centre of what is one of the greatest information - gathering organizations in the world. How could a man in his position be so terribly misinformed?"

Galbraith, ambassador to India under the late president Kennedy, said:

"The obvious truth is that not a single one of our European allies has sent a solitary soldier to the support of our enterprise in Viet Nam. Sweden, a country hitherto noted for neither unintelligence nor malignant anti-Americanism, has thought so little of our policy that she has imposed an arms embargo—a quarantine—upon us.

"Nor are matters much better here at home. Week by week, the polls show a steady drop in the admiration of Marshal Ky (South Viet Nam president) and therewith in policies that the secretary espouses.

"It is difficult to find anything, either abroad or at home, that remotely resembles the understanding, respect and support which the secretary perceives."

Galbraith said the problem of Viet Nam "seems to be that the government has less information" than private citizens . . . "And that is much more alarming."

Driver Gets Three Months

Roland Brissette, 38, of 2690 Sooke Road, was sentenced to three months in jail Friday when he was convicted of impaired driving.

He was stopped by police May 24 on Sooke Road after his truck was seen to be driving about 20 miles an hour in a 35 mile an hour speed zone.

A Colwood RCMP officer also testified the truck was weaving onto the gravel shoulder of the road and over the centre line.

Brissette had previous convictions for impaired driving, drunk driving and driving while his permit was under suspension.

U.K. Seamen Charge Lack of Support

LONDON (CP) — Leaders of Britain's striking seamen said today they are not getting the help they want from foreign shipping unions.

Failure of the International Transport Workers' Federation to go all out in support of the seamen's call for a total boycott of British ships was the second blow at the strike from the union side. Britain's Trades Union Congress has refused to go beyond its present policy of refusing only to do work normally performed by the strikers.

William Hogarth, general secretary of the seamen's union, told reporters that strike leaders met with the international federation and "it was negative as far as we were concerned. We were not happy at all."

The seamen's union Friday relaxed slightly its tough stand, asked for new talks and said it saw a solution to the deadlock.

There was no dramatic breakthrough to a compromise. Further talks were not expected until Monday.

While the seamen gave no public hint of the settlement they had in mind, several newspapers reported it would mean asking for a government subsidy to the shipping industry for one year of up to £5,000,000 ($15,000,000).

The government has already rejected that idea and such a settlement would sink forever its incomes policy — an attempt to hold back inflation by keeping pay increases to about 3½ per cent.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies were generally cloudy over B.C. early this morning and a few showers were reported along the coast. Partial clearing which occurred inland allowed minimum temperatures to drop to 35 at Smithers to 37 at Princeton and to 41 at Penticton.

A southwesterly flow of cool fairly moist air will continue over the province through Sunday. This circulation will produce showers along the coast today and isolated thundershowers in the interior in the afternoons and evenings.

Singer Denies Striking Blow In Bar Joust

BEVERLEY, HILLS Calif. (AP) — Police say "investigation is far from from over" in a case in which singer Frank Sinatra's eye was discolored and a prominent businessman suffered head injuries requiring 2½ hours of brain surgery.

Officers quoted Sinatra as saying the man hit him without provocation and that he did not strike back. Sinatra's friend, Dean Martin, backed him up.

A Beverly Hills businessman, Frederick R. Weisman, 54, former president of Hunt Foods Inc. and brother-in-law of financier Norton Simon, was unconscious in Mount Sinai Hospital.

A hospital spokesman described Weisman's condition as "serious" today following brain surgery. He has been unconscious since the altercation early Wednesday morning in the posh Polo Lounge of the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said he doesn't know whether someone struck Weisman or whether he was hurt in an accidental fall. Anderson said Weisman had been taking pills for an undetermined physical condition and also was drinking.

"We have a witness who saw Weisman hit Sinatra in the face, but nobody saw Sinatra hit him back," the chief said.

'SOMEONE HIT FRANK'

Police said Sinatra, 50, told them by telephone from Palm Springs that he, Martin and others, including Giuliano (Jilly) Rizzo, New York restaurateur, were seated in a large booth.

Sinatra said he was about to leave when Weissman approached and said: "You and your friends are loud-mouthed . . ."

"I thought he was kidding," the singer said, "and then I realized he wasn't." He told Weisman: "You're out of line, buddy."

Then, Sinatra related, the man hit him with either his fist or an ash tray below the right eye. The singer said he didn't strike back and that a hotel detective jumped between them.

Police have brought no charges.

Tisdalle Backs Orphanage Work

John Tisdalle has come out in defence of the Protestant Orphanage.

The Socred MLA for Saanich said Friday that "several businessmen whose life is the home have spoken to me in defence of it."

He has never heard any complaint about the Orphanage from persons who have lived in it, he said.

Mr. Tisdalle said "the home is a success story in itself. . . . People have called me to state they are most offended that the home should be talked about the way it has been."

Child care experts have accused the Orphanage of giving inadequate service to the children in its care and to the community.

Mr. Tisdalle said the directors of the Orphanage have relied on public support and it has been given.

"Here we have an association of people who have not called on the government for support."

Critics have said the wealthy, 73-year-old institution hoards its money and skimps on services. They also object that the name of the home is a misnomer no orphans are in it. They have asked for a government investigation into its operation.

Mr. Tisdalle said the government would be better to investigate its own homes.

"I know of one with hundreds in it where for three days of the May 24th holiday period they went without clean laundry.

"If the department officials are looking for something to investigate there is plenty for them to investigate in their own homes."

sometimes the school buses cannot run. All the reserve homes have electricity but there is no running water and no dentist.

The Oblates have asked for texts, library shelves and another elementary teacher but have been told there is no money, Father McMahon said.

"Yet Brodhead (Martin Brodhead, district superintendent of Indian education) goes out and pays at least $100,000 for 100 places at a school in Strathmore for the Indians."

'DIDN'T ASK TEACHERS'

Father McMahon said Mr. Brodhead spent the money without consulting any Indian teachers or the reserve's Indian education committee. In a questionnaire 47 per cent of Indian students said "the last place they wanted to go to school was Strathmore."

The Indian teachers brief to Mr. Laing says Indian teachers should be allowed a voice in forming and directing Indian education policy. It also states:

—Indian parents have a "basic right" to direct the education of their children and should be allowed that right through local autonomous school boards composed of and directed by Indians.

—Indian children should be trained in small classes by special teachers, have nursery schools and vocational courses.

—Facilities and finances should be equal to those in provincial school systems.

Principal on Campbell of the Morley Indian reserve said his classrooms are crowded, space is inadequate and there are no labs.

Commented on teacher: "Conditions wouldn't be so bad if there was any sign of improvement or even sympathy for our problems. The way it is now there is no hope for improvement in the near future."

Cuban Team Steps Ashore

SAN JUAN, Peuterto Rico (UPI) — A boatload of Cuban athletes was debarked today from a small freighter that carried them from their Communist homeland to participate in the Central American and Caribbean Games.

The Peaccok, an ocean-going tug under charter to the committee that organized the games, picked up the athletes, who remained on the freighter after U.S. officials refused to let it dock.

A weekly prize of $10 in each of the three categories will be awarded, plus an additional $25 for the grand prize winner of each section at the end of the contest.

The three winning photos are then entered in the national competition, with a chance for their photographers to cash in on the $50,000 in grand prizes.

Any photo taken after July 1, 1965, is eligible and should be mailed to the Snapshot Contest Editor of the Times.

JUDGES

Judges are Times staff photographer Bill Halkett and drama critic Audrey Johnson.

Only black and white photos can be accepted in this contest and no pictures will be returned. It is not necessary to submit negatives with the prints.

If your picture is chosen for the final prize in one of the three categories, then you will be asked to submit the original negative from which the print was made.

Any amateur photographer may enter the contest, except for Times employees, or employees of any other newspaper participating in the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards. Employees of the sponsors and their families, and persons engaged in professional photography or photo finishing, and their families, are also barred from entering.

A chance to have your work judged by qualified experts, and to win fantastic prizes for it, is one that any hobbyist and part-time photo-fan will jump at.

After all, you'll never know how good your photography is until it's seen and speaks for itself.

Tory MP Sparks Bankruptcy Fraud Probe

NIELSEN
. . . millions lost

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice department officials said Friday night they are looking into new information about alleged multi-million-dollar credit frauds by some bankrupt firms.

Conservative MP Erik Nielsen said the information was given to RCMP by some of his informants. It involved 52 legitimate and dummy corporations or syndicates in four provinces suspected of fraud.

He said the federal and provincial governments lost an estimated $150,000,000 in tax revenue last year as a result of bankruptcy frauds.

Mr. Nielsen, the lawyer and MP for Yukon who broke the Lucien Rivard bail affair in 1964, said in an interview the firms involved were located in four provinces, mostly Quebec and Ontario.

Names of individuals also had been provided the RCMP.

He said informants came to him and some of them agreed to talk with RCMP officers in his presence. Several such interviews had taken place in the last few days.

"Their fear had to be overcome," he said, referring to his sources' fear of underworld reprisals.

Mr. Nielsen said the suspected bankruptcy frauds are often connected and have deprived the federal and provincial governments of $150,000,000 in tax revenue.

ONLY FRACTION

"This is only a fraction of the real losses," he said, adding that the information supplied by his informants covered only a portion of the bankruptcy fraud rackets.

Racketeers used extremely complex methods to take over legitimate firms or set up fictitous ones, bilking millions from creditors before abruptly declaring themselves bankrupt.

The RCMP spokesman said the bankruptcy branch of the justice department, which appoints trustees to supervise bankrupt firms, is involved in the current review of the complaints.

The federal government has often stated that criminal aspects of bankruptcies are under provincial jurisdiction.

A bill to amend the Bankruptcy Act has been passed by the Senate and awaits Commons action. It would strengthen the powers of the superintendent of bankruptcy to launch federal investigations when frauds are suspected.

The justice department is training two lawyers to become full-time bankruptcy fraud investigators. One will be posted in Montreal, the other in Toronto.

Mr. Nielsen said he will not amplify the allegations supplied to the authorities. "I want to give every possible opportunity for the investigation to be conducted without prejudice."

He said he exchanged correspondence with Justice Minister Cardin on the matter.

Mr. Nielsen said last winter he would make a statement in the Commons divulaging documentary evidence he has about alleged bankruptcy frauds. Recentely he said his sources feared underworld violence and asked him not to disclose detailed information.

"Action is finally being taken by the government," he said Friday. "I will do nothing to prejudice the investigation."

An official said there were about 5,000 bankruptcies in Canada last year resulting in total losses of $290,000,000. There are about 475 bankruptcy trustees, many of whom are full-time agents of the Crown.

In Sorel, Que., Justice Minister Cardin said his department is "looking into the allegations" brought up in the Commons by Mr. Neilsen.

Asked if the investigations would be carried out by the RCMP or turned over the provincial police organizations involved, Mr. Cardin said:

"That's all I can tell you. I have no further comment."

Upper House Doomed, Says Quebec Paper

MONTREAL (CP)—La Presse says the legislature council, Quebec's upper house, will be abolished by legislation.

The newspaper says highly placed sources in the Union Nationale, which is expected to take over the government next week as a result of its victory in last Sunday's provincial election, confirmed that an agreement for the abolition was made well before the election between UN members of the assembly and council. The council is dominated by the Union Nationale.

Legislation for abolishing the council will be submitted at the next session of the legislature, La Presse says. Premier-elect Daniel Johnson has indicated the legislature will not sit for some time.

Quebec's legislative council is the last upper house in Canada's provincial legislatures.

Mobile Polls Before House

A resolution has been placed on the order paper in the House of Commons asking the government to amend the Canada Elections Act so the aged, sick and infirm can exercise the right to vote.

The private members resolution was put forward by Esquimalt Saanich MP George Chatterton and seconded by Victoria MP David Groos.

The resolution follows a 5,000-name petition raised locally demanding the government provide mobile polling booths for hospitals of more than 50 beds.

Under the present system, the only way a person in hospital can vote is to leave the buildiig and go to an established pooling booth.

power for today

Hear Dr. Carl Spain

In today's world of religious confusion, one hears a constant stream of conflicting opinions about Christianity. Traditional concepts are challenged on every hand, until it is difficult to know what to believe. Yet the truth is unchanged. Today, as in the first century, Jesus is the Son of God, and the Bible is the inspired Word of God. This is the source of faith.

In the midst of today's conflict and crisis, you are invited to hear Dr. Spain affirm the hope for today: Jesus Christ.

Strategy on Strategic Goods?

AN AMERICAN MOVE TO PERSUADE allied industrial nations to tighten curbs on sales of computers to Communist countries has failed — not so much, perhaps, because of ideological disagreement as suspicion that the United States is trying to reserve the market for itself.

The move was pushed at a recently held meeting of the Co-ordination Committee, a 15-nation group including all NATO members and Japan but excluding Iceland. The committee was set up to establish a list of products denied in sale or trade with the Communist world on the grounds that they would enhance its military strength.

Demand for sophisticated electronic computers is expected to be strong from Eastern European countries as they push further into attempts to rationalize their economies. Their use would be in making the complex price-demand-production calculations which are expected to supplant the cumbersome and ineffective method of leaving production decisions up to bureaucratic managers who usually fail to take price and demand considerations into account.

While the American delegates to the recent conference insisted that their only motive in seeking tighter curbs was to deprive the Communist countries of technological advances which could be used in planning military strategy, their allies couldn't help but be suspicious. For one thing there was the fact that the chairman of giant International Business Machines' World Trading Corporation had just completed an extensive tour of Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Rumania, all prime markets for both new and used computers. Secondly, the United States government, for the first time, permitted IBM to exhibit a medium-sized, advanced computer at an Eastern European trade show, in Prague, last month.

What else could the Western European and Japanese delegates think of this but that the United States was trying to hold its allies out of the Communist market until American firms had a chance to organize their sales effort?

In any event, the American attempt to cut off supplies of so-called "strategic" materials to the Communist countries is obviously becoming more irksome to allied countries whose dependence on world trade is much greater than that of the United States. The classic argument—and it is being shared increasingly by American businessmen—is that the embargoes do not in the long run deprive the Communists of anything. They merely lengthen out the time required for the Communists either to set up their own production of the materials or to obtain them through round-about channels.

A Long Life Ahead

GREATER VICTORIANS WHO had been waiting for many weeks for word on the crucial CPR decision regarding the Empress Hotel have breathed a collective sigh of relief. The grand old structure will remain unchanged in its outward appearance but will undergo a $4-million modernization program inside.

This is wonderful news for the whole community. It is difficult to think of Victoria without the social focus provided by the Empress; it is difficult to imagine, after all these years, any alternative use for the site. Both the distinctive garden environment and the interior atmosphere of the building are features which few centrally located hotels in any city can offer. Preservation of such effects should be one of the prime considerations in any renovation program and it is gratifying to know that the owners recognize this. On the other hand, today's travellers also demand the maximum of convenience and comfort in their accommodation and conformity with this requirement is essential if a hotel is to stay in business.

The plan as announced appears to combine both of these requisites, and the tentative proposal for an adjoining convention centre has interesting possibilities in the light of the hotel's need for conference facilities and the city's need for auditorium space.

The Empress decision is the best news so far in this centennial year.

The Pupils Per Room

THE RECENTLY RELEASED results of a B.C. Teachers' Federation survey confirm the fact that the Greater Victoria School district contains more classrooms housing 40 or more pupils than any other school district except Vancouver in the province.

Furthermore, about two-thirds of this district's elementary classes run to more than 35 students. The Chant Royal Commission recommended a maximum of 35 and the provincial government now makes its regular contribution to teachers' salaries on a basis of 37 pupils to the room. Thus, Greater Victoria engages fewer teachers than the number for which it can receive government grants.

The statistics may paint a darker picture than is justified. Greater Victoria is a large school district. On a basis of percentages of all classrooms under a board's jurisdiction, the local area appears in a more favorable light.

The facts remain, however, that the number in too many of our classrooms is greater than the experts consider satisfactory for efficient schooling, and that we are not using to the fullest extent the financial aid for teachers' salaries which could be collected if the excess above 37 pupils per room could be assembled to fill other rooms.

It is not feasible, however, to transfer the excess from different classes to fill other rooms. The extra children could come from different grades, or might be separated so far geographically within the area that attendance in a new combined class — even if the students were all in one grade — would not be practicable.

In any case, the Greater Victoria school district just has not enough classrooms to permit such an arrangement.

When this has been said, it still seems obvious that the district has failed to solve a problem which must be solved if our children are to benefit from the advantages of instruction in smaller classes and if the district is to take full advantage of the government payment toward teachers' salaries.

It is an over-simplification to say that the government's refusal to let boards plan more than three years in advance has hampered Greater Victoria in its efforts to build sufficient classrooms to permit a lower pupil-teacher ratio. There can be no prohibition of construction planning itself, even though financing is provided only for three years in advance. There is still a measure of flexibility, but school boards are inevitably pinched between rising costs and rising population—with a frequent reluctance to pay for school building on a local basis as an added problem.

A farther projected development may be expected in Greater Victoria in the future. The board now has on its staff a permanent planner whose duties no doubt include studies and recommendations to meet the needs of the expanding child population and to meet them on the most efficient and economic basis possible. As the B.C. Teachers' Federation statistics show, he has a considerable job to do.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

WHILE the weather this spring has given us a mixture of warm and cool, it has been an exceptional one for the plant world.

The flowering dogwoods have produced more blooms than they have for some years. This applies to the osier dogwood as well.

We have one of the best crops of Douglas fir cones that we have had for some seven or eight years, and they now seem to be maturing with very little withering.

The red cedars are loaded with so many cones that the branches are bending with the weight.

Amongst the smaller flowering plants that showed an abundance of blooms were the erythronium, false lady slipper and the sea blush.

The vanilla leaf now in bloom is showing a lot of the spike-like flowers, while the twin flowers are putting forth an abundance of its dainty pinkish blooms.

Along the roadside ditches the cow parsnip with its massive, slightly-rounded flower head, is eye-catching.

The wild roses are still putting on a bright display of pink blooms.

The bitter cherries are hanging in dense clusters on the twigs, while the Indian plum, already turning yellow, is very plentiful.

The fruit of the Oregon grape is heavy on the stalks; the salal blossoms are hanging on the twigs like beads.

The wild grasses as well as those in pastures and hay fields are thick, promising a good crop.

Nature has been generous this spring in producing a wonderful crop of our life-giving green plants to ensure the species shall not die.

The New Leader of Quebec: The Enigma of Our Politics

THE future of federal-provincial relations is clouded by the fact that Mr. Daniel Johnson is the enigma of our politics. After his guarded comments of Tuesday on television, his intentions remain as obscure as ever. It is by no means easy to reconcile Mr. Johnson wth Mr. Johnson's ideas. There is a wariness about him which, combined with his rather precise manner of speech, conveys the impression of a cautious, calculating and essentially conservative man. But there is nothing precise about his ideas. He has outdone the Lesage Liberals in grandiose and even verbal nationalism; he is the proponent of revolutionary constitutional ideas; and he has managed to convey an impression of sympathy for separatism without specifically endorsing it.

Western

The so-called quiet revolution has seldom been quiet and never, in any strict sense, a "revolution." Mr. Lesage in one of his sterner moments threatened to take the federal government to court. This would not have been unprecedented and it would most certainly not have been the act of a revolutionary. On another occasion he used words which were widely interpreted as a threat to defy the courts but it turned out happily that this was far from what he had in mind.

Mr. Johnson has used some rather harsh language. With reference to his claims for the 100 per cent reversion of the shared tax fields (a demand which Ottawa could not possibly concede), he has said that Quebec should not beg but take. This sounds distinctly more revolutionary but it would be premature to leap to concluuions.

There is nothing to prevent Mr. Johnson from levying any income tax he likes but the British North America Act guarantees to the federal government the irght to raise money "by any mode or system of taxation." Unless Ottawa is to be displaced from the field, Quebec would face double taxation but the reduction of taxation was a central theme of the Union Nationale in the recent campaign.

Mr. Johnson is no admirer of the British North America Act. He thinks that it should be scrapped and that a new constitution should be worked out by negotiations between the two "nations." But it happens to be the constitution (or at least a major part of it) and it would be unthinkable for Mr. Johnson to act in an unconstitutional manner when he has spoken with great emphasis about the importance of constitutions.

These are his words of February 22, 1965, when he was dealing, very disparagingly, with co-operative federalism:

"I'm astonished that French-Canadians can gaily and smilingly propose we put aside legal guarantees and replace them with highly changeable institutions and techniques of perpetual compromise such as co-operative federalism, where only a stronger law can finally prevail."

Again: "Constitutions are made precisely in order to protect the fundamental human rights against possible abuses of power and to protect fundamental rights of minorities against possible abuses of majorities.

"They are made to establish the rule of law in place of the rule of numerical strength.

"That is why I revolt with all my powers against those who are looking to spread the idea that constitutions have lost their importance in today's context and that constitutional discussions are no more than empty debates."

Mr. Johnson is also, of course, the author of numerous other statements which may have struck some of his readers as pleasantly nationalist and others as vaguely threatening. For example, he once assured a press conference that French-Canadians "will progress whether within Canada as a country or on a smaller scale." This is an observation but not a commitment.

He said on the same occasion: "Canada will be a biethnical and bilingual country or it will not be a country at all." This is prophecy, somewhat lacking in definition. There was also the famous "separation if necessary but not necessarily separation" which, as Mr. Johnson afterwards explained was not blackmail but "pure political realism."

In Mr. Johnson's situation, realism may suggest one of two alternatives. When one has a razor-thin majority, it is natural to think of an early election. A Quebec leader of such a mind may seek a quick legislative build-up in order to appeal on a promising record (as Mr. Diefenbaker did in Ottawa in 1957). Or he may formulate unacceptable demands and then campaign against Ottawa according to the ancient and cherished provincial tradition.

As this is tax agreement year, we can probably assume that Mr. Johnson, immediately on taking office, will begin preparing for an autumn round of federal-provincial meetings. Whether he will come as the "pragmatist" of the Tuesday interview or whether he will come like Mr. Duplessis in former years remains to be seen.

FROM LONDON

By MARTIN DEWEY

The Heaviest Volume of Potential Canadians Since Suez

CANADA'S high-keyed pitch for more British immigrants is at the moment proving almost too successful for comfort. For the past two weeks the six immigration centres in Britain have been bending under the weight of the heaviest volume of potential Canadians since the great exodus which followed the Suez crisis of 1956. Initial interviews have been running at almost twice the normal daily rate for early summer — traditionally the peak period for immigration — and postal inquiries arriving at the London central office have swollen to a flood of 10,000 a month.

Dewey

Immigration offices in London alone are currently interviewing up to 400 applicants and their families each day—which can mean well over 1,000 individuals — in addition to dealing with uncounted numbers of applicants at more advance stages in the immigration process. One day last week matters reached the point where, again, for the first time since Suez, the London staff had to abandon the standard individual interview for first-time visitors in favor of group interviews.

The various national immigration centres in Britain are used to summer rushes, of course. After what one Canadian official called "an incubation period" averaging two years, restless Britons usually decide to make their move while the children are out of school. But the sheer size of the present rush, which is forcing Canadian experts to revise their estimates of this year's "take" upwards from 50,000 to 60,000 British immigrants, is not so easy to explain.

None of the classic reasons for large increases in immigration totals is evident this year. The last budget was not particularly harsh by British standards. One political crisis fades into another, but no single political development appears to have spurred the present outflow. The winter was not expecially severe and there were no more than the usual disruptions of services. At most, such negative factors seems to have formed a backdrop against which more positive factors have been at work.

Several prospective immigrants in the London waiting room last week did speak of overcrowded conditions, the lack of housing, high taxes and too much government. In two separate cases a vaguely defined complaint was of a loss of national pride and eminence. But the deciding factor usually appeared not to be that Britain was so bad but that Canada — so they had heard — was so good.

Such attitudes bear out the contention of Canadian immigration officials that Canada's current popularity is due to what they like to call "pull factors" (it is an unspoken rule of thumb in all immigration offices that negative reasons for leaving Britain are never stressed). The spectre of seasonal unemployment in Canada has receded in British thinking. Relatives and friends have been writing back with favorable reports of conditions and prospects.

But despite the extra effort, the waiting room at the London headquarters still manages to look like the steerage hold of an old-time ocean liner. Often there is standing room only. Applicants must join a long queue to ask even the simplest question of distracted receptionists. Babies spend much of their time wailing. Immigration officers trot about bawling out names, and they conduct interviews in short breaks between answering their telephones.

After six hours in the waiting room a faimily can get awfully hungry. There is a restaurant downstairs, but no one tells them about it and there are no signs. Even some of those who know about the restaurant confess that they are afraid to leave the room for fear of missing their turn — "they put you back at the bottom of the pile, you know." A lady weeps in a corner, sobbing something about having got an initial wrong and having to go through "the whole damn business again."

Happily, such conditions are not likely to last. Officials believe that the present rush has just about peaked and that traffic through the immigration centres will before long begin to fall to manageable proportions. Moreover, a new and streamlined system of processing applications is expected to cut the waiting period between the approval of an application and the final authorization to travel — now running at up to five weeks — to about five days.

But that is all in the future. Those who are at this moment going through the long, painful process of coming to Canada would be less than human if they didn't find themselves wondering why the gate to the promised land couldn't be just a little wider.

FROM WASHINGTON

By RICHARD PURSER

Racism Remains a Threat to the American Dream Itself

IF there is a single word to sum up the feeling behind last week's huge White House civil rights conference, it is "urgency." Time after time, Negro leaders and their white supporters stressed the need for immediate action to back up the tired old promises about giving Negroes equality in fact as well as in theory. The threat of violence was sometimes delicately raised — not organized violence but the spontaneous violence of a night crowd on a hot slum street, reacting to a spark such as the word "nigger" coming from a policeman's mouth.

Purser

More often, however, the 2,400 invitees realized that the real threat of continued racism was to the success of the American dream itself. The downward path, by now clearly outlined, lies in the deterioration of the cores of great metropolitan areas. The U.S. population has become urban-centred, and it is to the cores of the urban areas that Negroes fleeing oppression in the South have come to find jobs and freedom. Often, they fail in both quests.

Improvements in some aspects of race relations have of course been tremendous in recent years in many parts of the country. When this writer first visited Washington in the late 1940s the White House conference could only have been held with difficulty, because most of the invitees would not have been acceptable in hotels and restaurants.

Nowadays, affluent and cultured Negroes mix easily with their white compatriots in all Washington's best establishments; good job opportunities are opening up, and there have even been some breakthroughs in the "crunch" area of housing, if not in the other "crunch" area of schooling.

But the civil rights movement fears that the obvious profusion of well-off Negroes who have made it in the white man's world, will blind whites to the plight of the vast majority of Negroes who have not shared the advantages of a good home, good school and good luck enjoyed by the few.

The conference invitees, although themselves among the few, spoke for the many. An articulate young Negro state senator from Kansas, Mr. George Haley, described his distress at the inability of Negroes in Mississippi to help themselves rise up, as Negroes in Kansas have been able to do.

Speaker after speaker had his example of the bonds around the Negro, denying his freedom: less pay for Negro professors in North Carolina than for whites in similar positions, refusal to bury a Negro war hero in a Southern cemetery, stacking of the cards against Negroes in Southern courts, an urban renewal program in Wilmington, Del. that merely transferred the ghetto from one part of town to another, a $90 a month relief ceiling in Dorchester County, S.C., for a family of nine to 12 children with both parents out of work, the total exclusion of Negroes from electrical and other craft union locals, the absence of job insurance, sickness benefits, etc. for household workers (many Negro women whose husbands are unable to find work support their families by going into domestic service).

Sen. Haley had a tale to tell that illustrates the unpublicized "minor incidents" that harrass Negroes daily. He was driving through Sikeston, Mo. on his way from St. Louis to Memphis when he was stopped at an intersection, for no apparent reason, by two white policemen. They asked to see his wallet. They didn't just look at his driver's licence, but proceeded to go through the wallet. Their first comment was, "What are you doing with a white girl's picture in your wallet?" (He explained that it was his light-complexioned sister.)

As the officers leafed through his wallet, their tone changed and they became noticeably upset. This happened when they spotted evidence that he was a metropolitan lawyer and a member of the NAACP. They handed back the wallet, assured him that he had not been stopped just because he was a Negro, and waved him on.

"They realized I was somebody who would be missed and could protect himself," said Sen. Haley. "The story might have been different otherwise."

Negroes are fed up with the white argument against trying to move "too fast" in improving the situation. Isaiah Robinson of the Harlem Parents Committee — a possible name to watch in the movement, as he is a brilliant, fiery, articulate speaker with potential demagogic appeal — said the argument is ridiculous, considering that the reconstruction fiasco took place 100 years ago. Is it "too fast" to take 100 years to fill the rights of all Americans?

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

More confusion was added to Canada's politics with the upset in Quebec of Premier Jean Lesage's Liberal government.

Lesage's defeat after six years in office was engineered by Daniel Johnson, 51-year-old leader of the Union Nationale party.

Johnson captured only 41 per cent of the popular vote, compared to 47 per cent for the Liberals, but he made his votes count in the smaller rural ridings.

Final standings were Union Nationale 55, Liberals 51 and Independents 2. The Liberals held a 63-28 margin at dissolution of the last legislature. Thirteen new seats were added through redistribution.

Lesage, who had been pushing through an ambitious reform program in Quebec's so-called "quiet revolution," was obviously stunned by the outcome and at first was reluctant to concede defeat.

Later in the week however he announced he was giving up office and taking on the opposition role.

Implications of the changeover for the rest of the country remained a question mark.

Although the outright separatists were rebuffed by the Quebec voters, Johnson has taken a strong nationalist position for French-Canada and is expected to make greater demands on the federal government than Lesage.

●

One result of the election was cancellation of a dominion-provincial conference scheduled in Victoria next week on federal aid to education. It was rescheduled for the fall in Ottawa.

Meanwhile an official tally of votes in Prince Edward Island resulted in a complete stalemate: 15 seats each for the Liberals and Conservatives.

One of the parties will have to win both seats in a deferred election July 11 in Kings 1st riding to gain a majority.

At a meeting in Brussels, foreign ministers of the NATO alliance succeeded in patching up their differences, at least for the time being.

They agreed to move the NATO military headquarters from Paris to Belgium but put off a decision on France's new role in the organization.

Canada's Paul Martin was chairman of the meeting and was credited with helping to bring about the compromise. Many of the other 14 NATO members, angered by French President Charles de Gaulle's ultimatums to the alliance, pressed for firm action against France.

One of their objectives was to move the political council headquarters of the Atlantic Alliance out of France as well as the military. Martin argued this might provoke de Gaulle into making a complete breach.

It was decided to review the council situation in October. On the other contentious issue, the status of French troops in Western Germany, the ministers turned the problem over to the council's permanent representatives who will begin discussions next week.

While western leaders met in Paris to mend the cracks in their alliance, foreign ministers of the Soviet bloc gathered in Moscow to deal with some similar problems.

Led by Romania, a number of East European members of the Warsaw Pact are demanding that the Soviet Union surrender some of its control over alliance policy. A summit meeting next month of Communist premiers is expected to make decisions on these demands.

A government-appointed inquiry board proposed a compromise solution to Britain's three-week shipping strike, but the militant seamen's union turned it down and said it was digging in for "a fight to the end."

The board proposed a two-stage reduction in work hours, the seamen are insisting on an immediate cutback from 56 hours a week to 40 hours with the same pay.

The union said it would blacklist all foreign tankers bringing in oil normally carried by U.K. ships—and appealed to longshoremen in other countries to boycott British ships in their ports.

Britain's powerful Trades Union Congress however urged the seamen to reconsider their "all-or-nothing" stand and withheld further support.

A lonely march in Mississippi by Negro James Meredith was suddenly transformed into a major civil rights demonstration when Meredith was shot and wounded from ambush.

While Meredith recuperated from minor shotgun pellet wounds, Dr. Martin Luther King and other civil rights leaders arrived to take up the march which is aimed at getting Mississippi Negroes to register as voters.

Meanwhile, Senator Robert Kennedy travelled to the Union of South Africa to speak to university students and make a plea to end the country's racial segregation policies.

UN School Trains Diplomats of Future

By M. S. WILDE

GENEVA — Tall, slim and good-looking, Miss Victoire Golengo, who is 26, arrived in Geneva in immaculate European dress, her hair in chic bouffant style.

The only exotic touch was provided by earrings and a necklace of beaten gold, for which Brazzaville goldsmiths are famous, and which could scarcely have a better background than the dark lustre of the Congolese skin.

Miss Golengo is one of 22 budding diplomats, mostly from Africa, who have arrived in Geneva to take part in the United Nations training program for foreign service officers from newly-independent countries. The course will last seven months and take them to Norway and Rumania, Washington and New York.

Feminine Blend

The future voice of emergent Africa abroad will have a feminine blend. Miss Golengo is one of the pathfinders. She is already a principal in the section of her country's foreign ministry dealing with treaties and conventions. She has been in Europe only once before — with a group of travelling students for a week in Paris where the traffic frightened her.

Another woman in the group, Mrs. Beatrice Glele Ahanhanzo, tiny, lively and determined, left her husband and two children behind in Cotonou, where she works in the political affairs division of Dahomey's foreign ministry. Dahomey, she says, already maintains 10 embassies abroad, and she expects to be posted to one of them before long.

The men in the party, impeccable in elegant dark suits, are young foreign service officers from Burundi, Cameroon, Congo (Leopoldville), Cyprus, Ghana, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Jamaica, Kenya, Kuwait, Madagascar, Malawi, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Senegal, Sudan, Togo, Uganda and Zambia.

For the next few months they will attend academic courses at the Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva, visit the Swiss Federal Political Department at Berne, make trips to see how foreign ministries work in Norway, Rumania and the United States. But a significant, even a cardinal, point of their whole course is that they will spend a lot of time at United Nations headquarters in New York.

They will be instructed in the general range and scope of all UN activities. This aims to give them a sense of the priorities, criteria and standards developed by the United Nations system, and the requirements and demands which must be made of developing countries if UN activities are to be effective in helping their own efforts.

All this is dear to the heart of UN Secretary General U Thant, who says "Young officials will become thoroughly acquainted with UN activity in the maintenance of peace and security, through its international conciliation, truce observation and peace-keeping efforts. They will also be instructed in UN political affairs, the promotion of human rights . . . and the administrative aspects of UN programs to broaden their general usefulness to their own countries and the UN system."

On Two Called Strikes We Quit Batting Around

By ART STOTT

Stott

WITH two strikes on us, Pat and I thought it time to get out. A third strike—and the pitches were coming like Koufax deliveries—could have retired us in a most embarrassing way. Neither of us wished to row back across the Atlantic, and that seemed a possibility, however remote and however popular it may be to some adventurous souls. Our sporting blood doesn't run that rich. Anyhow, our time was up.

We had crossed the Channel and travelled a couple of days by bus in Belgium and Holland when the British seamen went out.

"Don't worry," said Louis, the courier. "You're on holiday. It's my job to get you back. I'll do the worrying." And he did.

He worried so effectively that we returned to England on a French paquebot instead of the English steamer scheduled for our transport. And, with a Gallic flair, he almost made us overlook the fact that we had to rise at 4 a.m. to start rolling within an hour in order to reach the French vessel at Calais which was diverted to Folkestone because the British navy asked it not to land at Dover.

★ ★ ★

Our personal inconvenience was small and we had little understanding of the underlying troubles that caused the strike. We heard the usual explanations from opposing sides that one hears in connection with any strike: "The men don't really want to quit work. It's only the extremists who lead them." And on the other side: "Don't blame them for going out—the conditions and pay scales inflicted on them."

While Louis was concentrating on his worries, we made our way finally around to Paris—and were greeted by a one-day general strike that seemed to cover only the electric utilities.

Louis announced the tieup to us and told us not to concern ourselves. We were on holiday, remember? Anyhow French strikes, as he saw them, weren't as serious as some people made them out to be.

I didn't quite follow his reasoning, but, as we entered the French capital through a working class region devoted to men and women in the meat provisioning trade, he explained that people there were paid so little that they had to take second jobs. Everybody had two occupations. Early in the morning they'd handle the meat for the market. Then they'd have an afternoon at their own sidewalk cafe—to each his own, sort of—enjoy dinner and then go out to work again, probably as night porters at hotels or other unskilled labor.

Eventually they'd become fed up with all the working hours and low pay and decide everybody should go on strike in protest. Then, according to Louis, after a bit, they'd decide at the sidewalk cafe that they couldn't afford to be idle and would go back to work again. I had the feeling that Louis' explanation lacked a certain amount of depth.

So during the night of the one-day strike, we were shy of electricity. There was no power to run the lift and we climbed five floors to our room. There was no light in the toilet (no mock-modesty about bathrooms or facilities in Paris), and that was a bit inconvenient. But oddly enough we were able to see the illuminations of Paris by night, the fine fountains, buildings and spectacular lighting, as well as the show at the Moulin Rouge.

A general strike in Paris didn't seem so general to us—and true to Louis' earlier assurance, it was all over the next day without anybody apparently seriously hurt.

On the surface, at least to a passing tourist, the brief work stoppage seemed to be little more than a demonstration that French labor could strike, could walk out and, by so doing, serve a warning that more serious tieups can take place.

I think they will. If a man has to hold two jobs to make enough to live—and the section through which we entered Paris did not indicate a high standard of living or high living—then future strikes will differ from the almost gay day-off which prompted a fellow bus passenger to ask: "In whose honor is this one?"

NATO Conference: At Least Situation Didn't Get Worse

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS
The Washington Post

BRUSSELS — The NATO conference which ended here in a cloud of cigar smoke this week managed to keep things from getting worse but you can't say much else for it.

Maurice Couve de Murville, General de Gaulle's suave and bland foreign minister, was the centre of attraction for both the diplomats and the press. They all tried to worm out of him just a wee bit more information on where the general intends to go but as usual they learned very little.

"Couve" as they refer to him, was affable as ever and managed a small joke or two. But by the time it was over those who had thought de Gaulle is determined to undermine the American position in Europe seemed to be even more convinced.

Some, expecially the Canadians and the Danes and in part the Belgians and Italians, were hopeful that something would turn up to prove that de Gaulle was not as bad a fellow as the Americans and the British have been saying. These Mr. Micawbers managed to prevent the immediate move of the NATO council out of Paris as Dean Rusk would have liked.

No Fight Talk

Indeed these moderates helped to compose some of the minor Franco-American difficulties. The French never talked about a fight and they ridiculed every rumor of a walkout. This made it even harder for the Americans to convince the press that the French were behaving so outrageously as they contended.

Two of the hardest line American officials were busy here: Harland Cleveland, the ambassador to NATO, and J. Robert Schaetzel, the deputy assistant secretary for Europe.

It was Cleveland who said publicly before the meeting that De Gaulle's actions in tossing the Americans and the integrated NATO headquarters out of France was a "declaration of undependability." Even some American diplomats over here who are anti-De Gaulle gulped at that one.

Of course the Americans contended that the fourteen stood rocklike on principle against the errant France. But the evidence was minimal, beyond the obvious fact that none of them wants to go without the American umbrella in case any nuclear rains should fall from the East.

COUVE DE MURVILLE

So the ministers rushed for a late dinner and then for their planes as this latest jet age diplomatic act came to an end. Since this meeting had turned out to be only a way station, instead of major point, in the NATO crisis, it is unlikely anybody will even remember a month from now what did happen here.

Probably the most important fact is what did not occur. There was no open break between Washington and Paris. Nobody knows why the French played it that way but everybody assumes that President Johnson had finally taken enough time out from Viet Nam to lay down the law to Rusk, that is, told him to be polite but firm and to avoid a break.

This, of course, did not prevent some hard words being spoken in private around the Palais des Congres but at least they are not on the public record. However, the net result is likely to be more poison in the air between and among allies.

Egypt Cracks Down On Narcotics Racket

By IRENE BEESON

CAIRO — President Nasser's security police have arrested nearly 2,000 narcotics smugglers and dealers, following the death last month of four policemen in a gun battle against suspected smugglers in Egypt's eastern desert.

Special detention camps have been opened in the desert and, if a proposal by the ministry of the interior to amend narcotics legislation is approved by the National Assembly, suspects found guilty will face the death penalty.

The United Arab Republic's last full-scale round-up of drug runners was carried out at the end of 1961. The operation resulted in the arrest of 875 ringleaders who were sentenced to terms of imprisonment and 10,000 dealers who were released after cautioning. Since 1961 trafficking has increased, and among those arrested in the last week are many who were sentenced for life in the previous drive.

Many Users

It is officially estimated that 30 per cent of Egypt's population of about 30 million use drugs — hashish and opium — and that the annual turnover in drug trafficking is about $100 million. In a five-day hunt last week the security police seized more than $3 million worth of drugs.

The incident leading to the present anti-narcotics drive occurred the day after President Nasser issued a decree "declaring war on the last pockets of feudalist resistance" in the Nile Valley. The presidential decree ordered the sequestration of land, property and money belonging to those who had contravened the agrarian reform laws.

Then the security forces — already working round the clock to track down "feudalists" in the rural districts — were compelled to open a second front. Armed reinforcements were rushed to the Suez Canal area in an attempt to bar the drug runners' retreat to the Sinai Peninsula.

From Alexandria to the edge of upper Egypt, police armed with rifles and submachine guns operated ruthlessly and mostly at night, through bewildered villages, through the countryside and deserts, and the underworlds of Cairo and Alexandria.

The twofold security drive is being carried out to the accompaniment of an intensive press and radio campaign, and discussions in the National Assembly and the Arab Socialist Union.

The Dim Forebodings In Quebec Election Wake

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — Daniel Johnson's startling sweep into power in Quebec has left English Canadians with a vague sense of foreboding. Typically, most of us are asking not what will happen to the "quiet revolution" but what will happen to Canada.

At least part of this fear is based on an understanding, however dimly felt, of the main problem facing any new premier of Quebec. Unlike his colleagues in other provinces, his job is not merely to provide effective administration. On him rests the prime responsibility for assuring the survival of the French fact in North America.

Newman

Considering the precedents and the possibilities, Johnson can approach this complex challenge in three ways. He can set his province on a path of economic and social isolation from the rest of the continent. He can bring Quebec into dynamic participation with English Canada, while still stressing belligerently the preservation of the French nationality. Or he can go all the way and seek political independence on the best terms he can get.

Three Options

These are the three options—isolation, participation or separation—which face Johnson as he takes over as the twenty-fourth premier of Quebec.

Isolation he knows, of course, at first hand. He was part of the government of Maurice Duplessis who exploited that concept most adroitly during his 18 years in power. By manipulating the folk memory of The Conquest, Duplessis turned the state into an instrument of fear, using it to fan the racial anger of a downtrodden populace.

Duplessis' Quebec was a sealed-off Canadian hinterland, its nationalism fostered by a paternalistic regime which resisted political and social reform.

When Jean Lesage swept into power in 1960, he launched his province firmly on the path of participation. This was the "quiet revolution," meant to create a situation in which English Canada—in fact and not just in theory—would accept the concept of French Canada's equality: a state within a nation. It was Lesage and his bright technocrats who transformed the Quebec government into an agency which would interfere powerfully on the side of the ordinary citizen.

Now Daniel Johnson finds himself in power with a platform which clearly calls for the third alternative: the break up of Canada into two nations, joined by an impotent central council. The early indications are that despite his violent pronouncements during the campaign, Johnson is not committed to this fatal step, except as a last resort.

What he will most probably do is combine certain elements of all three styles of governing Quebec.

Obsolete Idea

He knows that outright isolation is obsolete in this television age. It is no more possible to isolate Montreal from North America and the world than it is to isolate rural Quebec from the cosmopolitan flavor of Montreal.

At the same time, Johnson's slim legislative majority is based on the Quebeckers' feeling that the participation approach went too far, too fast. The Union Nationale's counter-revolution has swallowed the "quiet revolution."

But neither does Johnson have any evidence that he has been granted a mandate to follow the third course and force the break-up of Canada. His slim margin of victory is clearly based on a general restlessness, not on any widespread popular support for the radical constitutional innovations in his platform.

Loves Power

Daniel Johnson is a fervent nationalist, but he's also a man who loves and understands power. His pragmatism may yet turn out to be our greatest ally by helping him evolve a fourth "Johnsonian" approach to governing Quebec.

But there is another factor that works in the favor of Canada. Because the election has left the Union Nationale and the Liberals in delicate equilibrium, no group of politicians in Quebec can now claim to control a consensus. This is an unprecedented opportunity for federal politicians to move in and start communicating the advantages of confederation directly to the voters.

At the same time, they must try to push Johnson into a position where he has to tackle the province's actual problems, instead of waging "Ethiopian wars" against Ottawa.

THE GALLUP POLL

Fulton, Hees Favorites To Succeed Diefenbaker

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

In the race for Conservative party leadership, should Mr. Diefenbaker resign, George Hees and Davie Fulton continue to run neck-and-neck.

Just more than two in ten (21%) name Mr. Hees as their choice for the leadership and just less than two in ten (19%) choose Mr. Fulton.

Third choice for the leadership, as listed, is Ontario Premier John Robarts. He receives approval from 13% of the people. But a high ratio of the voters (47%) have not yet made up their minds on the Tory leadership question.

The question: "If Mr. Diefenbaker should resign as leader of the Conservative party, which of these three men do you think would make a good leader to succeed him—Davie Fulton, John Robarts, George Hees?"

	Total	Conservative	Liberal	Other
Davie Fulton	19%	28%	17%	22%

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

Last weekend at Pandora's Box, exactly 158 steps from City Hall on Pandora, a small gathering began shortly after 10 p.m. The landmark now functioning as an art shop is primarily concerned with the display and sale of modern art and art objects, but, periodically, poetry fills the old house.

Sean

On this occasion readings were being given from Cyril McColgan's new book, "A Spoonful of Ashes." Excerpts were read by Paul Bettis, a University of Victoria professor, and Britten Jones Haggerty with musical accompaniment provided by John Fisher on guitar.

Toronto folksinger, "Sean," who just finished a successful appearance at Jon Yorks, entertained between readings.

MORE PLANNED

Britten and John are both members of Victoria's original rhythm and blues group, the Blues By Five. Director of Pandora's Box, Bente Rehm, says that if the public will support these readings by local writers they will be held on a regular basis. For those of you who are interested in modern writing, be sure to attend the next session which will be held in early July.

Big things are planned for Victoria this July 1.

On stage for a great dance will be B.C.'s only "Mod" trio, the Bakerloo Line. The Colwood based band will play at Schofield's Roller Rink. Hearing the group earlier this week at a practice I was convinced that their sound should be number one in Victoria in a short time. Their manager, Dave Glover, told me that the trio, who do more original material than most local groups has been together for about two months having played mainly around the Colwood area.

ORIGINAL SONGS

Eventually, the trio formed by Ron Flatman and brothers Terry and Bourke Findlay want to do nothing but original songs when playing dances and shows.

Future plans aren't definite yet, but the group will be co-starring with the Blues By Five at Victoria's first "Mod" fashion show July 9 at the McPherson Playhouse. Anyway, we'll keep the tracks cleared from Colwood to Victoria for the Bakerloo Line.

TONIGHT

Jon York's Music Hall—below the Century Inn on Government. Starring Toronto's Neil Whiteford. Also British recording artist John Martin Booker. Doors open at 8:30.

SUNDAY

The A-go-go on Wharf Street presents the Bakerloo Line at 1 p.m. Jon York's presents an all-star hootenanny. Doors open at 8:30.

COMING

Thursday, June 23 — Paul Revere and the Raiders at Memorial Arena—with the Syndicate of Sound, the Impacts and the Action Kids from the Where the Action Is TV series. Tickets available at the Arena box office.

Monday, June 27—The Wonderful World of Country Music starring Canada's yodelling cowboy—Wilf Carter, Skeeter Davies, and Tommy Collins—Memorial Arena. Tickets at the Arena box office.

Wednesday, June 29—Battle of the Big "B" Bands with the Blues By Five, the Bakerloo Line and the Beau Gentry—Schofield's Roller Rink, 8 to 12. Tickets at the door.

Vocal Section Will Be Added

Following the first meeting of the new board of directors of Victoria School of Music this week, several developments are announced.

Of prime importance is the assurance that a vocal department will definitely be opened in the coming school year and that Victoria Choral Society conductor, Rodney Webster, as of July 2, becomes a full-time member of the faculty as assistant to director of the school, Robin Wood.

Mr. Webster has been teaching theoretical subjects and aural classes at the school and is one of this city's best known choral conductors.

He has studied conducting with Otto-Werner Mueller and took his Associateship of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, in composition.

Mr. Webster also conducts the Amity Singers which were formerly the Varsity Singers.

Under Mr. Webster, a school choir and orchestra will be organized in the fall term, and present theory classes which are bulging, will be expanded.

John Graeme was named president of the school for another year. Other new members of the board are George Jones and Douglas R. Abbott.

THE ALPHABET MURDERS
Victoria Premiere
Oak Bay Theatre

With Agatha Christie's Mousetrap now in its 11th year on the London stage, it is not surprising that British movie-makers seem to be falling over one another to get hold of more Christie thrillers.

This one offers plenty of action and suspense and a particularly droll brand of English humor which will be better appreciated here than in the United States (unless I am very much mistaken).

Tony Randall's interpretation of Christie's famous Belgian detective (Hercule Poirot) is effective and on the sound track he is given a jolly little march theme. But he is almost overshadowed on the comedy front by Robert Morley as a bungling British S.S. agent.

Anita Ekberg is ravishing as the murderess but little else. Somehow the role she plays never quite comes to life.

The story is in the familiar Christie tradition. An aqua clown is found murdered in a swimming pool, while an instructress in a bowling alley is found dead with a poisoned dart in the back of her neck.

On vacation in England, Hercule Poirot becomes interested in the seemingly unrelated murders.

A psychiatrist (Guy Rolfe) is the third victim and, with a wry twist of humor, British Intelligence agent Robert Morley is assigned to protect Detective Poirot from being murdered in a friendly country.

It transpires that Anita Ekberg has more than a lovely figure; she is a skhizophrenic murderess who is obsessed with letters of the alphabet, and her favorite victims are people with the initials A.A., B.B., and C.C.

The absence of Margaret Rutherford from the film is regrettable, as she has given life and vigor to so many Christie thrillers. But there are good performances by several British stage and screen favorites, including Maurice Denham, Clive Morton, Sheila Allen and Alison Seebohm.

The Alphabet Murders was produced in England by Lawrence Bachman and directed by Frank Tashlin. The script, by David Pursall and Jack Seddon, catches the mood of the Christie novel.

Student Recital Friday

Ensemble playing including piano quartet, trio, duet and duo piano will be featured in the student recital next Friday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Ann's Academy Auditorium.

Piano and voice pupils of Mrs. Hilda King, ATCM, LRSM, the group includes 21 first, second and third place winners in the Victoria Music Festival piano classes this spring.

Violinist Mark Butler and solo oboist Ian Franklin are the guest artists.

Pupils taking part are pianists Ruth Anderson, Karen Baker, Dan Barrett, Mark Butler, Gwyneth Davies, Jo-Anne and Tyea Edgington, Ian Franklin, Jim, Linda and Liane Furmston, Paulette Howard, John Hughes, Deborah Irwin, David Jewkes, Sister Anna Marie Joseph, Wendy McCague, Ian and Jamie MacLean, Maryann MacLean, Patsy McLeman, Linda and Marion Marshall, Jill and Julie Matheson, Shane and Sandra Snow, Joyce and Patricia Soebagio, Carol Taylor, Bruce and Susan Turkington, Cathie Weir, Shelley Winter and Dorothy Wolff. Vocalists are Linda Furmston, Joan Harding, Rosalind Kobley and Wendy McCague.

Show Tuesday At St. Ann's

A variety concert has been planned by St. Andrew's Cathedral Glee Club for Tuesday evening at 8:15 in St. Ann's Academy auditorium.

Guest artists will be Peggy Walton Packard, Reg Stofer, Wendy Packard and Wendy Stofer.

Two dances will be performed by the Polish Dancers.

The Glee Club, directed by Mrs. O. D. Young, will offer selections from My Fair Lady, The Desert Song, Gounod's Sanctus and two songs by Winifred Lugrin Fahey among their numbers.

The 'King' of Accompanists Joshes Way to Retirement

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP) — Gerald Moore, that affable king of accompanists, likes to give the impression he is retiring now because the concert-going public is on the verge of discovering that he's not as good as they thought.

"It's much better to get out while one still has a fairly respectable reputation than to be asked to get out," Moore said in an interview, his pale blue eyes sparkling in a round face as he stirred a cup of tea in the deep hush of his West End club.

"Besides, there are a lot of young ones coming along and why should I hog the field? Some of them are a lot better than I am — and at half the price."

The remarks were typically Moore — a joshing self-deprecation, said in an easy patter and with the eloquent gestures of a born raconteur.

Moore's career has covered half a century, beginning with his first professional appearances during the winter of 1915-16 when he toured the Canadian Prairies as "The Remarkable English Boy Pianist."

ROLE BECOMES VITAL

In that time, he has seen the accompanist, once an anonymous figure on the fringe of the music world, come out from behind the potted palms onto centre stage.

The man who sits at the piano behind singer or instrumentalist is seen now as vital to the success of any recital. Many serious music students say credit for the change belongs largely to Gerald Moore.

When the rotund pianist announced recently, at the age of 66, that he would gradually retire from most forms of public appearance, there was genuine consternation among soloists, critics and his devoted public.

The Times said in an exceptionally warm tribute that the public can "look back in gratitude on what he has done over a period of close on 50 years to bring the accompanists' lot to honor among men."

Moore elevated the accompanist's art by being better than probably any of his predecessors. Devoting as much time to practice and study as any virtuoso soloists, he stressed balance between piano and voice or instrument, flexibility, tact and good humor.

An earlier accompanist, Coenraad V. Bos, used to tell of the singer who congratulated him by saying: "You must have played well today. I didn't notice you."

RANKED WITH SOLOISTS

Moore has written at length of some of his own trials in his early years. In recent years, his fees have sometimes been higher than the soloist's and his name generally gets equal billing.

When Moore speaks of retiring, he doesn't mean stopping dead.

He has taken to giving instruction to teams of soloists and their accompanists — many of the sessions held in public halls with audiences — and there are trips planned for such appearances to Sweden, Finland and Japan.

He also gives solo lectures with piano accompaniment, vaguely along the lines of Victor Borge's performances and often just as funny.

And there will still be recordings and radio broadcasts, which he frankly loves.

There are also plans for a three-week holiday with wife Enid in Ontario's Muskoka Lakes region.

There is hardly a singer or instrumentalist of note in the last 40 years who has not shared the stage or recording studio with Moore. He has appeared in almost every major city in the western world.

Next February he will give a series of three concerts with baritone Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau at Carnegie Hall in New York.

"Those will be my goodbye. Once one has said he is going to do it, one can't keep shilly-shallying."

NEW SMILES IN OLD SHOW

There will be some new faces seen in the Smile Show this year — one on both sides of the curtain.

With producer Jerry Gosley busy in Centennial planning, management has been taken over by former show dancer Jack Trueman.

Ted Gaskell joins Bebe Eversfield as co-director and writer for the British Music Hall show and he will also act as Gosley's understudy to appear on such nights as Centennial business might take Mr. Gosley out of town.

New to the cast are dancer Anne Appleby and actor Ian McIntyre, who has been seen recently in a number of Bastion comedies.

BAND CONCERT
SUNDAY, JUNE 12
1966

This Sunday, at 2:30 p.m., there will be a concert in the Cameron Memorial Shell, Beacon Hill Park, presented by the Lansdowne Junior Secondary School.

NORTH BREEZES

A group of businessmen had finished their lunch in our poolside dining room when talk turned to the Shrine Circus (it comes to Memorial Arena June 24.)

"I remember about a dozen years ago the Shriners had a big parade here. Little girl on Stanley Street broke both her legs on a swing and could not go," related one of the group.

"When the Shriners heard about it, they marched a band up to her window and she had her own special concert. The family needed a bit of help, so they left a purse too. And they said if the legs didn't heal well, let them know. They operate a children's hospital.

He added, "I guess I'll take the family."

"Glad to hear it," said his neighbor, pulling out a handful of tickets. All Shriners are carrying them.

IMPERIAL congratulations to Fish and Game Club's top marksman Jim Hatter, to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Lindey, wed 50 years this month, and to Mrs. W. A. Ludlow, new president Arbutus Toastmistresses.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Can there be a more important use for money and time than investment in the future?

The past is done, the present flows by us at a breath-taking, bewildering rate; the future is all that we can really, significantly hope to influence and improve.

If not our own, then somebody else's.

There is one way almost anyone can help to improve the future. And don't forget, if you must get personal about it, the future you improve may be your own great-grandson's.

Important edifices have been built by having the public buy bricks; and important careers have been developed with the aid of subscriptions to scholarship funds.

★ ★ ★

More and more scholarships are needed each year. Few exceptional students have wealthy parents at their backs and higher education in all fields becomes more and more costly each year.

For music students in Victoria a new important scholarship has just been offered and won.

In keeping with one of its chief aims, of providing encouragement and assistance for gifted young musicians, the Musical Art Society offered for 1966 a scholarship of $500.

It has been awarded, after adjudication of 12 applicants by two Royal Conservatory of Music examiners, to pianist Philip Adamson, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adamson, Yale Street, Oak Bay.

This spring Mr. Adamson has graduated with his Bachelor of Music degree from University of British Columbia.

The $500 scholarship will assist him in carrying out the next phase, which is enrolment at the University of Indiana, where there is a particularly good piano department and where he will pursue a master's degree.

Ultimately he hopes to combine performance with teaching at the university level. Which means that he will be passing on the riches of a fine musical education to possibly hundreds of other students during his lifetime.

★ ★ ★

Now I am not suggesting that lack of this particular scholarship would have altered the course of Mr. Adamson's career.

But there is no denying that it is of material help and that the society which provided it is making a significant contribution to student life in this city and affecting in some measure the life of hundreds in the future.

And it is important to realize that the Musical Art's subscribing members have actually made the award possible. They are the people who have invested a modest amount of money and time in building bricks for the coming decades.

The society hopes to increase the size of its scholarship in ensuing years. This of course depends entirely on the support it receives from the music-minded public.

A fact I hope won't be forgotten when membership time comes around next fall.

★ ★ ★

Going back for a moment to the adjudications: Toronto examiners Mrs. F. Goulden and John Coveart were much impressed with several of the dozen students and commented that they "had heard quite outstanding talent in Victoria during these auditions and would like to see some of these top students interviewed in Toronto for possible CBC work."

And they added that "the Victoria Musical Art Society is doing excellent work here among the young people."

They recommended 18-year-old oboist Ian Franklin for a special award and accorded pianist Stuart Calder, baritone Martin Chambers and violinist Mark Butler honorable mentions.

★ ★ ★

Where is Victoria Symphony conductor Otto-Werner Mueller at the moment?

In Montreal, where he has been invoking sizzling reactions from audiences and warm words from critics for his conducting of a series of concerts.

Probably one of the most important series to be held in Canada, now in its second year, are the concerts connected with the International Institute of Music competitions.

The institute was founded in 1963, organized the first competition—for pianists—in 1965, and is presenting currently (May 31 to June 19) the second, this time for violinists.

Forty-four violinists from 15 countries, many of whom are already eliminated, are competing for more than $10,000 in prize money.

★ ★ ★

The 10-member jury represents Canada, Czechoslovakia, England, France, Germany, Roumania, the U.S.S.R. and U.S.

Competitors, many of them delegated by their governments, come from Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Colombia, France, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Japan, Roumania, Czechoslovakia, Russia, and the United States.

Each one played the same program in the preliminaries—Bach, Sonata in A minor for violin alone; Beethoven, Romance in F major; two Paganini Caprices, and the Third Sonata for violin alone by Ysaye.

On reaching the semifinals, each plays an individual program which must include a Mozart Concerto played with the 60-piece Montreal orchestra.

Those who reach the finals play a concerto of their own choice.

★ ★ ★

Guest conductor Otto Mueller opened the three-week program on May 31 with an inaugural concert in the Grande Salle Place des Arts, where the competition will end with a "Concert of the First Two Laureates" on June 19.

From a Victorian who was present at the inaugural concert I hear that the huge audience called Mueller back time and again and that finally the applause was only ended by the orchestra leaving the stage.

In The Montreal Gazette, Jacob Siskind commented:

"This was the first time that Werner Mueller had conducted in public in this city in some time and it was interesting to see the clarity with which one could follow the train of thought in all of the music he conducted.

"This was a no-nonsense, straight-forward music making, the kind we seldom get these days. The conductor never placed himself between the music and the audience; he allowed the scores to speak for themselves."

★ ★ ★

Having commented on several occasions in the past that a serious need locally was a central clearing house for dates that would help avoid the frequent conflict of events, I am glad to be able to report that Jerry Gosley has come up with an answer.

Victoria's centennial co-ordinator has had a huge calendar fixed to the wall of the Centennial Society's office at 14 Centennial Square.

As organizations report events to the office, these are listed on the day they are to take place, different types of events having different colors—green for sports, red for theatrical affairs, and so on.

It has already been effective in causing some changes in scheduling that might have overlapped.

COMPLETE RAPPORT IN FINE PERFORMANCE

Regina Baritone Holds Audience Spellbound

Baritone William Fleming, Regina, accompanied by Mel Bowker, also of Regina, recently provided an epicurean feast of song such as is rarely heard in the average concert hall.

The event took place at St. John's Memorial Hall.

Mr. Fleming's program opened with Bach's recitative, Ah, How Perverse Our Will Remains, the air, Lord, as Thou Wilt, and The End Is Come, the Pain Is Over.

These were sung with great senstivity and feeling and the artist continued to hold his audience spellbound throughout the difficult Beethoven and Wolf lieder which followed.

The beauty of tone, wealth of imagination, range and depth of understanding and distinct diction contributed to complete rapport between Mr. Fleming and his audience and an altogether unforgettable performance.

Other numbers were a group of sings by Maurice Ravel based on Spanish dance rhythms; a cycle of five Shakespearean songs and three Irish folk songs arranged by Mr. Fleming's brother, Robert.

It was a beautifully balanced program arranged with great care and thought.

Fully in communion with the singer and providing the most complete support in every phase, Mr. Bowker, particularly in the lieder, revealed a superb pianistic style.

Gilbey's bring ocean-going mixed drinks from crack liners

'Biggest bloomin' Collins' is made with Gilbey's London Dry aboard the P & O flagship Canberra. Photo courtesy of P & O Orient Lines.

On board the world's crack liners expert bartenders know that one of the best gins for mixed drinks is Gilbey's London Dry. Its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink. This fact is proven by the Canberra Tom Collins—the biggest bloomin' Collins sailing the seven seas!

Canberra—Tom Collins

There are two secrets to the Canberra Tom Collins. The first is of course Gilbey's London Dry Gin. By starting with Gilbey's you are certain of finishing with a fresh, clean tasting drink. You'll also need fresh lemon juice, sugar and soda water. The second secret (to make the biggest bloomin' Collins) is to use a 16 ounce glass!

Michelangelo—Sundowners

Italian superliner Michelangelo has jet-age smoke stacks that keep smoke off the decks whatever the weather. We mention this since clean air helps people enjoy the fresh, clean taste of Gilbey's London Dry Gin. With grapefruit juice and sugar Gilbey's becomes a Sundowner you'll enjoy at any time of the day.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

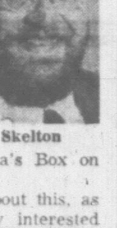
LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Children Need Pictures . . . Yes, Even in an Orphanage!

By the time you read this I shall be, God willing, in New York enjoying that typical busman's holiday of my profession, an international conference. This means that I am unable to discuss the exhibition of Fleming Jorgensen's work which opened at Pandora's Box on Friday.



Skelton

I am grieved about this, as I have been very interested by those examples of Mr. Jorgensen's recent work that I have seen.

He has, I believe, been developing several new approaches and new techniques over the past few months, and I would have enjoyed the opportunity to comment. I hope, however, that you will all visit the show, I am sure it is worth visiting.

Apart from Jorgensen's exhibition, there seems little new in the Victoria art world this week, and so I'd like to take a little time off to discuss another matter that recently and is still agitating it. I refer to the matter of the Orphanage.

Now, before more than a dozen of you reach for your ball points and begin on letters to the editor, let me add that I am not going to challenge the claims of the directors that they prepare their wards adequately for the harsh realities of the world.

No. All I am concerned with is the description of the atmosphere of the Protestant Orphanage as Dickensian, and its implication as regards Art.

I imagine that those of you who recall the second chapter of Oliver Twist may feel that the description of the orphanage as Dickensian may be a shade strong. Our Victorian children do not die of malnutrition; nor they are not mercilessly whipped for no reason. Moreover the denizens of our Victoria Orphanage are not even orphans.

Nevertheless there is one parallel, and it applies not merely to the orphanage but to many of the schools in our area.

The children ask for more, and more should be given.

It is well established that the aesthetic environment of a child is an important aid or hindrance to that child's well-being.

Educators have, ever since the days of William Morris (and, indeed, Charles Dickens) pointed out the importance of bright, interesting surroundings, and of pictures.

Pictures do not only enable the child to indulge his imagination, but, by their ordering of colors and forms, suggest (subliminally, as it were) the way in which experience can be and may be ordered and understood.

A well-balanced painting can teach as much about order stability and discipline as a well-balanced mathematical equation. A vivid color can stimulate as much as a sermon.

A thing of beauty promotes a feeling of well-being as much as, or more than, a hymn of gratitude.

In our community the art teachers are doing more than create art-lovers and artists; they are creating men and women who are aware of harmony, of form, and of balance, and who have learning to use their senses in a disciplined and rewarding way.

It is natural for the child to be excited by color and form. Exhibitions of childrens' art are almost always lively, funny, and perceptive.

Most children take easily to drawing, and find in looking at drawings, as in making them, a delightful way of learning to understand, challenge, and enjoy the world in which they live.

When we put forward claims for art we are not simply supporting a group of people who choose to make pictures and sculptures.

We are attempting to organize a healthy and rewarding environment for ourselves and our children. We are assuring the present and insuring the future.

All this being the case, the word "Dickensian" as applied to the orphanage troubles me.

Children need food and clothing. They also need toys of their own, possessions of their own, and pictures, many many pictures in their schools, thier homes, and, yes, their institutions.

It is to be hoped that the board of directors of the orphanage will come to understand this, and much else, in the near future.

I remember that the Board of Oliver Twist's Workhouse were described as "very sage, deep, philosophical men." Surely the members of our orphanage board are no less!

Sweetness, Light Can Sour Reader

THE CROSSROADS, by Elizabeth Corbett. General Publishing Co. $5.95.

Reviewed by
Grant McOrmond

If, as Matthew Arnold wrote, "the pursuit of perfection is the pursuit of sweetness and light," then Elizabeth Corbett, in The Crossroads has pursued perfection with rare single mindedness.

In fact, there is so much sweetness in this work dealing with Alice and Harry Martin of the Waverley Bookshop in Greenwich Village that many a reader will probably find his taste cloyed by the excess. A constant diet of honey is apt to be sickening.

There is some evidence that The Crossroads may be intended as a gentle rebuke and an implicit criticism of the modern psychological novel and of all it dredges up from the sordid depths of the unhealthy subconscious mind.

It is doubtful, however, if even readers weary of the negation and despair of much current fiction will find in this volume a satisfactory alternative.

Greenwich Village from 1927 to 1933 was undoubtedly vastly different from the present Village. But even the mists of time can scarcely blur it into the never-never land that Elizabeth Corbett has created for her readers.

True, there was a depression and there was Prohibition, but neither intrude upon the lives of her characters in any meaningful way.

The characters themselves are all unbelievably good and unusually happy; they all share to a remarkable degree the same interests and occasions.

Even more unusual is the fact that never does mischance or unhappiness mar the even tenor of their lives. They go from one pleasant event to the next always with the same attitude of wide-eyed wonder that a modern reader rapidly shares at the sight of such an unbroken span of unadulterated felicity.

Perhaps the greatest surprise that Elizabeth Corbett holds for a modern reader arises from the fact that the style in which the novel is written did not expire with Queen Victoria.

First Novel Award Goes To Montrealer

The Beta Sigma Phi First Novel Award for 1965 has been won by C. J. Newman.

His book, We Always Take Care of Our Own, was published in the fall of 1965 by McClelland and Stewart.

It is an autobiographical sketch about life in a colorful section of Montreal where Newman was born in 1935.

Bronze medals for the best children's books produced in Canada in English and French, have been won by James Houston for Tikta 'liktak published by Longmans Canada, and to Mme. Andree Maillet for Le Chene des Tempetes, published by Les Editions Fides.

Mme. Maillet's book is composed of a series of five tales of magic and enchantment.

Tikta 'liktak is an Eskimo legend about the life-and-death heroism of a young Eskimo. The author has provided striking line drawings to illustrate a tale told with simplicity and charm.

The medals are awarded by the Canadian Library Association.

CAST HIS NET A LITTLE TOO FAR

ALICE ONE HUNDRED; A CATALOGUE IN CELEBRATION OF THE 100TH BIRTHDAY OF "ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND." Compiled by R. D. Hilton Smith. Victoria, Adelphi Book Shop Ltd., 1966. 77 pages. $6.50 clothbound, $3.50 paperbound.

Reviewed by Jean Whiffin

Originally a listing of items for sale at the Adelphi Book Shop in Victoria, and purchased for the library of University of British Columbia of '25, this bookseller's catalogue now joins an already formidable array of Lewis Carroll bibliographies.

In spite of the title, only the first half is devoted to editions of the two Alice books, and a wide range of material is covered — from Carroll's earliest work at the age of 13 to Peter Mannering's adaptation of Alice for presentation by Bastion Theatre last Fall.

Perhaps Mr. Hilton Smith has cast his net a little too wide, and even the most fervent collector of Carrolliana will find some of his catch of questionable interest, for example the illustration of Alice in wax in the folder advertising the Royal London Wax Museum.

Not surprisingly, the compiler has relied heavily on existing bibliographies for his descriptions and notes. In supplementing these works with previously unrecorded materials (mainly recent), and in minor amplifications and corrections, he has performed a useful service to Carroll enthusiasts, rare-books librarians and fellow antiquarian booksellers.

It is, however, regrettable that his own contribution shows lack of consisitency in the citing of sources and includes some glaring misprints.

The Morriss Printing Co. was responsible for designing and printing this attractive-looking volume.

The edition is limited to 600 copies, of which 100 are on fine paper and clothbound.

WEATHERING THE STORM

'Cut All Engines, Roll With Blows'

"Heavy Weather Guide" by Edwin T. Harding and William J. Kotsch United States Naval Institute — 210 Pages — Appendix.

Reviewed by C. N. Forward

The fascinating subject of hurricanes and typhoons is treated authoriatatively but in easily understood language in "Heavy Weather Guide."

The book is divided into two parts, the first on hurricanes by Captain Edwin T. Harding, U.S. Navy, and the second on typhoons by Captain William J. Kotsch, U.S. Navy.

OBSCURED

Hurricanes of the Atlantic and typhoons of the Pacific are tropical cyclones of similar orgin and characteristics. This meteorological similarity unfortunately is obscured by the fact that they are discussed separately.

Because each section was written independently and apparently intended to stand on its own, considerable repetition of fact and theory concerning tropical cyclones is encountered by the reader when he delves into Part 2 aftr absorbing Part 1.

Both parts are parallel in content and organization, covering such topics as storm formation, frequency, movement, tracks, characteristics, forces of destruction and life cycles.

In conclusion the authors give advice on how to behave and what to do at sea or ashore when tropical cyclones strike. The appendix consists of eight short articles by different authors who vividly describe hurricanes and typhoons they have experienced.

CUT ENGINES

In one of these papers, "Typhoon Doctrine", by E. W. Malanot, the astonishing advice to ships' captains is: when typhoon winds are bearing down on your vessel at more than 60 knots and waves are up to 50 feet high, cut your engines and drift broadside to the wind; do not attempt to fight the tremendous power of the storm, simply roll with the blows!

"Heavy Weather Guide" is attractively bound and printed and well illustrated with maps and graphs.

It is of interest to a wide company of readers seeking knowledge of tropical storms and constitutes virtually a manual to seamen and travellers who visit the tropics.

'Losers' . . . Canadian Variation

BEAUTIFUL LOSERS by Leonard Cohen. Toronto, McClelland and Stewart, 1966. $5.95.

Reviewed by
Grant McOrmond

Leonard Cohen, the author of Beautiful Losers, is a Montreal-born writer living in Hydra, Greece. It is uncertain whether Canadians should be proud, amused or angry that he is one of them.

In this, his second novel, he seems to be striving to rival Henry Miller, whose Tropic of Cancer outraged many and provoked much discussion.

Beautiful Losers might be described as a Canadian variation on a theme by Miller.

To understand what Leonard Cohen is attempting it is necessary to see him in the tradition of twentieth century writers such as Joyce, Woolf and Miller.

REBELLING

These leaders were rebelling against the restrictions which plot, character and setting imposed on the writer of fiction.

They wanted to be free to play with themes, to use art as a release for themselves rather than as a coherent experience for their readers.

Like the modern painter who does not wish to compete with a camera, the modern novelist is reluctant to compete with the tape recorder.

Therefore it is not a transcript of actions and conversations that he gives, but rather, through the stream of consciousness he strives to reveal the inner man, the inner life.

Words pour forth without restraint, often without pattern. The reader must find the purpose and the meaning.

COME-ON

All too often, however, the labor involved for the reader is out of proportion to the meaning derived from the work of art. Thus, almost as a gimmick — a come-on — modern writers have on occasion, recourse to startlingly frank discussions of sex, the sex act, and the physiological functions of man.

The prurient becomes a defence, a red-herring to prevent concentration upon the central question of the relative artistic success of the novel.

Readers interested in modern experimental patterns of fiction will find Leonard Cohen's book worth some attention; those who savor the frank treatment of scatological and sexual themes in literature will find it stimulating.

Those who want to find out what Leonard Cohen has to say about French Canadian separatism and about love between man and woman, man and man, and man and saint will undoubtedly be disappointed with Beautiful Losers.

New Atlas

THE MACMILLAN CANADA ATLAS, by Ronald C. Daly. Toronto, Macmillan Co. of Canada, 1966. 114 pp. $3.95.

One should note at the outset that this is not an atlas of Canada, although by far the greatest number of maps, charts, etc., deal with Canada and its provinces.

The other continents are not overlooked, but Canadians of school age, as well as those wishing a quick reference atlas, will find this a handy, useful and informative book.

More than the usual geographic maps are included. Political divisions, economic developments, transportation routes, and industrial and farming areas are described in numerous, multi-colored maps. An index is included.

GRANTS TO CANADIAN AUTHORS
Prizes awarded to authors of essays, short stories, poems and children's books
The Centennial Commission announces a programme of grants to Canadian authors designed to encourage the publication of Canadian works to coincide with the Centennial of Confederation. THREE PRIZES are offered in each category. Three English works and three French works will be selected.
1st prize: $1250
2nd prize: $ 750
3rd prize: $ 500
In the case of children's books, there will be two series of three prizes ($1250, $750 and $500). The first for children's books written for ages eight years and under, and the second for works applicable to ages eight to twelve years. The first prize in each of the two categories will be supplemented by an additional grant of $2500 to allow for publication and illustration.
In addition, the Centennial Commission will award honourable mentions for outstanding works.
- Candidates must be Canadian or have resided in Canada since 1962.
- The subject chosen should be one of particular interest to Canadian readers.
- The manuscript must be an original and should not have been published before.
- Works selected for prizes will become the property of the Centennial Commission. Other works will remain the property of the author. The Commission does not undertake to return manuscripts.
- All entries must be submitted by December 1, 1966.

Voyage of Discovery . . . Even for Natives

FIRST OF A SERIES

BY JOHN MIKA

Take a look at the back of a $10 bill.

Majestic mountainscape, isn't it?

You can see the mountain that was its model, Rocher de Boule, from Hazelton in British Columbia's famed Bulkley Valley.

The river in the foreground of the bill is the Bulkley River just before it is joined by the Skeena and Kispiox — the former having produced the world's biggest Tyee catch, 92 pounds, and the latter the world's record Steelhead at 36 pounds, five ounces.

The mountain's peaks just now are deep in snow and the rivers in flood. The high plateau air is clear and the sun warm.

The hot weather will be there soon and the sides of Rocher de Boule will show plumes of smoke-like dust as boulders bounce towards the broad, green valley below.

He Should Know

Turning to me as we gazed over miles of grandeur, Tacoma's KTNT travel-show producer Maury Ryder said:

"This province is a great vacationland. Yet many British Columbians don't know it."

He should know. He's been making an average of 10 trips annually for 15 years into various B.C. areas fog hunting, fishing and touring.

"One time I was up in the Cariboo and I picked up a batch of publicity brochures there," he continued. "Went back and did a show about the Cariboo and offered to send the brochures on request.

"The requests poured in — and more than 500 came from Vancouver Island."

The irony of British Columbians stimulated into seeing some of their province's beauty by American travel shows and writers, probably will have many repetitions this year.

Faraway Places

Mr. Ryder and I were among 42 writers, cameramen and show producers from places such as Paris, Fort Worth, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Phoenix, Toronto and Edmonton who toured together the new Totem Circle Route — Victoria to Prince Rupert by road and ferry; Highway 16 with a side-trip to Kitimat, then to Prince George, geographical centre of the province; Cariboo Highway with side-trips to Barkerville, Vanderhoof, Fort St. James and Lillooet; ending at Vancouver.

The Americans particularly marvelled at the scenery, in showers and in sunshine.

Robert Read, Sunday magazine writer for the San Francisco Examiner, who has seen the crowds at United States and European beauty spots, began composing a tribute to the immensity and varied splendor of B.C. with the advice to his million-plus readers: "Go there while it's still empty."

We journeyed through the islands and fjords of the north coast waterway, climbed up through the densely-wooded ramparts of the upper Coast Range, broke past glacier peaks onto the vast alpine Bulkley valley, and advanced over the Chilcotin's rolling hills of woods and grasslands. We continued through the desert rangeland of the interior plateau starting a slow descent with the sage brush of Cache Creek, plunged and twisted through the wild river chasms cut through the fir-fringed granite mountains again down to the billiard table-smooth delta of the Fraser's mouth.

Went 1,800 Miles

By then, we had travelled more than 1,800 miles — yet had seen only the perimeter of the southwest quarter of British Columbia!

Inhabiting this huge area, we saw only a few thousand people.

It was possible still to recall as individuals of dignity and warmth the sportsmen of Campbell River, the stewards aboard Queen of Prince Rupert, the fishermen of misty Prince Rupert, the smelter workers of Kitimat, the Indian and white townsfolk of Terrace, the kindly and proud Indians of Hazelton, the miners of Smithers, the tuxedo and gown-clad merchants of booming Prince George, the costumed citizens of Barkerville, the ranchers of Williams Lake and Clinton, the motoring tourists silently measuring the awesome slide at Hope and the bellhops who greeted us in Vancouver.

Members of the tour had filled spare corners of their luggage and shopping bags with dozens of items bought along the way:

Eskimo soapstone carvings aboard the ferry, argilite carvings and Haida handprints in Prince Rupert (and, sadly, a decorated aluminum platter in Kitimat showing the smelter town on one side, and Japan as the place the plate was made on the other), carved totem replicas in Terrace, Indian bark-weaving, baskets and skin-work in the Bulkley Valley, rockhound art in Smithers, and Stetsons and leatherwork (even one saddle) through the Cariboo.

Records Listed

There were, of course, literally thousands of photographs, slides and movie frames taken every day of the tour and all of them different. Notebooks were filled with descriptions of sweeping panoramas and the short, eloquent summaries of pioneer tombstones.

The outdoors writers listed reams of hunting and fishing records and trophies. Some tried their hand with a rod, briefly because there wasn't time to tarry on this working trip, and enjoyed their fresh-caught breakfast. All enjoyed the taste of moose and beaver meat provided by local hunters.

The city slickers savored the dust, noise and action of an hour-long rodeo in Williams Lake and a frenzied, heart-stopping chuckwagon race in Clinton, rides in stagecoaches, helicopters, hay rigs, float planes and speed boats.

Not all these are likely to be seen by a regular tourist in one swing but some of the highlights can be fitted into almost any trip as spring, summer and fall events abound in the communities and reserves along the way.

Everywhere we went, there were new motels and hotels — and more springing up — that would compare with the better ones in Victoria and Vancouver, with pleasant rooms, restaurants, pools or sauna baths.

But everywhere, the cry was the same by worried merchants and tourist promoters — make sure you have a reservation. The travel boom has hit the new circle route like a ton of bricks and numerous as the accommodations are, they still are behind demand.

In several places, hotels have lists of private homes that will take overflow guests but even these are insufficient. So, make sure you have reservations, or else take a tent, trailer or camper so you can bed down in a provincial or commercial park or by the highway if necessary.

The discovery of British Columbia's scenic wonders by outsiders and natives, the centennial celebration events lined up for this year and next, the new ferry link closing the circle tour and the constantly increasing traffic to Alaska have produced the demand for resting places.

As a personal observation, the greatest revelation for me was the kaleidoscope of scenery and humans when motoring across B.C. with plenty of way stops.

I've been to most of these places before, but usually by airplane or train on isolated forays to one spot and then directly back to home, seeing only one color and oblivious to the spectrum.

On a trip such as this, there are two books available from the government which would add great enjoyment for the curious: Landforms of B.C. and the Indian History of B.C., Volume 1. With these, and a map, you will discover a wealth of geographical and social history along every mile, of which most travellers are totally unaware.

Our press tour was sponsored by B.C. Government Travel Bureau, B.C. Ferry Authority and Vancouver Island Coach Lines. All three have a great deal of information and advice available for planning a trip through any part of the province.

We travelled aboard one of VICL's new $50,000 buses — equipped with form-fitting seats that were as comfortable and easy on the back as the bucket seats of expensive, foreign touring automobiles. We also had air-conditioning that worked and a lavatory aboard the bus. As a special bonus, we had a radio-telephone provided gratis by B.C. Tel.

Going by bus, especially for couples and single persons, has the advantage (added to foregoing the rigors of driving) of including hotel or motel rooms.

VICL operates, in conjunction with the ferry, Canadian Coachways and Greyhound, a similar five-day, six-night circle route (but without the sidetrips) — leaving Victoria terminal every other day until Sept. 12 and twice a week thereafter.

This minimum tour costs $128 for a single and $119.50 each for a twin-sharing booking, including motel rooms and ferry berths but not meals.

Stopovers can be made along the route, at extra cost, of course, for sidetrips to places like Barkerville, the Peace River dam or any other place, extending the tour as far as vacation-time and pocketbook will permit.

In addition, VICL operates four package-tours providing an escort-guide. It lasts seven days and six nights, completes the circle route including a sidetrip to Barkerville as well as photo stops at especially scenic or historic points.

The escorted tours depart Victoria July 15, Aug. 6 and 20, and Sept. 3. They cost $148.65 and $138.35 twin-sharing and include both sleeping accommodation and all baggage transfer tips.

If you're interested in this circle tour — or almost any other through B.C. — hurry and make your motel or bus reservations. Those American writers were all primed to send up thousands of new tourists when I last saw them.

ALASKA is now within easy reach of the tourist with the inauguration of B.C. Ferry service from the northern tip of Vancouver Island to Prince Rupert—linking with Alaska State Ferries, thus cutting 800 miles off the overland driving route. Pretty Roberta Thirsk of Vancouver travelled via Vancouver Island Coach Lines which meets every departure and arrival of the new Queen of Prince Rupert.

HIGHWAY 16 from Prince Rupert to Prince George provides spectacular scenery for the motorcoach traveller. Here, a few miles west of the town of Terrace, the road winds along the Skeena River with the Coast Range providing an awesome backdrop.

'KEEP FINGERS CROSSED'

Hope for B.C. Heavy Water Plant

There is a good chance British Columbia will add a heavy water plant to its already impressive list of new industries.

Tom Sturgess, deputy minister of industrial development said Friday, "We're keeping our fingers crossed."

Speaking at a Lions Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel, Mr. Sturgess explained that Canadian General Electric plans to construct a heavy water plant in Canada in the near future.

Six B.C. areas are being considered as possible sites for the project which is expected to cost $55 million and will employ 160 to 200 men when completed. It is expected to more than double heavy water production in Canada.

Heavy water sells for more than $18 a pound.

However, the competition is fierce. Locations across the country are vying for the proposed plant. Next week Canadian GE will announce the six areas still in the running. Mr. Sturgess is optimistic one of them will be a B.C. site.

Canada's nuclear industry is wedded to the principle of using heavy water as a moderator in nuclear reactors. As such, the rate form of water not only controls the nuclear fission process but also makes possible use of cheap natural uranium for fuel.

Wednesday Deadline For Site Decision

By BOB MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's heavy water program is expected to get back on the rails next week after a series of delays and technical problems.

Wednesday is the deadline set by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. for Canadian General Electric to announce the site for its proposed 500-ton plant that will produce heavy water for an average price of $18.15 a pound over a 12½-year period.

June 15 also was the deadline for Deuterium of Canada Ltd. to prove financial ability to expand its plant already under construction in Nova Scotia. A one-month extension was granted earlier this week.

While no contract has yet been signed for the General Electric plant, an AECL source said Friday that only minor details remain to be worked out and the final contract "should be signed shortly."

Deuterium of Canada already has a five-year contract to supply 200 tons a year at $20.50 a pound and has asked for an expanded pact to bring it up to the terms of the General Electric proposal.

RAN INTO TROUBLE

But Deuterium has had trouble financing the extension as well as getting its plant completed on schedule.

The Glace Bay plant are expected to cause a delay of about two months.

Most other nations are using expensive enriched uranium fuel in nuclear reactors which in most cases eliminates the need for heavy water. While capital costs for a Canadian-type nuclear power plant are higher—due to heavy water — operation costs are lower.

Canada is gambling that design refinements will make power produced by its plants cheaper in the long run.

The heavy water reactors also have a political advantage. Small nations purchasing the Canadian plants could buy the natural uranium fuel from a number of countries while only the United States and Russia produce enough enriched uranium for foreign sales.

Canada now imports heavy water from the U.S. at prices slightly above $25 a pound, but if the General Electric contract is signed and Deuterium expands its facilities, Canada will surpass the U.S. in heavy water production early in the 1970s.

Once the Douglas Point and Pickering nuclear power stations being built for Ontario Hydro are in operation, Canada will have a heavy water surplus, but by that time, also early in the 1970s, the world-wide shortage of heavy water is expected to exceed this surplus.

Construction of the second plant has been plagued by problems ever since AECL announced it was calling tenders for the additional supply.

Western Deuterium Co. Ltd. submitted the lowest bid and planned a 300-ton plant at Estevan, Sask., but before a contract was signed the company discovered that a new chemical process for manufacturing heavy water had too many drawbacks. Other bidders were invited to take over but they also withdrew.

ACTIVE IN FIELD

Finally, AECL approached General Electric directly to see if it would build the plant. General Electric already is active in the nuclear field, building power stations for Canada and for export.

Early this year AECL announced it had been authorized by the federal government to enter into a contract with General Electric on the basis of the firm's proposal for a plant producing a maximum of 500 tons over 12½ years.

There were two conditions: General Electric had to select the site by June 15 and start production by mid-1969.

There has been considerable speculation about the choice of the site. Several communities in Western Canada have invited the company to locate in their region. Ontario Hydro announced Thursday it would build a special power station north of Cochrane if the plant was built there.

Dealers Ask Wider Controls

A federal regulatory authority for interprovincial, national and international companies in Canada is proposed by the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada.

Better securities regulation, and savings in time and cost would be the result, IDA said in a brief to Prime Minister Pearson.

The association recommended the matter be taken up at a forthcoming federal - provincial conference.

A statement from the IDA said:

"We consider that the licensing of investment dealers, brokers and other firms and their salesmen should remain in provincial jurisdiction.

'USEFUL ROLE'

"There are situations where a federal regulatory body could play a useful role in co-operation with provincial authorities in the enforcement of the security fraud clauses of the federal Criminal Code."

At present there is no uniformity in securities control in Canada and registration must be made in each province individually.

There is a small degree of reciprocal agreement between provinces and some standardization of legislation.

But investment dealers say there remain "important differences in emphasis, regulation and in enforcement."

And complete lack of any federal securities legislation has been the cause of problems "or even a degree of embarrassment internationally," the IDA said.

THREE CLASSES

The association proposes federal registration for federally incorporated companies, and of issues of any company which were to be issued interprovincially or internationally. It also would cover issues of foreign companies in Canada.

Registration of issues for companies with head offices in a particular province would continue to be made in that province, the IDA said.

But it hoped that other provinces would accept the additional federal registration, regulation and administration as sufficient and provide their own clearance almost automatically.

The effect would be to narrow down the registration processes to two, without paring investor protection.

Diamonds may be a girl's best friend. Real estate is an Investor's.

Diamonds are attractive. Real estate is more so. And it brings income, through recession or inflation. If you're considering an investment in office buildings, apartment houses, shopping centres, or even undeveloped land, consult a real estate board member.

VICTORIA REAL ESTATE BOARD

HOW SAFE IS A MORTGAGE?

Whereas most investments risk a loss on the first dollar's depreciation of the value of the security, a mortgage can retain its full value IN SPITE OF A DEPRECIATION of the property secured. Therefore, the LOWER PER CENT of total value represented by the mortgage, the lesser the projected risk.

But real-estate is considered so basically sound by many lending institutions that 75%, 83% and as high as 87½% MORTGAGES are given. Their projected confidence in real-estate is further manifested by their low monthly repayment requirements allowing 15, 20, and 25 years to repay.

We in Victoria Mortgage Corporation agree. Property values have increased steadily for 30 years, and will continue to do so for another 30 years, especially in this PARADISE called BRITISH COLUMBIA, where people are coming from all over the world.

We, therefore, at times make higher percentage loans on the type of security WE PREFER. However, our current mortgage investments average only 39% of appraised security.

We feel fairly confident about it. Our investors seem to feel the same way.

5-Year Debentures pay 7½% — One year, 7%.

There is no acquisition cost.

$250 Million In Harbor Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — A real estate and harbor development costing perhaps $250,000,000 will follow the signing Friday of an agreement settling an age-old property dispute.

The agreement between Canadian Pacific Railway and National Harbors Board divides ownership of 1½ miles of the south shore of Vancouver Harbor.

N. R. Crump of Montreal, chairman of the CPR board, said planning is under way for a $200,000,000 commercial and residential development, most of which will be over the CPR waterfront tracks.

Howard Mann, NHB chairman, said work will start shortly on one three-berth deepsea dock.

Reporters at the press conference at which the announcements were made said Transport Minister Pickersgill recently mentioned a $50,000,000 figure for harbor development. Mr. Mann said an estimate cannot be made at this stage.

1880 DISPUTE

The agreement ended a dispute that dates back to 1880, when the CPR transcontinental line was started. Both the federal government and the railway claimed the 200 acres of waterfront serviced by the railway.

The settlement provides for a 50 - 50 split with the borderline starting at Burrard Street. The NHB takes the east side, which includes water deep enough for deep sea ships.

The CPR gets lands bordering shallow water, which are more suitable for a "marine oriented" real estate development.

The government agency purchases the CPR's pier B.C. for $3,741,000 and leases it back to the CPR for 20 years and at the same time agrees to give priority in construction of the new deepsea dock. Mr. Mann said construction could start next year.

Mr. Mann said after the agreement was signed: "Queen Victoria would be absolutely delighted that a difficulty that started in her reign now is coming to a conclusion."

NO LIMIT

Both men refused to put a time limit on their proposals or to go into details.

Mr. Mann said the harbor development probably would be in three phases.

It would not include grain elevators because it had been shown that the North Shore of the harbor was best for bulk cargo handling.

Mr. Crump said the real estate development could take as much as 20 years to reach completion. It would be "phased" into the city's needs.

He said Woodwards Stores Ltd., Grosvenor-Laing Development Ltd. and the CPR are some of the principals in the group.

The development, called project 200, would cover the equivalent of eight city blocks, provide an open plaza free from traffic and would "integrate well with the surrounding land and provide an attractive environment within downtown Vancouver." There would be parking for 5,000 cars.

The agreement provides that the CPR will provide accommodation for all ocean passenger ships, ending worries that the giant P&O ships that stop here would have no berths.

Dominion Derailed Until '67

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons transport committee has decided, reluctantly, not to recommend a revival of the CPR's Dominion passenger train this summer.

Tuesday the committee was told by Ian Sinclair, president of the railway, that it would take four or five months to get the Dominion's equipment back in shape for an acceptable service.

An interim report by the committee, expected to be tabled in the Commons next week, will propose instead that immediate steps be taken to order the Dominion into service for the 1967 Centennial year.

Informants said several members of the committee were reluctant to accept Mr. Sinclair's version of the "lead time" required to restore the train on a Montreal-Vancouver transcontinental schedule.

However, committee member Norman Fawcett (NDP—Nickel Belt) told them it was doubtful whether enough time could be shaved off Mr. Sinclair's estimate to make possible the return of the Dominion this summer.

Mr. Fawcett is a veteran CNR conductor.

The Dominion went out of service in January when the Board of Transport Commissioners, following public hearings, supported a CPR bid to get rid of the deficit-ridden train.

PACKAGED LUMBER OFF TO BRITISH BUYERS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Huge shipments of neatly-packaged lumber will shortly be sailing to the United Kingdom in a new service for British customers being provided by a British Columbia timber company.

MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. has announced it will store the lumber in more than 48 acres of space at three British ports.

British buyers will be able to draw their supplies from these storage areas, "eliminating" the need for large inventories or ordering from B.C. months in advance.

Spokesmen say packaging permits easier handling, botter use of space in vessels and presents the customer with a better-looking product.

Now MacMillan-Bloedel plans to combine this with use of huge carriers capable of carrying up to 30,000 tons.

Used Car Prices Down By $300 Since Beginning of This Year

While used-car sales have generally held up in the face of declining new-car sales, retail prices of used cars have slipped or at best held steady, dealers across Canada report.

Dealers in Vancouver, Ottawa, Saint John, N.B., Montreal and Charlottetown, questioned in a cross-Canada survey Friday by The Canadian Press, said used-car prices are generally down.

Reports from other centres indicate prices are firm.

Possibly the most buoyant used car market is in the Prairie provinces. Dealers in Edmonton, Calgary, and Regina say sales are good and prices are firm.

The worst picture comes from Vancouver and Saint John, N.B. Dealers in both cities said prices were off $300 or more since the beginning of the year. One of the largest dealers in Vancouver reported the decline was accompanied, paradoxically, with a 20 per cent increase in sales.

Long-Awaited Report Expected This Month

A report favorable to construction of an ore treating mill was forecast Thursday by Utica Mines Ltd. president Isaac Shulman, for the Horn silver mine.

He was asked to account for delay in a feasibility study being conducted by Chapman, Wood and Griswold consulting engineers ordered in March.

'All the consultants are overworked," he noted. The report, which would take into consideration a proposed 200-ton per day mill, was promised in April, then May.

Mr. Shulman said he was hoping for its delivery this month.

Meanwhile, the consultants have indicated to him that a favorable report would be made.

"Shareholders always assume the worst when there is no news," the president said.

"But in this case I don't think their fears are justified."

Utica's Horn mine is near Keremeos where underground exploration and diamond drilling has disclosed high-grade silver deposits. There is also recoverable gold.

Properties in other parts of B.C. and the Yukon include copper, lead-zinc and molybdenum prospects.

HOW AND WHY YOUR MONEY CAN EARN 8% ON PROFITS FROM $4 MILLIONS IN MORTGAGES

During the past year, investors placed more than $2 million in the Sterling Pacific Mortgage Fund. Today, more than 1000 men and women hold Sterling Pacific Certificates, earning 8% computed semi-annually. Protection of capital is a basic requirement of each of our investors, and the Mortgage Fund is constituted so as to assure this protection.

YOU MAY INVEST AS LITTLE AS $500
You can become an investor in the Sterling Pacific Mortgage Fund for as little as $500. You receive a Sterling Pacific Certificate registered in your name showing the principal amount of your investment. Because all securities are pooled, your investment will be spread over the whole fund. This way you avoid the risks you might run as an investor in individual mortgages.

$1,000 EARNS $80 YEARLY
At 8% your money grows fast! You may build up financial security for those retirement years ahead, or you can draw quarterly interest payments from your investment and enjoy a regular income. As an example: Invest $1,000, and you'll earn $80.00 a year in quarterly payments. Invest $5,000, and you'll earn $400.00.

HOW CAN STERLING PACIFIC PAY 8% INTEREST WITH SAFETY?
The performance and security of the Mortgage Fund is based on the ability of Sterling Pacific to loan money which will provide an adequate and sure return. The corporation has arrangements which allow it to place investment capital in large mortgages on new commercial properties located throughout British Columbia. A number of first mortgages are held on sound residential properties. This assures a good return with maximum security and minimum management or placement costs. As further protection for you, Sterling Pacific has established a reserve fund to the extent of 3½% of all invested capital.

AN INVESTMENT "SAFE AS HOUSES"
The real strength of mortgage investment lies in this fact: A man's desire to keep and protect his real estate is very strong. Hal Malone
LOOKS AT SPORTS

This the day we give money away, tra-la . . .

On a blustery day last October, a group of boys, middle-age division, were playing golf in the Victoria Maple Leafs' annual tournament at Royal Colwood.

FRANK MARIO . . . three of six.

The conversation swung to hockey.

"I'll bet a buck," said Alan J. "Buck" Houle, "Toronto Maple Leafs finish first in the National Hockey League."

"Amen," said Francis Mario, Victoria's presiding steward.

"Hokum," chimed in Keith Olson.

"Sheer nonsense," contributed Vinn Patterson.

"Je ne comprends pas," uttered Douglas Peden.

"Bucky's right," nodded Charlie Smith.

Ultimately the slap-happy sextet dug up a dollar each, wrote down their selections and gave them to Houle for safekeeping. None knew how the others marked their ballots.

This week while cleaning out the Maple Leafs' vault before leaving for the National Hockey League meetings at Montreal, Houle came across the ballots and bets.

Hockey afficionados will recall that at the conclusion of league festivities, the order of finish was Montreal, Chicago, Toronto, Detroit, Boston and New York.

Here's how the "experts" called it:

Mario	Olson	Patterson	Smith	Peden	Houle
Toronto	Montreal	Detroit	Toronto	Montreal	Toronto
Montreal	Toronto	Montreal	Montreal	Detroit	Montreal
Chicago	Detroit	Toronto	Detroit	Toronto	Detroit
Detroit	Chicago	Chicago	Chicago	Chicago	Chicago
Boston	New York	Boston	Boston	New York	Boston
New York	Boston	New York	New York	Boston	New York

That means, sir, that Mario and Patterson with three out of six split the pot?

"Over my shattered skull," Houle said. 'The selections had to be bang on."

So?

"So I'll never laugh at H. Malone's Fearless Forecasts again," Houle said. "At least not loudly. The money? Give it to your favorite charity."

No charity should be more favored than another. Few are more deserving than the "house" at 1450 Elford Street, where people who can help, help people who need it. To the directors of the Retarded Children's Association goes the pot . . .

A source close to a source close to a keyhole says you can bet your wife Victoria Maple Leafs will be in business this fall at the Blanshard concrete pile.

But, quoth the source, this will be a "year of decision" for the Leafs.

Paraphrasing the Chinese laundryman's "no tickee, no laundry," the Leafs will not return in 1967 unless 1966 is the year of happy green fallout—"Lotsa tickee sales—lotsa money."

The Leafs sold 425 season tickets last season. This year the objective is 2,500.

If Portland can peddle 2,500 and finish second in the playoffs, certainly Victoria can find 2,500 loyal and flush faithful goes the reasoning.

"Flush faithful," in this instance, is more than an alliteration.

The gossip vine predicts ticket prices will be hiked 50 cents, straight, place and show.

The precedent was set by the Toronto organization in Rochester. The Carlton Street Moneybags were losing bucks by the bale in Rochester when some genius suggested they hike the price of ducats . . . by 50 cents.

Ever since, Rochester has been rolling in green. Last year's operations resulted in a net profit of 100,000 big ones.

The Toronto heirarchy was delighted with Victoria's artistic success. But winning the Lester Patrick Trophy loses some of its lustre when it costs $70,000.

Success is sweet only when the bank manager calls you "Buck" instead of "Mr. Houle." Or when you don't have to call on big daddy Smythe to bail you out.

Papa Smythe likes his cups, i.e., Lester Patrick, but he especially likes them to runneth over.

JIM RYUN SNAPS . . . . . . HALF-MILE MARK

Record-Wrecker Surprised

TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—Jim Ryun still couldn't believe it today.

Ryun, a 19-year-old freshman from the University of Kansas, smashed the world half-mile record Friday with a 1:44.9 clocking in the U.S. Track and Field Federation's national meet.

"It's hard to believe I broke the record. I didn't think the first quarter was fast enough," said Ryun, who last week missed the world mile record by only one-tenth of a second.

It was a terrific finishing kick Friday that carried the Kansas sensation to the new half-mile mark and a 20-yard victory on Indiana State University's asphalt strip.

The 880 record of 1:45.1 was set by New Zealand's Peter Snell Feb. 3, 1962.

Ryun exploded into a sizzling final 440 lap after running third the first quarter.

Coming down the stretch, he even glanced over his shoulder once at the hopelessly outclassed field.

It was the first concerted half-mile try by Ryun, who previously concentrated on the mile in which he is the world's second fastest behind record-holder Michael Jazy of France.

Last Saturday Ryun ran a mile in 3:53.7 at Compton, Calif., just one-tenth of a second behind Jazy's world mark of 3:53.6.

Ryun set a nonchalant first quarter Friday in which the early pace-maker, John Tillman of Ohio University, was clocked in 52.9.

In the final 440, Ryun stepped up his pace and surged ahead of Tillman and Tom Von Ruden of the Oklahoma State Track Club.

The official splits for Ryun were 53.1 for the first quarter and 50.9 for his final 440. Second in 1:47.9 was Von Ruden.

Who Said Heckling Wife Doesn't Help a Pitcher?

By Associated Press

A wife's heckling didn't hurt Sonny Siebert.

In fact, the Cleveland Indians' righthander thinks it might have given him the first no-hitter in the major leagues this season and Cleveland's first since Bob Feller's in 1951.

Siebert, 29, who said his wife was kidding him about his poor pitching this season, came within two baserunners of a perfect game as the Indians defeated Washington Senators 2-0 in American League action Friday night.

"I told her if you don't get off my back, I'll go out and pitch a no-hitter," he said afterwards.

The Senators didn't get a man on base until the fifth when Dick Nen walked on a 3-2 pitch. Paul Casanova was the only other Senator to get on, reaching first on Chico Salmon's low throw in the eighth.

DIED ON FIRST

Neither runner went any further than first, and Siebert permitted just three balls to leave the infield, the last fly ball by Bob Saverine to Chuck Hinton in left field for the final out of the game.

The victory was Siebert's fifth against three defeats. He was 16-8 last season, his second in the majors.

The no-hitter was the first since Dave Morehead of Boston Red Sox hurled one against Cleveland last Sept. 16.

The only batting support Siebert needed was Leon Wagner's first-inning homer.

In other games, Baltimore Orioles drubbed Boston 9-2, Detroit Tigers defeated New York Yankees 6-2, Minnesota Twins stopped Chicago White Sox 6-2 and Kansas City Athletics edged California Angels 3-2.

ALLOWED FOUR HITS

Baltimore's Wally Bunker had a no-hitter for six innings, but Boston's Jim Gosger led off the seventh by beating out a drag bunt for a single. Bunker wound up with a four-hitter and also drove in two runs with a double. Andy Etchebarren and Russ Snyder added two RBIs each for the Orioles.

Jake Wood and Norm Cash hit successive homers in the first inning, triggering Detroit to its sixth straight victory. Hank Aguirre scattered eight hits, two of them New York homers by Clete Boyer and Joe Pepitone, in posting his first complete game of the season.

SANDY WINS AGAIN

Sandy Koufax, who numbers relief pitchers among his favorite people, keeps giving them the cold shoulder.

The Los Angeles southpaw breezed to his eighth straight complete-game victory Friday night, subduing San Francisco on four hits as the Dodgers trimmed the Giants 6-1 and climbed past them into first place in the National League race.

Koufax hasn't needed any help from the bullpen since May 5 while leading a Dodger charge from sixth place and overtaking Juan Marichal of the Giants for the major league pitching lead. Koufax now is 11-1 with a 1.40 earned run average. Marichal is 10-2 with a 1.70 ERA.

Last year Koufax completed 27 starts, tops in the league for a left-hander since 1921.

Sandy, however, has the deepest respect for relievers.

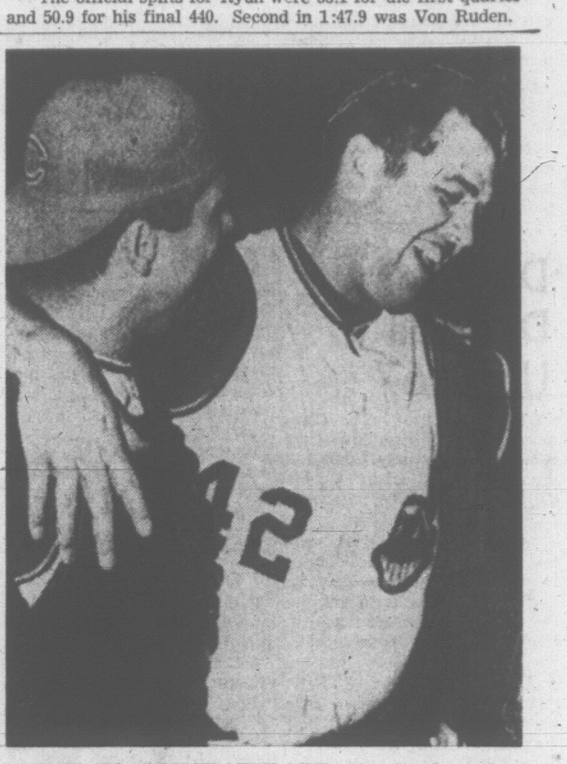
They are his biggest argument against the likelihood of a 30-victory season—an achievement he appears to be courting again this season with his best getaway ever.

GIVES HIS REASON

"Those kind of records are all in the past," he has said. "The reason is simple. Relief pitchers are true specialists and you can't blame a manager for going to his bullpen."

Dizzy Dean was the last pitcher to win 30-32 years ago. Hal Newhouser won 29 in 1944, Robin Roberts won 28 in 1952 and Don Newcombe captured 27 in 1956. Koufax captured 27 in 1956. Koufax was a 26-game winner last season.

Elsewhere Friday night, Atlanta Braves ran their winning streak to seven with an 8-2 romp over Pittsburgh Pirates, Houston Astros nipped Chicago Cubs 1-0 in 10 innings, St. Louis Cardinals outscored Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 and New York Mets blanked Cincinnati Reds 5-0.



FIRST TO CONGRATULATE Cleveland pitcher Sonny Siebert (right) after Sonny had pitched no-hit victory Friday night against Washington Senators was catcher Joe Azcue. Siebert blanked Senators 2-0 with first no-hitter of major league baseball season. (AP Wirephoto.)

AGAINST SHAMROCKS

Marsh Predicts Brighter Black

Victoria Shamrocks may find Pete Black a tougher customer at Memorial Arena tonight when they tangle with Pete and his Vancouver mates for the third time this week.

Black had his Inter-City Lacrosse League scoring lead trimmed to three points over clubmate Sid Warick and Coquitlam's Mike Gates as he was held to two goals and an assist in two victories over the Rocks.

However, Vancouver coach Bobby Marsh expects Black to be buzzing better tonight.

"Pete had a groin injury and couldn't make any quick turns," Marsh said after his club had tripped the Irish 8-4 here Wednesday. "He'll be a lot stronger Saturday."

Black has accumulated 32 points on 21 goals and 11 assists for his three-point bulge over Warick (18 and 11) and Gates (16 and 13).

ANOTHER WEEK

Ranjit Dillon, idle this week and expected to be out of action with a dislocated toe for at least another week, still leads the Victoria sniping brigade and hold down fourth place with 13 goals and 14 assists for 27 points.

Dillon is followed by last year's scoring champion Paul Parnell of New Westminster (26 points), Fred Usselman, Coquitlam (23) and Paul Parnell of Westminster, who had a five-point splurge Thursday to tie Coquitlam's Alex Carey for sixth at 21 points.

Victoria coach Bert Bertoia, hoping to come up with a system to step up his club's scoring punch while keeping a halter on Black, expects to have big Bill Munroe back tonight from a bout with the flu.

FORBES SPARKLES

Shamrocks will again be counting heavily on goalie Barry Forbes, who has been having a standout season. Forbes started the week with a league-leading shots-stopped average of .768 and blocked 56 of 73 shots in the two tussles with Vancouver for a two-game mark of .767.

Missing from the lineup of the eager and win-hungry Rocks tonight will be Billy Gray, at Calgary to attend a wedding. Bertoia has called up juniors Ron Zilke and Tom Churchill for tonight's game, which starts at 8.

HOWE HOPING TO PLAY 'AT LEAST TWO MORE'

MONCTON, N.B. (UPI)—Gordie Howe, one of the three men ever to play 20 years in the National Hockey League, says he wants to play at least two more years in the big time.

The Detroit Red Wing star right-winger told reporters he would like to play "As long as wanted by the Red Wings. If I have a good year in 1966-67, I'll be back for sure in 67-68."

The 39-year-old Floral, Sask., native is on a Maritime tour as part of his job as advisor to a national department store chain.

The other 20-year men in the NHL were Dit Clapper of the Boston Bruins and Bill Gadsby of Detroit, a teammate of Howe's.

Player's Pal British King

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) Bobby Cole, 18-year-old protege of Gary Player, defeated Ronnie Shade of Scotland 3 and 2 today for the British Amateur golf title in a final round cut to 18 holes because of midweek rains.

Cole, never behind the abbreviated final, started his winning surge on the 14th hole by canning a 12-foot putt for a birdie 4 and a 1-up edge.

He took the 15th with a par and closed out the match on the 16th when Shade, a British Walker Cup player, drove into a trap and came out poorly.

In the semi-final over the 7,059-yard Carnoustie course, where par is 71, Cole defeated Henri De Lamaze of Paris 2 and 1 and Shade eliminated Gordon Cosh of Scotland by the same score.

Rains in midweek had washed out one-half day's play, and officials cut the final round to 18 holes for the first time since 1895.

Cole gained the semi-finals by defeating 34-year-old Charlie Green, a former British Walker Cup player, one-up.

In the other quarter-final matches, Cosh defeated Bill Murray of Scotland, 2 and 1; Shade, defeated Allan Hall of cotland, 3 and 1; Lamaze, 11-time winner of the French amateur, downed Dudley Millenstead of England 2 and 1.

Blue Boys Upset In Softball Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two games were played Friday in the first day of the three-day Canadian Northwest Invitational Softball tournament in Vancouver.

Vancouver Blue Boys were upset by Vancouver O'Keefes 7-3 in the opening game and defending champion Seattle Federals blanked Vancouver Carlings 2-0 in the second game.

Britain Leads Tennis Series

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The tennis girls of the United States trailed Britain 2-1 in the seven-match Wightman Cup series Friday after a gruelling day on Wimbledon's sun-baked turf.

The British underdogs nosed ahead in a doubles match.

Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones, Britain's No. 1, paired with Virginia Wade in a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Mrs. Billie Jean Moffit King and Janie Albert.

Earlier, Mrs. Jones defeated Nancy Richey of Dallas Tex., 2-6, 6-4, 6-3 and Mrs. King outsmarted Miss Wade 6-2, 6-3.

'WE'RE NOT CRYING'

Mounties Torrid But Crowds Cool

VANCOUVER (CP)—The hottest team in professional baseball is being chilled at the gate by poor crowds

Vancouver Mounties, riding the crest of a three-week victory drive, are playing nip-and-tuck for first place in the Pacific Coast League's Western Division.

Seattle's Tom Burgmeier cooled off the Mounties slightly Friday night, allowing only two hits as the Angels beat Vancouver 3-0. The loss snapped a five-game winning streak by the Mounties.

Through Friday the Mounties had won seven of their last nine games, 11 of 14, and 17 of their last 24. But average attendance at Capilano Stadium was just over 1,400 and the club needs about 2,500 in the 9,056-seat stadium to break even at the gate.

This year's low game attendance was 460, the high 3,418. Last year's average was about 2,000.

"It just has to be the poor weather," said Mountie general manager Lew Matlin of the cool and rainy nights.

"We're not crying, but just look at this team. We have hot pitching, hot batting, and an over-all enjoyable club to watch."

Matlin's weather woes have been compounded by the Stanley Cup, one of the worst brawls in baseball history, and the slighting of Vancouver as a site in National Hockey League expansion.

"We opened our home season on a Stanley Cup playoff night. Sport fans were naturally at home watching television," Matlin said in an interview.

"We had that brawl which sent Seattle Angel catcher Merritt Ranew to hospital for brain surgery, and got our Santiago Rosario suspended for a year. He was just rounding into shape as one of our best outfielders.

"That incident hurt us at the gate, hurt team morale, and lost us a good player.

PROBLEMS START EARLY

"But even before the season started, we had problems because of hockey.

"The day the NHL decided to bypass this town in expansion was a dark one for all professional sport, especially as far as Vancouver fans were concerned. They were disgusted.

"And it happened just when our pre-season ticket sales should have begun pouring in."

Rawnsley Chills Sooke Comeback

Rick Rawnsley, a winner in his first and only start, proved to be the Senior Men's Softball League stopper Friday night.

Rawnsley came in to nail down the last out at Heywood Avenue Park and preserve Red Lions 7-6 victory over Sooke.

Victory moved Lions into a tie for first with the idle Carlings. Sooke, Luckies and McLarens all are another half-game off the pace.

Lions led 7-3 at one stage but Sooke almost pulled it out Friday. Sooke scored three runs and had the tying run on third base with two out when Rawnsley came on in relief and got rival Larry Jay to pop up harmlessly.

Ernie Savoie paced Lions' nine-hit attack by connecting for a home run.

Yanks Trade Bill Stafford To Athletics

DETROIT (AP) — New York Yankees acquired Fred Talbot, a right-handed pitcher, and catcher Bill Bryan from Kansas City Friday in a swap for pitchers Gil Blanco, Bill Stafford and outfielder Roger Repoz.

The deal, the 19th between the two clubs, was a straight player swap with no cash involved.

Stafford, 27, just recalled from the minors, had been scheduled to face Detroit in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader. Talbot will take his place.

Talbot, 24, had a 4-4 record with Kansas City this season after compiling a 10-12 mark last year.

Repoz, 25, was batting .349, but had been at bat only 43 times in 37 games.

Hart and Weston Take Foursomes

Mrs. S. Weston and Mrs. C. Hart won the Margaret Todd Foursomes event in women's play at Victoria Golf Club with Mrs. J. Todd and Mrs. W. Thompson in the runnner-up position.

BETTING SUSPENDED . . . . . . IN SOUTH AFRICA

Racing Favorite Shot

DURBAN, South Africa Reuters)—An unknown gunman shot and injured one of South Africa's best race horses Friday as it was being taken out for exercise.

The marksman picked off Sea Cottage, 13-to-8 favorite to win the £15,000 ($45,000) Durban July Handicap, from a string of horses on their way to the track here.

The bullet was fired from the top of a bridge as Sea Cottage passed underneath. It penetrated deep in a hindleg and left the horse lame and shocked.

A Durban Turf Club steward's report said the bullet, believed fired from a .22-calibre rifle, would not be removed at once.

But it was hoped the injury would not stop Sea Cottage running in the handicap July 2, South Africa's richest race.

Betting on the race was suspended here following word of the shooting and it was expected other betting centres would follow suit. Police took charge of investigations.

Sea Cottage has won 11 out of 12 races and one Johannesburg bookmaker called it the hottest favorite he has known for a race in South Africa.

Last Putt Does It

Oak Bay's John Sturdy and Peter McIntyre made their first defence a successful one by defeating senior button challengers Jack Betts and John Martin with the last putt on the 18th green at Uplands Golf Club.

STAMPS SIGN TWO

United Ready To Put an End To Long Wait

Victoria United players went about their business with an air of quiet confidence today as they prepared to write the final chapter in what could be the comeback story of the year.

The Pacific Coast Soccer League championship goes on the line Sunday when United faces Columbus in Vancouver's Callister Park.

A Victoria victory in the sudden-death playoff would provide a crowning climax to a season that started out in disappointing fashion.

At mid-term, United languished in sixth place in the eight-team league.

CAUGHT FIRE

Then the team guided by manager Scotty Magee and Frank Grealy suddenly jelled. Confidence and spirit restored, United launched an offence that carried them into the playoffs with "room to spare."

United has lost only twice in its last 10 games. Goalkeeper Barry Sadler recorded six shutouts, including a 3-0 semi-final victory over the defending champion Firefighters, in the team's last eight games.

The club will head into Sunday's playoff supported by more than 100 fans who have chartered three buses. But missing will be players Jim Schulz and Tom Locke.

The lanky Schulz was ordered out of town on army duty while Locke incurred a suspension following a roughing incident in the semi-finals.

LENGTHY FAMINE

Otherwise, the Uniteds are ready. That includes Sadler, Tony Quinn, Don McIntosh, Bill Hamilton, George Hamilton, Dave Stothard, Bert Soutar, Ike MacKay, Jim Jamieson, Peter Gooding, Dunc McCaig, Harold Holroyd, Len Anderson and junior reserve Dave Swanson.

Bolstering Columbus' bid will be Tony Canta and Errol Crossan, ready to report for duty after recovering from injuries.

The last time Victoria claimed the PCSL championship was in 1952. But this year's United team is confident it can put an end to the 14-year famine this Sunday.

ECHOS' BATS SOUNDED LIKE THUNDER

Victoria Molson's Vicettes may be trembling slightly as they await the opening of their 1966 senior women's softball season.

They'll be going against Nanaimo Echos in a doubleheader at Central Park Sunday, playing at 2 and 6 p.m.

Echos supplied the reason for apprehension when they unloaded the heavy lumber in their last start and crushed Nanaimo Rockets 38-6.

Coach Wally Yeamans is in the process of rebuilding his Victoria Club after losing several of last year's key players to Vancouver Texacos.

STARTS MONDAY

Triples Test For Bowlers

Mixed triples competition for the Whittaker Cup will be held next week on greens of the Lake Hill and Oak Bay lawn bowling clubs.

Thirty-two rinks are entered in the annual event, which starts Monday at 6:45 p.m. with the following draw:

Section 1—W. Wallis, L. Price, J. Clegg, C. Hastings.

Section 2—H. Trapp, J. McGregor, W. E. Turner, A. Donald.

Section 3—P. Hawes, J. Hobbs, A. Cameron, P. Gibbons.

Section —G. Dean, A. Hayes, C. Hodgson, J. McAllister.

Section 5—A. Findlay, J. Wise, S. Barr, A. Drew.

Section 6—A. Dickie, T. deBourcier, J. Green, A. King.

Section 7—W. Turner, J. Ritchie, F. Derick, K. McConell.

Section 8—W. Gibson, C. Wood, J. Carpenter, H. Renfrew.

Sections 1 to 4 play Monday and Thursday at Lake Hill; sections 1 and 2 play Tuesday at Oak Bay; sections 3 and 4 play Wednesday at Oak Bay; sections 5 and 6 play Monday at Oak Bay; sections 7 and 8 play Thursday at Oak Bay; and sections 5 to 8 play Tuesday and Wednesday at Lake Hill.

Doubleheader Prize To Chinook Members

The Chinook Club executive didn't think the water would be quite that deep when they dipped into a trophy-awarding campaign.

Following a pattern established by the parent Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, the Chinook Club decided recently to award a monthly trophy to the angler weighing in the largest salmon each month.

Instead of one, the Chinook Club wound up with two winners for May.

C. J. Rose and R. E. Braidwood both weighed in springs weighing an identical 21:01 to claim the first silverware offering.

The regular VSIAA monthly trophy was claimed by Al Price, with a 25-pound, 10-ounce salmon. Mrs. V. Post (17:03) took the ladies' prize while John Gordon (14:14) was the junior winner.

Hidden-weight winners were Al Davies, Tommy Chow, Bill Hollick and Mrs. B. Wakeford.

YOU HAD A VERY FLAT SWING WHEN YOU FIRST CAME TO BRITAIN, GARY...
THAT'S RIGHT, TOM. I WAS SO SCARED OF HOOKING, I DEVELOPED A SLICER'S GRIP WHICH MADE ME SWING VERY FLAT
THIS IS HOW I USED TO SWING, "LAYING THE CLUB OFF" LIKE SO MANY WEEKENDERS. IN OTHER WORDS THE CLUB IS NOT POINTING TO THE TARGET AT THE END OF THE BACKSWING
ALSO, MY LEFT WRIST IS ON TOP OF THE CLUB
I CORRECTED MY SWING SIMPLY BY GRIPPING THE CLUB CORRECTLY WITH THE TWO "V'S" POINTING TO MY RIGHT SHOULDER
NOW WHEN I TAKE THE CLUB BACK, IT POINTS TO WHERE I AM AIMING, AND MY LEFT WRIST IS UNDERNEATH THE CLUB
POINTS TO TARGET
ADMITTEDLY, A SHORT MAN SWINGS FLATTER THAN A TALL MAN... BUT I DEFINITELY USED TO BE A LITTLE TOO FLAT!

Victorians Named To National Team

Two Victoria players—Nancy Hill and Ruth Trelawny—have been selected to the Canadian national women's field hockey team that will tour Jamaica from July 14 to July 25.

Two other Vancouver Island players, Pat Clarke of Cobble Hill and Marguerite Bradford of Duncan, have also been named to the touring team, along with Gill Thomas, a former Victorian now living in Vancouver.

Vancouver's Gwen Brockman, captain of the 1965 Canadian team, will again be captain.

Completing the squad will be Joyce Harris and Judy Sewell, Vancouver; Helen Cameron, Brenda Robson and Abbey Ferry, Toronto; Sheila Kerin, Montreal, and Susan Jarrett, Agincourt, Ont.

TRACK AND FIELD

Zone Finals Set Sunday

Victoria Track and Field Association and the Royal Canadian Legion will combine forces Sunday to stage the Legion zone finals at Work Point barracks.

Events start at 1 p.m. and winners will earn places in the Island track and field finals at Nanaimo, July 30.

Among the aces in Sunday's meet will be Canadian cross-country champion John Cliff, who is favored to win the two-mile race; sprinters Terry Ryan and Dave Close, high-jumper Bill McCormick and miler Steve Hume.

Distaff stars will include sprinters Colleen Davies and Carol Kitchen, and discus-tosser Connie Barker.

THREE SHARE LEAD

Pros Find Par Elusive Thing

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP)—Three birdies on the first four holes coming home Friday allowed Phil Rodgers to tie Fred Marti and Jim Ferrier for the first-round lead in the $100,000 Buick Open golf tournament.

Each fired a two-under-par 70 and the score was the highest opening-round leading total since Billy Casper and Gay Brewer shot the same score in the Tournament of Champions eight weeks ago.

The 7,280-yard Warwick Hills course, longest on the pro circuit, was soggy from all-day rain Thursday which forced a one-day delay in the first round. Northerly winds of 15 miles an hour swept the course most of the day and helped dry it, giving afternoon players a break.

ZARLEY CLOSE

But only six others—Kermit Zarley, Julius Boros, Sam Snead, Al Gieberger, Dave Marr and Roger Ginsberg—were able to break par. All had 71s, Zarley and Boros were the only players to turn the trick in the morning.

Defending champion Tony Lema, seeking his third straight title here, zoomed eight strokes off the pace with a 78.

Arnold Palmer appeared to be making a charge at the leaders when he put together three straight birdies to go two under par. But he hit his tee shot on the par-three 17th in back of a scoreboard, hit into a trap and three-putted from about eight feet for a six.

Palmer also missed an 18-foot eagle putt on the 14th and settled for an opening-round score of 73.

CROTHERS ON TOUR

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., one of the world's top half-milers, will compete in at least two meets in Kenya this summer.

'God Is Dead' Believer Resigns

BISHOP GOWER
. . . "all I can say"

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Anglican minister whose remarks that God is dead caused a furore within his church has resigned as chaplain of the University of British Columbia.

Rev. Alan Jackson said in an interview this week he resigned voluntarily and no pressure was brought to bear by his ecclesiastical superiors and the resignation is not the result of the controversy over his views.

But, he added, he believes there has been pressure on the superiors to ask for his resignation.

Mr. Jackson said he will devote a year of intense thought to the God-is-Dead theology.

He said the Anglican News, B.C. church publication, printed "a great number" of letters urging his removal from the university. He thought there were pressures for his resignation from lay people and the clergy. He has also received letters commending his views.

Mr. Jackson said in an interview printed in the university student newspaper Ubyssey most conceptions of God now are obsolete for all practical purposes God was dead and Christians must live without him.

The Anglican News reprinted the article.

Ubyssey also reprinted a lecture by Mr. Jackson in which he said in contemporary understanding God is dead because man no longer makes any reference to him in life or art.

Since February issues of the Anglican News have been filled with letters criticizing or supporting the minister.

Mr. Jackson's resignation is effective at the end of July. His superiors said in interviews the resignation was accepted but no requested. They declined further comment.

Bishop Godfrey P. Gower of the diocese of New Westminster said: "He sent in his resignation to the provincial synod and it was accepted and that is all I am in a position to say about Alan Jackson."

Archbishop Harold E. Sexton of British Columbia said from Victoria:

"We understand that if a man resigns he knows his own mind and we have no alternative but to accept it."

Mr. Jackson said his awareness of the meaning of the God-is-Dead movement was increased as a result of the outcry caused by his remarks.

"I am resigning because I really believe I am on to something. These ideas are not half-baked. They are pointing to something very important and significant — and they are not sophistry."

He said he is not leaving the church.

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

U.S. Minister To Open Series Sunday Morning

Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, retired in Victoria, will give the first in a series of seven sermons in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday at 11 a.m.

"He is a noted preacher and we are honored that he has accepted my invitation to give us this course of sermons," says Dean Brian Whitlow.

Dr. Salmon was formerly Rector of Holy Trinity, Philadelphia.

There will be no sermon at evensong in the Cathedral. Instead, the congregation will go to Memorial Hall to hear reports from delegates to the recent diocesan synod.

Reaping What We Sow will be the message of Rev. Lloyd Mackey in Parkdale Evangelical Free Church, 3281 Harriet Road, Sunday at 11:15 a.m.

Mrs. Tory Vincent will be soloist.

At the 7 p.m. service, Pastor Mackey will speak on Approach to Life — the first of a series on Paul's letter to Philemon, who was a Christian slave-owner in Asia Minor.

Music in the evening will be given by the Central Baptist male quartette.

* * *

Rev. Norman K. Archer will give the seventh of a series of sermons on Abraham in Emmanuel Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m., his title being Angels Unawares.

In the evening he will continue his series on The Early Church.

The choir will sing How Great Thou Art, by request, and Master the Tempest Is Raging.

* * *

Paul Wharf will sing Jesu Saviour Pilot Me in First United Church Sunday at 9:30 and 11 a.m. The choir, directed by W. H. Gregory, will sing As Thy Days, So Shall Thy Strength Be.

The 11 a.m. service will be broadcast over CKDA.

At the evening worship in the chapel, Rev. Marvin Fowler will speak on Doubt: a Tunnel to Despair or a Doorway to Faith?

* * *

I Believe in Immortality will be the subject of Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, in Victoria Truth Centre Sunday at 11 a.m.

Her evening subject is The Doctrine of Humanity.

There will be a healing ministry in the church on Tuesday at 3 p.m.

Sunday school pupils will receive awards and promotions at a family service at Garden City United Church at 10 a.m.

Also, at 2:15, the annual Sunday school and church picnic will be held at Camp Pringle, Shawnigan Lake.

The anthem will be Bless the Lord O My Soul.

At the 11:15 service at Wilkinson Road United Church, Rev. H. R. Whitmore will continue his sermons on How Can I Find God by asking the question: "Are we hiding from Him in our familiarity with religion?"

* * *

In Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning, the Sanctuary Choir, conducted by Frank Tupman, will sing All Hail the Power of Jesu's Name, with William McNeil at the organ.

In the evening the choir will present the anthem Be Ye All of One Mind.

* * *

Morning and evening worship in St. Andrew's Presbyterian will be conducted by Rev. Robin Salters, assistant minister.

At the evening worship, Rev. A. M. Beaton of Knox Presbyterian Church, Victoria, will speak on Man's Chief End.

Music by the choir, directed by C. C. Warren will include the male chorus How Great Thou Art and the anthems All Hail the Power of Jesu's Name, I Would Be Like Jesus and Bless the Lord, O My Soul.

* * *

The Gladness of Giving will be the subject of Rev. Robert Holmes in Central Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

At the evening service, starting at 7 p.m., he will preach on Space Age Theology.

* * *

Robert Hall will sing My Task in Oak Bay United Church Sunday at 9:30 and 11 a.m. The choir, directed by Robert Kroeger, will sing O Light of Life.

Rev. Alexander Calder preaches on What's Ahead?

PREACHING in Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning is Rev. Albert T. King, 79, father of the minister, Rev. Albert E. King. His subject will be The Holy Catholic Church. Born in England, Mr. King Sr., was sent to Newfoundland as a medical missionary by the British Congregational Church and later worked in New Brunswick. He was the last minister in Canada to be ordained by the Congregational Church — in May, 1925. He joined the United Church the following year.

ROCK OF AGES male quartette of Vancouver will sing at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday services in the Alliance Church, 1029 Yates. The quartette has sung on radio and at church gatherings up and down the coast for many years. Rev. Ted Chapman will give the fourth in a series of sermons on Building the Church.

TEXAN HERE TO LEAD CHURCH CAMPAIGN

The Church of Christ will conduct an evangelical campaign throughout Greater Victoria from Sunday to June 24.

Theme of the campaign will be Power for Today.

Carl Spain from Abilene, Texas, will be the theme speaker and he will be supported by 65 workers from Tennessee, Texas, Oregon and British Columbia.

Thirty-two teen-agers from Texas have bought their own bus in order to travel to Victoria and join in the campaign.

Native of Victoria Named to Cathedral

Rev. Richard James Caldwell, a native of Victoria, has been appointed to the staff at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, Victoria.

He was ordained priest by Bishop Remi De Roo on May 19 last.

Educated by the Christian Brothers of Ireland at St. Louis College, Father Caldwell entered the Seminary of Christ the King, Mission City, in 1957.

There he completed four years of philosophy and one year of theology before transferring to St. Joseph's Seminary, St. Albert, Alta.

After his ordination, Father Caldwell was entertained at a dinner reception given by the Sisters of St. Ann.

On Sunday, May 22, he offered his first solemn Mass, assisted by Rev. Carl T. Albury and Rev. William Kennedy.

The same afternoon a reception was given in his honor by the Catholic Women's League of St. Andrew's Cathedral.

60 ATTEND RETREAT

Some 60 members of Victoria Seventh-Day Adventist Church are attending a spiritual retreat at Englishman River provincial campsite this weekend.

In charge of the program and arrangements is Mrs. John Penner.

At the Adventist Church this morning, Pastor S. G. White spoke on The Ministry and Gifts of The Holy Spirit.

Noted Diplomat Dies

Nine Canadians Going To Talks In Switzerland

TORONTO Nine Canadians will participate in the World Conference on Church and Society at Geneva, Switzerland, July 12-26, at be attended by 400 social scholars and theologians from every continent.

It will mark the first worldwide effort to restudy Christian social responsibility since the Oxford World Conference on Church, Community and State in 1937.

The delegates will seek to determine the role of the churches in the global struggle for social justice, human rights, peace, and the equitable distribution of the earth's resources.

Proposals formulated will be sent to member churches of the World Council of Churches for consideration and appropriate action.

The United Church of Canada will be represented by Miss Florence Philpot of the Vanier Family Life Institute, Ottawa; Willson Woodside, national director of the United Nations Association, Toronto, and Rev. Wilfred C. Lockhart, principal of United College, Winnipeg.

Canon Maurce P. Wilkinson, general secretary of the department of social service and Arnold Edinborough, publisher of Saturday Night, both of Toronto, have been delegated by the Anglican Church of Canada, while Rev. A. J. Gowland, Toronto, secretary of the board of evangelism and social action will represent the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

CATHOLIC OBSERVERS

Roman Catholic observers at the conference will include Rev. William Ryan, assistant director of the English-speaking department of social action, Ottawa. Recent developments in Roman Catholic social thinking will be interpreted at the conference by Canon Charles Moeller of the University of Louvain, Belgium.

Rev. Martin Luther King, the American civil rights leader and Nobel Prize winner, will preach at an ecumenical service of worship in the Cathedral of St. Pierre, Geneva, July 17.

Age of Shock Claims Cleric

This is an age of shock.

"People seem more interested in shocking others than telling them something worthwhile," said Rev. Albert E. King, preaching on God: Alive or Dead? in Metropolitan United Church Sunday.

"I believe God is Truth and wherever you find Truth you find God. Truth is as alive today as it ever was—and always will be.

"That is my answer to those who say God is dead."

Luxury Yacht Leads to Camp

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $340,000 yacht slid down the ways here recently — another chapter in the story of an organization dedicated to bringing Christian faith to teen-agers.

The 126-foot, twin-diesel Malibu Princess will be used to take members of Young Life of Canada and United States to Malibu, the organization's "resort" at Princess Louisa Inlet, 150 miles north of here.

During the summer the yacht will be used to ferry 2,500 Young Life members who come from Washington, British Columbia and Alberta to the resort for a week's vacation.

The yacht and vacation are the more spectacular features of an organization that quietly works among high school students in Vancouver, Victoria, Prince George, Calgary, Winnipeg and Toronto and in the United States, France, Germany, Mexico and Brazil.

Cliff Erickson of Vancouver, Western Canada regional director, describes Young Life as a "little finger of the church" which focuses its attention on a Christian message relevant to teen-agers.

Basically the non-denominational, non-profit organization seeks to bring high school students a Christian faith that will give them a foundation throughout their lives.

It avoids pressure, works with churches but not in them, and goes to the teen-agers rather than wait for them to come to it.

It hopes to help youths become "integrated" persons with a strong Christian faith, accepting their responsibility in society and belonging to the church of their choice.

It employs a full-time staff of university graduates and uses many volunteers, all of whom understand that it may be many years before an individual responds to their program.

Mr. Erickson says staff members seek to meet students at schools and at such functions as football games and even in such places as pool halls.

If rapport is established, a youth will be invited to attend Young Life meetings where there are songs of faith — "the songs don't swing but they're pretty fast" — and short messages from leaders.

From that beginning a youth may go to "campaigner" meetings in which small groups hold discussions.

"We've learned something over the years," says Mr. Erickson. "You don't have success by having spectacular programs saying "come to us." You've got to go the kids and get to know them as people.

"We have a tremendous "in" with kids and treat them as young adults. Our job is mainly communication, breaking down barriers . . . you don't do that by sticking a piece of paper in their hands."

Young Life is the outgrowth of efforts 26 years ago of a young Presbyterian divinity student. While attending university in Dallas, Tex., Jim Rayburn was assigned to develop a youth program.

He rapidly came to the conclusion he must meet teen-agers at their schools. He found they were willing to go to the homes of members of congregations but, initially, not to the churches.

EDUCATION COMES LATE

End of Era Marked At Four High Schools

Friday night's recognition ceremonies in four Victoria schools marked the end of an era: students participating were the last ones to complete their education under the old system.

Next year's classes will be the first trained completely under the new curriculum that has been gradually introduced during the past few years.

The recognition ceremony at Victoria Senior Secondary was a record size for this area — 422 students. The occasion also marked the end of a personal era for Miss Norma Douglas. She is retiring as music teacher after 25 years in which she trained the choir for each graduation and recognition ceremony.

Mount Douglas School honored four students. Keith Thompson won the citizenship medal, Edward Lord was judged top scholar, and Janice Newton and Stephen Hume shared the sportsmanship trophy.

At Mount View School the student of the year was Peter Lawrie. Other awards were: Joan Hodgkinson, citizenship; Judy Harper, girls' sportsmanship; Dave Hutchings, boys' sportsmanship; Jacqueline Gavin, achievement; Roger Barnett, junior boys' sports; Ross Swaton, senior boy's sports; Dierdre Ogden, junior girls' sports; and Heather Wood, senior girls' sports.

Awards at the other schools will be announced later.

B.C. WILL DEFY OTTAWA WITH RIVER LOG DRIVE

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—A clash between the federal and provincial governments is threatened in north central British Columbia Monday over log drives on the Stellako River.

The federal government has forbidden log movement on the river because of the danger of damage to salmon spawning grounds. The provincial government plans to start a log drive Monday in defiance of the order.

Provincial Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said in Vancouver the province plans Monday to start a drive of logs seized from Fraser Lake Sawmills Ltd. The government will sell the logs to recover money owed by the company for stumpage fees.

W. R. Hourston, Pacific area director for the federal fisheries department, said studies have shown log drives on the river are harmful to salmon spawning beds and stocks.

Fishermen and conservation groups have also protested the use of the river by logging companies.

Federal Fisheries Minister Robichaud earlier this week banned all drives on the river.

Mr. Williston said drives have been conducted on the river on an uncontrolled basis for between 20 and 30 years. He said the matter has reached a point of principle.

"If it is so detrimental there shouldn't be any fish left in the river," he said.

"Rivers are a provincial resource and a provincial responsibility."

Bert Leboe, Social Credit MP for Cariboo, said in his home at Prince George the report by fisheries staff members is "almost entirely pure nonsense."

"It is full of assumptions," he said.

"It suggests logs running over gravel bars will ruin spawning grounds but every year the ice goes out at low water over those same bars. And the log drive is carried out at high water."

Remanded for Trial

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jack J. Belleau, 33, charged with the non-capital murder of Mrs. Madeleine Leflar, 43, May 30, was pronounced fit for trial in magistrate's court Thursday. The unemployed painter was remanded to June 16 without plea.

Pearson Fan Club Drive Continues

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal front bench is trying to boost membership in the Lester B. Pearson fan club.

Within a week three ministers have gone out of their way to declare that the prime minister is the man needed for a country going through troubled times.

Transport Minister Pickersgill started the drive last Saturday in Corner Brook, Nfld., and Finance Minister Sharp followed up with a short speech in the Commons Thursday night.

The latest was Health Minister MacEachen who said in a speech at Listowel, Ont., Friday night that history will show Mr. Pearson "is and has been the right man at the right place at the right time."

One report has it that the government decided to back Mr. Pearson's continued leadership in a series of speeches to offset criticism within and outside the party. Some recent newspaper editorials suggested the parliamentary situation would be improved if Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker both retired.

Other sources say there was no cabinet decision and that the string of speeches is a coincidence. But two contained similarities, with both Mr. Pickersgill and Mr. Maceachen talking about the Liberal leader's "courageous and constructive qualities."

'THEY BUTCHER THEM'

Mr. Pickersgill's speech began with his assessment of the historic behavior of Conservatives—"the moment they decide their leaders are failures, they start to butcher them."

This time, he said, there is a new "propaganda" line that the only way to save Parliament and restore good government is to get rid of both leaders.

"If the Tories alone took this line, no one would pay any attention. Unfortunately, there are a number of gullible Liberals who seem to be swallowing it, too."

The transport minister said Mr. Diefenbaker is destructive and that the Conservatives want to get rid of him.

"They believe it will be easier to do so, if they can destroy our leader too."

In the commons Thursday night Mr. Sharp said there have been attempts outside the House to create disunity in the Liberal party by trying to undermine confidence in the prime minister.

Mr. Sharp, often listed as one of the candidates for the leadership when Mr. Pearson retires, said there is greater confidence in Mr. Pearson now than at any time since he took office.

'ALL BACK PEARSON'

He said all Liberal MPs want Mr. Pearson to remain leader "as long as he feels he has the strength and the patience to continue.

"There will never be any revolt in this party designed to unseat him."

Mr. MacEachen said that in these "troubled and unsettled times", there are persons, even in the Liberal party, who view a change of leadership as an easy and simple solution to Canada's problems.

Presidents Johnson of the U.S. and de Gaulle of France were considered strong leaders, yet their countries were undergoing serious difficulties.

He said Canadians are fortunate to have a leader able to see the "varied and often sharply opposing aspects" of the country's problems.

"A weaker man, who might be stronger in terms of bombast and rhetoric, would only have served to widen the chasm between this nation's various groups, be they geographical, cultural, social or economic."

External Affairs Minister Martin also has endorsed Mr. Pearson and disclaimed any ambition for the leadership.

Informants say top Liberals are worried that dissident elements might challenge or criticize Mr. Pearson's leadership at the party's national convention here Oct. 10-12.

Wherever a family might be traveling...
Sands can serve! In case of emergency, a collect call to Sands will accomplish three things:
1. Relieve the family of all details.
2. Eliminate extra expense.
3. Enable the family to deal with Victoria friends instead of strangers.

★ Times Television Section ★★

The Outer Fringe In Extremist Politics Under Scrutiny

Extremism, right and left, will be examined by NBC News in a full hour colorcast, Politics: The Outer Fringe, Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

The program will go across the U.S. to show the political shadings of both right and left of centre, including the non-partisan committees for civic responsibility, which are among the organizations and individuals created to fight extremism.

With extremism becoming a serious problem in various parts of the country, more and more committees for civic responsibility are organizing. The special will show some of these committees at work, including the Maryland Committee for Civic Responsibility, of Baltimore, a newly organized group, and the National Committee for Civic Responsibility, of Cleveland, which has been organized since 1963 and is now in the midst of a battle with extremism.

Europe on Show

There's something completely new on the way as dazzling stars, top music, rollicking comedy and a whole host of fresh new variety come across the Atlantic to your television screen tonight at 7:30 p.m. when Channels 7 and 12 present the premiere showing of Continental Showcase. (This program will replace the Jackie Gleason Show for the summer season.)

This new, European-produced program will feature only the tops in European entertainers. Each week, Jim Backus, a man of sharp wit and great humor, will start the wheels spinning, as he hosts this lively musical-variety series. (Jim Backus also stars in "Gilligan's Island.")

Face the Nation

Gov. George W. Romney of Michigan will be interviewed on Face the Nation Sunday, at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

Romney, who has been prominently mentioned as a possible GOP presidential candidate in 1968, recently announced that he would be a candidate for a third term as governor.

CBS News correspondent Martin Agronsky will lead the questioning, with two other newsmen.

Teen-agers' Show

Recently, CBC-TV's Through the Eyes of Tomorrow received a visit from Guy Boucher of the popular French network teen-ager's show Jeunesse Oblige. On Sunday, at 2 p.m. on Channel 2, Eyes of Tomorrow co-host Paul Saltzman returns the visit in Montreal.

Paul will talk to Guy about the Jeunesse Oblige approach to information and entertainment for young people, and the two will watch a show in progress.

On the same edition hostess report on the work of the Elizabeth Fry Society, the Toronto organization which operates a shelter — a "halfway house", as they call it — to give help and counsel to young women just released from prison, or in difficulty with society and the law.

$100,000 Buick Open

The $100,000 ninth annual Buick Open Golf Tournament will be colorcast live during the finishing rounds Sunday, at 1 p.m. on Channel 5.

The site of the four-day, 72-hole tournament, is the Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club, Grand Blanc, Mich.

Tony Lema, who holds the unique distinction of having won the Buick Open the last two years — '64 and '65 — will try for an unprecedented three wins when he competes in a field of 159 of America's leading pro and amateur golfers. A purse of $20.000 awaits the winner, considered one of the top tournaments in the PGA tour.

Women in Church

The woman's place in the modern church will be examined in Women in Church on Challenge, Sunday, at 6 p.m. ver Channel 4.

Airport Cramp

Viewpoint will examine the pressing space problems of the world's airports tonight at 6:30 p.m., over Channel 4.

The recently announced orders for the 747 "jumbo" jetliners from the Boeing company mean that the vast majority of the airports of the U.S. and the entire world will have to expand. In general, there is no airport presently equipped to handle the giant airliners that will carry upward of 490 passengers in the not too distant future.

Producer-moderator Art McDonald will take viewers to the Seattle-Tacoma airport for a peek into the future, which promises a doubling in air travel by 1972. McDonald will sample the opinions of Boeing officials, airport executives, residents in the vicinity of the sprawling complex, airline personnel and architects planning for the future of flight.

THE TRADEMARKS ARE THERE—the battered derby and the live-in face saying one thing, Charlie. One of the most popular characters on Canadian TV, Charlie Chamberlain will be the subject of a Telescope profile to be seen on CBC-TV Thursday, telecast 9:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Ed Sullivan Show

Jerry Lewis, one of America's favorite clowns, and the Dave Clark Five, British vocal and instrumental group singing their new hit record Please Tell Me Why, topline The Ed Sullivan Show Sunday at 8 p.m. on channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Other guests are Jackie Vernon, Wayne Newton, Jackie Kahane, Solvi Wang, Elwyn Ambrose and the University of North Carolina Men's Glee Club.

Vernon will do one of his deadpan comedy routines, Newton will sing in a production number built around "good old songs," Kahane will deliver a comedy monologue, and Englishman Elwyn Ambrose will present his puppet act.

Miss Wang, from Norway, is a musical-comedy star. She is being flown to this country for her U.S. television debut. A singer with a comedy flair, she has starred in Scandinavian productions of The King and I, West Side Story and Annie, Get Your Gun. She won the Charlie Chaplin Prize for the best comedy acting at Europe's Montreux Festival.

Re: FROST PREVENTION
MR. F. W. HANCOCK, FOWLER RD., VICTORIA, REPORTS:
"After that recent frost I was surprised to find no damage to my Blue Lake beans or tomatoes. I had only sprayed them a few days before with your liquid Seaweed, Alignure. As my neighbor had planted the same crops the same day and his were badly damaged by the frost, this proves to me that Liquid Seaweed is a great help in frost prevention."
. . . we would like to hear from anyone who has had a similar experience.

ERIC FLEMING

Rawhide Star Now on Way To Pasture

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actors, like athletes, are prone to "retire" a dozen times before age, infirmities or public outrage forces withdrawal from active duty.

There is one performer, however, who's making retirement noises as if he means it.

He is Eric Fleming of Rawhide.

The tall, sombre star left the series last season — and without him the show bombed this season — to head for Hawaii and the good life. But MGM called him back to star in The Glass Bottom Boat with Doris Day.

Now that the picture is completed Fleming is headed for the islands to try his hand at painting, sculpting and contemplating nature's wonders. But will it last?

"Absolutely," said Fleming, who took time out from packing his belongings to talk.

"I don't want to work anymore. At least not at acting. I'd like to get a teaching credential from the University of Hawaii after I get out there. I want to teach literature.

"And in addition to sculpting and writing I want to study oceanography.

NO GREAT ACTOR

"I was never a great actor. I never expected to be. But I was a good technician, a good straight man, expecially for comedy. Now I want to move on to other fields."

Fleming is a down to earth guy who looks on the frenetic career chase of Hollywood with a mixture of amusement and disdain. He has chosen Hawaii for the easy pace, the languid atmosphere.

"The biggest attraction out there is time," he explained. "There's time to sit down and spend three hours enjoying a meal or to have an uninterrupted convernation for an entire evening. There just isn't enough room in Hollywood to live the kind of life I enjoy.

"You have to hustle just to stay alive in this town—even if you're a beach bum."

Fleming has no job in sight nor many friends on the island of Maui where he hopes to settle down.

"If I go broke I can always sling hash or get some kind of a job," he said. "But I haven't lived on a lavish scale and I've put some money aside. The first thing I did out here was bank some getaway money so that whenever I felt like it I could pack and leave.

"I'm anxious to go someplace where you don't see apartment buildings, telephone poles and all the other sights of civilization."

Even so, Fleming left the door open a crack.

"Acting? If someone wants to call me back for an outstanding role in a great picture, fine," he said. "Fortunately, I'm in the position every kid dreams about. I'm not hungry, and I don't have to work if I don't want to."

World Hostilities Recap

79 Undeclared Wars Fought in 20 Years Reviewed in Special

Military confrontations conducted without formal declarations of war will be the subject of The Undeclared War, a full hour NBC News Special colorcast, Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

Since the end of the Second World War, there have been 79 cases of overt hostilities around the world involving guns, soldiers, and casualties. All have international implications. But none are called wars. They are called revolts, presences, police actions, interventions, riots, rebellions.

This new and strange form of Armageddon will be examined on the special.

To build the special, producer Ted Yates, associate producer Bob Rogers and the NBC News crew filmed in these areas which have been wracked by violence and conflict: Peru, Panama, Colombia and Guatemala. Two separate filming expeditions to these areas required seven weeks of intensive coverage.

"Viewers will note immediately," says award-winning Yates, "that our filming efforts have been heavily concentrated upon South America.

"This was to satisfy our prime objective—to show what is happening in a part of the world that best illustrates worldwide tensions. Here, as on other continents, the conflicts are not ideological but pragmatic.

Wall Street

A vivid, fast-moving study of Wall Street: Where the Money Is, a special hour-long broadcast, will be presented Tuesday at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

In detailing the fascinating world of stocks and bonds, the Xerox special goes from the stock exchange to the commodity exchange, touching along the way at over-the-counter markets, mutual funds, pension funds, bond issues, and wherever else the money traffic flows or stops and starts on Wall Street.

Producer Mel Stuart and his crews using silent hand-held cameras were there for the birth of a bond issue, for block traders buying and selling blocks of 10,000 shares of stock and for the frenzy of bidding for contracts at a commodity exchange.

Visit With Max

For the past seven of his 20 years on radio, Max Ferguson has been starting the day right for Canadians from coast to coast. During the previous 13 years, his voice of Rawhide was heard in the early evening. As Rawhide, or as Max, he has brightened the early hours of the morning for people from all walks of life and in all parts of Canada. To many, Max in the morning has become a ritual.

Max In The Morning, a half-hour film on this Canadian habit, will be presented on NFB Presents Wednesday at 10:30 p.m., on channels 2 and 6. The film records those early hours preceding and during the 8:35 radio show that is awaited by Ferguson fans from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

The National Film Board camera follows the CBC satirist from his north Toronto home, through the dark winter morning to the studio in the heart of the city. He arrives a 5 a.m. and, over coffee, scans the morning paper for possible material to be used in a satirical skit. His producer, engineer and sound effects man arrive two hours later and a brief outline of that morning's show is discussed. Then the familiar music which precedes the equally familiar "and now here's Max".

Another 30-minute visit with Max and, as Canadians arise, eat breakfast or wend their way to the office, Max Ferguson drives slowly home, timing his trip so that he might hear his own taped show with the rest of Ontario and Quebec liseners.

Square World

Michael Bentine is a Peruvian-Englishman, old Etonian, founder-member of the radio Goons, and perpetrator of a television series to be seen on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 2, called It's a Square World.

In the series Bentine will go after the stories that somehow escaped the attention of the world's press: the Great British Nannies' Race; Sherwood Forest taken over by impoverished businessmen; and a new search for the Great White Whale.

The sports world will also receive the Bentine treatment — compelling items such as the old English games of nurdling and boggiting, and the Japanese art of Digitsu, or finger defence.

Bentine is famous in Britain for his Common Market lecture — "widely recognized as having done more to confuse the issue than anything else" — and his films showing the defence of Britain's coast against marauding tourists. He is also author of the West End revue, Don't Shoot — We're English.

GUNPOWDER AND PAINT, a two-part Seaway drama about a thrill-packed investigation into a narcotics ring, will be telecast on CBC-TV, Thursdays, June 16 and 23. In this scene from the two-parter, which concludes the series, a piece of op art is admired by Admiral Fox (Austin Willis, right) and friends. Left to right: Beret Arcaya, Harold J. Stone, Ulla Moreland and Austin Willis. Telecast at 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6.

SOMETIMES OVERLOOKED or used only as background for a furniture piece, small areas can be given a practical purpose such as this telephone corner at the end of hallway.

Conversation Corner Handy, So Private

By PAULINE GRANES

Even a small corner at the end of a hall can be put to use, as evidenced by this telephone nook designed by architect Carl Kamrath. Most of us have our telephones installed by a kitchen desk, bedside tables or in a study, and we seldom think of using an isolated corner. Yet, there are times when such a spot as this, away from the family and the television would be a blessing.

Not much space is needed. A small ledge across the corner creates a desk, and because the telephone hangs on the wall, the desk is free for note taking.

PREVENTS BOUNCING

Large scaled acoustical tiles cover the walls above the desk, to prevent sounds from bouncing against the hard-surfaced walls. They give a pattern to the area as well, and define the conversation corner, being framed with wooden strips that finish off the edges and line up with the desk. Because of the softness of the acoustical tile, pictures can be hung easily, and their designs lend decoration to the walls.

SIMPLE LIGHT

Other niceties are the rack for directories, located underneath the desk, and the simple light box built into the corner directly below the ceiling.

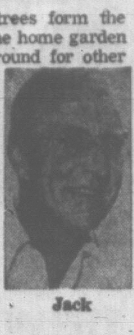
A sloping wall leads into the corner, reducing its width, so that a triangular bench could be built-in close to the desk. This sloping wall was part of the architectural plan, not created especially for the corner.

The architect just took advantage of an existing situation. In most homes the wall would be straight, and a small stool would be most practical.

EVERGREENS PAY HANDSOME DIVIDENDS

'Garden Value' Is Key to Sustained Interest

By JACK BEASTALL



Jack

Shrubs and trees form the foundation of the home garden and the background for other plantings. Whether they keep their foliage throughout the year or have only bare branches over winter, they give a feeling of permanence to the garden.

A few trees and shrubs are essential in the smallest of gardens to stabilize the plantings and maintain year around interest.

The evergreens, those shrubs and trees which hold all, or most of their foliage through the year, should be used sparingly when the garden is small, choosing carefully with due consideration for the size they will have attained in 10 years time.

Unless this is done an overpowering and smothering effect will result. For instance, a laurel hedge is too large and overpowering for a garden on a single lot; it has the effect of making the beds and borders appear insignificant unless they also contain large plants. And there is a limit to the number of large plants a single lot will hold.

FOOT A YEAR

Coniferous evergreens, such as the many forms of Lawson's Cypress, under such names as Ellwoodi, Fletcheri and so forth, are obtained from forest trees during their juvenile years when the foliage is quite different from that of the mature tree.

Although these compact little conifers may never reach the height of their forest relatives, they will grow about one foot a year and in 15 years be some 15 feet high with a spread at the base of about six feet.

These make excellent specimens on a fairly large property where their natural conical shape, and different colors and texture of foliage can be appreciated, and where they have room for unrestricted development. One each of the different varieties planted well apart in a large area of grass will give an elegant, park-like effect.

While these conifers, the false-cypress group, can be trimmed from the year of planting by running a sharp knife upwards from bottom to top in long sweeps of the arm, they cannot be pruned with secateurs or hedge shears. Nor can the tops be removed to stop upward growth, as this results in a mop effect.

There is a wide selection of true dwark conifers, some only the size of a tennis ball after 25 years of growth, and among these will be found sizes and shapes suitable for foundation plantings around the house. These plants grow but one-half inch a year and always remain in proportion to their surroundings.

The owner of a small property will find many beautiful trees among the flowering plums, cherries, and almonds. They may be narrow and upright, low and rounded, or gracefully weeping in habit, and the foliage either green, coppery, or plum red.

These are not evergreens, therefore less overpowering. One particularly striking tree when in flower is Malus Sargentii, Sargent's Crab, with its bare branches wreathed in small pinkish-white apple blossoms when only three feet high, followed with edible apples as small as a pea. Eight feet is about the highest I have seen.

PLACE WITH CARE

The Japanese maples are beautiful in the right setting, and are worth placing with care. The upright forms are variable as to height and may be anything from 8 to 15 feet at maturity. The more expensive dwarfed forms have delicately fine foliage from green through shade of deep red, but the leaves are very sensitive, tending to curl and brown along the edges after a windstorm. They are not plants for open, exposed gardens.

Another small tree to about 12 feet in height is the Amur Maple, Acer ginnala, with pleasant summer foliage and gorgeous fall coloring.

GARDEN VALUE

Every plant, whether a tree, shrub, conifer, herbaceous perennial or bulb, has a garden value as well as a market value. The garden value of a plant which is attractive for only a few weeks is far less than one which is a feature throughout the year, regardless of cost.

Camellias, rhododendrons, pieris and skimmias give their greatest value when in flower and an architectural value for the rest of the year. Variegated evergreens give equal value for twelve months, as do shrubs which have colored branches in winter, flowers in spring or summer and attractive leaf form, and brilliant foliage in the fall.

When purchases are made on garden value, a picture of sustained interest can be created with the minimum of outlay.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

The chrysanthemums wanted for late fall and winter flowers indoors, should be put into the largest pots now. Stand the pots outdoors on coal ashes or sawdust, and stake each plant adequately against late summer winds.

Hand pick caterpillars which are rolled into rose leaves — no spray can reach them there.

The hardy climbing plants are growing strongly. Tie in all the growths needed; cut out those considered superfluous.

To conserve moisture and improve soil, mulch around perennials and small shrubs with grass clippings or half rotted compost.

This weekend prune back the flowered shoots of weigelas which have finished bloom, and the spring-blooming tamarix in the same way.

Outdoor grapes need watering if against walls where soil becomes dry.

Vegetable rows need hand weeding between plants and shallow hoeing between rows.

Even moisture at roots of tomato plants is a healthier condition than drying and then flooding.

Squash vines can have growing tip removed when runners are four to six leaves in length.

Worthwhile Tips Listed On Garbage Disposal Use

CHICAGO (NFS) — What can I and what can I not put down by garbage disposer?

This nagging question still persists even though garbage disposers are now operating in over seven million American homes, with close to one million being added annually.

1. Always use cold rather than hot water when the machine is in use. Cold water compresses grease into globules that are easily flushed down the drain pipe.

2. Turn on a full flow of cold water before you start the unit, and allow the water to run for 30 seconds after the unit has stopped grinding.

3. Don't put lye or other chemical cleaners into the disposer.

4. Do not put abrasives such as glass or metal into the disposer. Glass can wear down the mechanism and the heavier-than-water glass particles can deposit in the plumbing and eventually clog the lines.

5. Paper napkins and cigarette butts (with filter tips removed) are safe to use so long as they are mixed in with food wastes.

Check Those Accessories

CHICAGO (NFS) — How much of the costume jewelry you wear frequently today was in your jewel box five years ago?

Check, if you're not sure, and you may be surprised to realize how fashions and your taste have changed.

"Give your home the same kind of check-up, and you may discover you've fallen behind times in the all-important area of decorative accessories," suggested Mary Ann Wills, interior design consultant to the makers of Arabesque wall accessories in Traverse City, Mich.

KEEP IN HARMONY

In her opinion, a change of accessories should be just as much a part of any redecorating and refurnishing plans as new colors for walls, carpeting, or furniture.

Pictures, plaques, mirrors and so forth should be kept only if they remain in harmony with changing room decor.

"Even simple changes, such as new draperies, reupholstering the sofa, or painting walls may make old accessories unsuitable," Miss Wills pointed out.

"A major change, like moving to a new home, nearly always calls for a re-examination of decorative accents," she added.

The typical family, according to her findings, buys furniture on a grand scale only twice, possibly three times, in a lifetime.

Newly-married couples, setting up housekeeping, naturally must choose furnishings and accessories that fit within a limited budget and restricted living space.

Basic needs are expanded as a family grows, but the second major furnishings purchases may be delayed until children are out of their more destructive stages.

Furniture purchased earlier is often moved to a family room, and more expensive and highly-styled pieces appear in the living room.

Then, as their family matures and young adults leave to start their own families, parents may decide in favor of smaller, more intimate quarters. They may keep some furniture, but they probably will buy some new, smaller-scale pieces for their new home, too.

"Within each stage, of course, there will be many minor changes in the decorating schemes," the Arabesque consultant said.

"Too many homemakers hang on to pictures and plaques for their sentimental value, or because one hates to give up an item that looks as new as ever.

"Don't be one of them," Miss Wills urged. "Rather than let an outdated accessory mar an otherwise attractive room, try to find other places for the favorites.

"If there are too many, store some away and rotate them with the seasons in bedrooms or den," she suggested.

Better still, create an amusing gallery in the family room or recreation room, with all the leftover pictures, plaques, and knicknacks together like an antique dealer's display."

As for ideas for new accessories that are appropriate to your current decorating scheme, these in your local furniture, you'll find a limitless range of department, and gift stores.

GUARANTEED THE BEST ROSE SPRAY YOU HAVE EVER USED—or your money back!

Let you—and your roses—be the judge! Watch Gardal go to work on insects, black spot, mites and mildew. And if it isn't the best rose spray you've ever used, tell us so. Write to Green Cross Products, P.O. Box 489, Montreal. Send us the bottle with label, and we'll send you your money back.
Applied as a liquid spray, Gardal leaves no visible powder or dust deposits. Its systemic insecticide and systemic fungicide go right inside the plant. The systemic insecticide distributes itself throughout the entire plant, protecting tender new growth from insect damage for up to two weeks after application. Systemics cannot be washed off by rain, since they are within the plant.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1966—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Down at the grass-roots of Victoria baseball are teams whose members average out at about 10 years of age, and don't stand very many inches higher than a World Series bat. They play in the minors, which may be described as Little League farm clubs, but what they lack in height and heft they make up in enthusiasm.

One of these outfits is called the Cubs. Its members play at Majestic and Leyn Road parks in Gordon Head, and what with minor ailments, a cracked finger and other tribulations, they have had a rough time. But the Cubs took their lumps, reminding themselves that they'd won an early game and run up close scores in several others; and not even a 16-0 shellacking could rob them of their spunk.

Of course, as has been pointed out times beyond number, the game's the thing and the score doesn't matter. This may be acceptable doctrine for adults. Still, when you are nine years old, or eleven, or probably ninety if you last that long, it does hurt to keep on losing.

As one who has rooted impartially for the Cubs and their opponents at quite a few games, I have been hoping very much to see them break their jinx. On Friday, we went out to Majestic Park to watch them play a tough one.

It was another of those chilly, windy evenings we've been getting this spring. The gusts scoured the clipped grass of the diamond to send dust-devils scampering across home plate. The flag above the scoreboard at the far end of the field whipped briskly, and the parents in the bleachers huddled in coats and heavy veloped into a pitchers' duel.

Jammed into their dugout, the Cubs in their red caps and sweaters wiggled and squirmed and elbowed while manager Bob Thompson gave them their final briefing.

Over on the other side, the team they were to play was going through the same drill. This bunch had out-scored the Cubs at their last meeting, and stood ready to do so again.

At six-thirty, with plenty of light in the windy sky, the players trotted out to the field. The pitcher worked the kinks from his arm with a couple of throws to the catcher who squatted behind the plate with cap reversed and mask tugged down.

Then the umpire called 'Batter up!' and the game was on.

★

I do not propose to weary you with a play-by-play account, since one baseball game is much like any other.

There is the pitcher, jaws working deliberately on his gum as he coils into his wind-up and unleashes his throw. There's the smack of ball against leather, and sometimes the crack of a hit, with the whoop from the bleachers for echo.

Senior team or minor, amateur or professional, the excitements are the same. It matters not at all that the fellow at bat is a chipmunk-faced eight-year-old with running shoes on his feet and an outsized head protector jammed over his ears. It's all baseball, played hard and honestly, and it makes good watching.

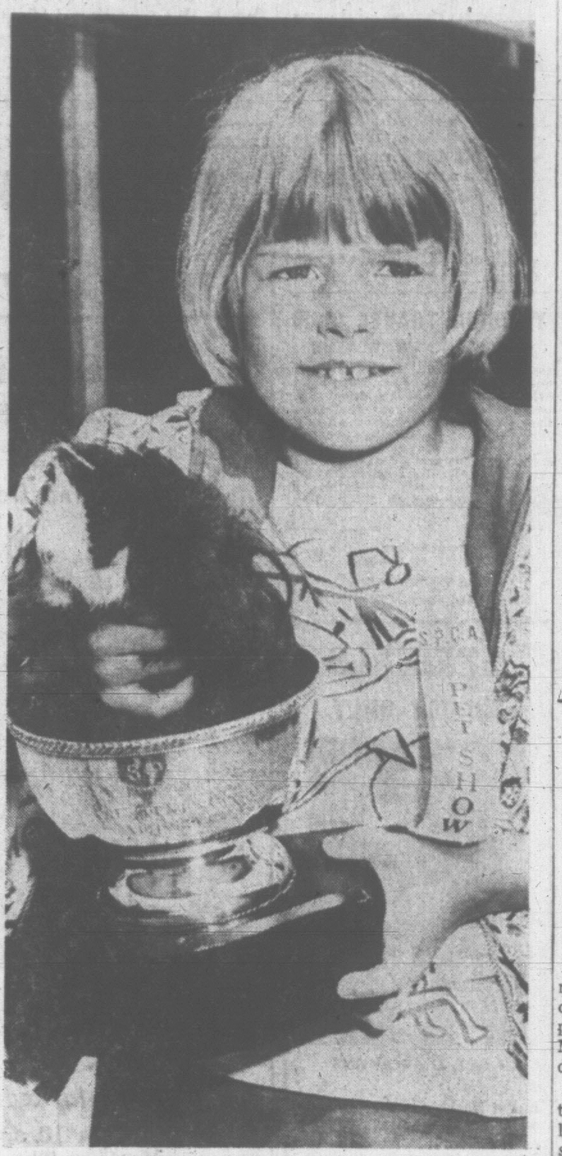
This game, the one the Cubs so badly wanted to win after their five straight losses, developed into a pitchers' duel. No homers were scored, but there was plenty of clever base-stealing, and the fielding was both fast and accurate

Finally, a few minutes before 7:45 p.m., when Little League games are called, the Cubs, second pitcher of the evening burned his last throw across the plate.

The game was over; and this time there was joy in Mudville. The Cubs had ended their losing streak with a score of 11-3.

The boys in this minor club are Bill Cochrane, Greg and Lorne Coleman, John Coupar, Ray Dilba, Rupert Golding, Mike Heinekey, Frank Immink, Colin and John McCrea, Barry Owens, Roy Parkhouse, Gordon Pike, Bill Quinsey, Sid Saunders, Steve Tate and John Thorneloe.

They win, they lose — and like hundreds of others in this town, they play good baseball.



TRYING IT ON for size is Ringo, guinea pig owned by Pat Ellis, 7, one of ringful of trophy hopefuls today at SPCA junior pet show. Ringo, says Pat, eats lettuce, "pelleps" and toast. Something else. He bites. Show officials expected no trouble. Dogs, cats, and everything else behave well with lots of little girls around, said one inspector. (Strickland Photo.)

SHORT, TALL OF IT ALL

Even Judge Not Sure On How Many Entries

By GLEN ALLEN

There were the long and the short and the tall.

There were the speckled and the banded and the noisy and the nervous.

There were the white and the black and the white-and-black and the curly and the hairy and the very, very big and the very tiny.

There were whole nations of dogs, and baskets and baskets of cats, two mice that have had 100 children this year, a guinea pig that eats toast and bites, a great big giggle of children.

The SPCA junior pet show opened this morning at the Victoria Riding Academy in bright sunshine and just a hint of pandemonium.

Competing in orthodox classes and classes like longest-haired dog, best cared-for mouse, heaviest cat, and cat with the most extraordinary markings were 55 dogs, 20 cats and about 35 other animals ("we're not sure," said a judge, "they keep hiding").

Except for a rogue guinea pig named Tilly and Barney, an unheelable springer spaniel, pets and their owners behaved with enviable decorum.

One very blase cat even went to sleep.

Winner in the best cared for mouse category, Gary Webb, 13, didn't know to what he ought to attribute his success.

"It's a good mouse, that one," he said pointing to a handsome and energetic white specimen running madly around a wheel.

"But I didn't do anything special for the show, just fed him up a little."

OKAY WITH MUM

One young man who brought six boxfuls of guinea pigs ("one for the maternity cases") said his mother got along with his pets alright.

"My mother isn't especially keen sometimes," said Mark Hinson, 14, who keeps a 17-pound Giant Flemish rabbit, lizards, frogs, mice, hamsters and an albino guinea pig in the basement.

Show officials and SPCA president Captain Douglas Prentice (whose setter Adam is "a little too fond of the ladies") said the show was good and showy.

Judged winners by press time today were: Marguerite Cervin, best rabbit; Shelly Blanchard, best hamster; Garry Copeman, best Guinea pig; and Debby Ellis, best-cared for horse.

Rousing Welcome For Band

A big welcome is planned Sunday for Victoria Boys' Band on its triumphant return from the Portland Rose Festival.

The 37 instrumentalists will arrive at the B.C. Hydro building, 820 Pandora Avenue, at about 6:15 p.m. They won the perpetual trophy in the junior parade at the festival in competition with 24 bands from different parts of the United States.

The band, conducted by George Kraeling, has won the top award in the Junior Parade every year for three consecutive years.

"They are a great credit to our city," said Ald. Michael Griffin, chairman of recreation and community services to Victoria city council.

"We hope Victoria will give the boys a rousing welcome."

HEALTH CARE SEQUENCE 'ALL WRONG'

The federal government's method of introducing medical care insurance will cause "great problems," Esquimalt - Saanich MP George Chatterton said today.

He told delegates to the quarterly meeting in the Olde England Inn of the Progressive Conservative Association of B.C., the government is introducing the insurance plan in a different sequence to that recommended by the Hall Royal Commission on Health Care.

This commission recommended four medical colleges be established by 1971 and a fifth by 1973 to train more doctors.

But no steps were being taken to start the medical schools and 10 years from now — if these steps were not taken — there could be a shortage of 4,600 doctors in Canada.

SHORTAGE MOUNTS

In 20 years, if delays continued, the shortage would amount to 13,000 doctors, and similar situations would apply to nurses, pharmacists and other technical people involved in health care.

"People are going to have insurance next year but they will not get the services because of the shortage of personnel," he said.

POOR HEALTH

Mr. Chatterton said poor health, including accidents, cost the country 30 times the lost production that result from strikes

He also outlined growing problems in education, housing and welfare.

University enrolment of 178,000 in 1964 would rise to 480,000 in 1970, while the cost would increase from $355 million to $1.1 billion.

500,000 HOMES

The last figures for housing showed there would be a need for 500,000 homes by 1980 for those over 65.

In 1961, 54 per cent of the population over 65 had incomes of less than $1,000 a year. The welfare bill today comes to $1.7 billion a year.

Mr. Chatterton said the primary solution to such problems is more education because this is necessary for economic development.

He also thought immediate steps should be taken to assist Canadians until the Canada Pension Plan starts helping them at retirement.

Two Killed in Crush Between Car, Trailer

RCMP Still Probing Up-Island Mishap

Two young men were killed late Friday night when their car was crushed by a 16-ton semi-trailer unit in a head-on collision on the Island Highway nine miles north of Nanaimo.

Dead is the driver of the car, Robert C. Richardson, 20, of Nanaimo, and a passenger, Leonard Walter Bachewick, 25, of Vancouver.

The truck driver, Walter Zacharuk of Port Alberni, escaped injury.

RCMP today were still attempting to piece together details of the accident which occurred at 11:30 p.m. on a slight curve near the Nanoose railway bridge.

The facts known at noon today were:

- The West Coast Freight Ltd. truck was on a freight run with general cargo from Port Alberni.
- The slight curve in the highway would present no problem under normal circumstances.
- The 1958 model car apparently went out of control and slammed into the front of the truck.

RCMP said they still did not know where the two young men were heading when the accident occurred, except that the car was northbound.

The two men were dead at the scene on arrival of RCMP.

Their bodies were being held in Nanaimo General Hospital pending autopsies to determine the exact cause of death.

Nanaimo coroner Russ Inkster has indicated an inquest will be held, but no date has been set.

POLICE NET CATCHES 11-YEAR-OLD

Saanich detectives came up with a mixed bag of stolen hardware goods earlier this week when they spread their net at Fairburn School.

To officers hid in the school and caught an 11-year-old boy after he broke into the building. The youngster, scheduled to appear in juvenile court, admitted to 12 such burglaries.

Police recovered tools, hinges, paint and a variety of similar items worth $68.30.

New Saanich Hotel Signs Union Pact

The Red Lion Motor Hotel Friday signed the standard area agreement with Local 513 of the Beverage Dispensers Union.

About 20 bartenders and waiters in the cocktail lounge and beer parlor of the Douglas Street hotel are covered by the agreement.

Strike Notice Served On 120 Forest Firms

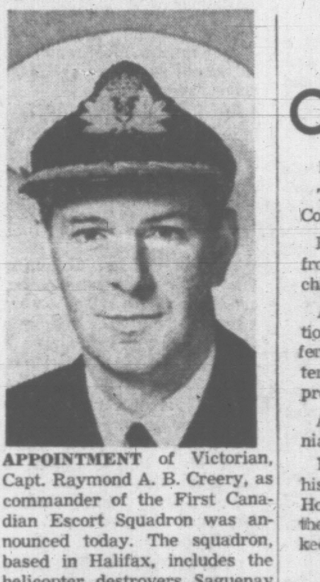
Strike notice is being served by the International Woodworkers of America on 120 coast wood industry companies.

The move, authorized by the regional negotiating committee, is being carried out by the eight coast locals which hold bargaining certification.

The 48-hour notice was being received today by the companies.

The 48 hours notice is a requirement of the Labour Relations Act before a legal strike can take place.

The two-year master contract expires next Wednesday midnight. All that is needed now for a strike to take place is a call from the 10-man negotiating committee.



APPOINTMENT of Victorian, Capt. Raymond A. B. Creery, as commander of the First Canadian Escort Squadron was announced today. The squadron, based in Halifax, includes the helicopter destroyers Saguenay and Nipigon and the destroyer-escort Kootenay. Capt. Creery, 42, entered the RCN as a cadet in 1940 and subsequently qualified as a naval pilot. Since 1963 he has been naval, military and air attache of the Canadian ambassador to the The Netherlands.

WRINKLES HAVE A HABIT OF MOVING UP FROM NAVEL

By GORDON RITCHIE

They call him "the colonel." Colonel Brooks.

He's like an apparition from a Kentucky fried chicken advertisement.

And he's the feature attraction of the Regional Conference of Toastmasters International, held at the Empress Hotel this weekend.

An ex-hillbilly from California, he's a real character.

Long white hair down over his ears. He lived with the Hopi indians, he explains, and they taught him this was to keep his hearing intact.

* * *

A bushy white mustache peeks out from under a wrinkled nose.

"No man should have his picture taken when he's more than nine months old," he observes.

"At nine months he has all those cute little wrinkles around his navel. But when he's over 80, the wrinkles are all around his nose."

'COLONEL' BROOKS
. . . feature attraction

He wears a gaudy red and black checkered lumber-jack shirt instead of a sports jacket. The cleaners still have his suit, he explains.

And cowboy boots.

* * *

Not quite the conventional garb for a man celebrating his 85th birthday today.

He fought his way into the finals of the Toastmasters' speech contest with a speech on evolution—"Our Amazing Mamas," he calls it.

"Evolution theory is all just speculation," he says," and in my book, one speculation is as good as another."

He refuses to accept what Darwin said about his ancestral mama.

"It's all Marxism," he claims, "that our unerudite educators are teaching. They tell our youngsters they're descended from monkeys. Consequently, the kids are acting like monkeys these days."

He prefers the biblical version.

Cynic Spoofs 'Moment of Truth'

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

A school recognition ceremony thrills you, disturbs you or leaves you cold, depending on the sort of person you are.

There were four of them Friday night at Mount View, Mount Douglas, Victoria and Oak Bay senior secondary schools. (See Page 15.)

Mostly it was parents, particularly mothers, who thrilled to the occasion.

Their children are a cooler generation, more interested in the parties later than the actual recognition ceremony. They looked on the ceremony with an honest eye, unclouded by sentiment.

One young man at Oak Bay described it as "a gas. It's kind of funny watching all the guys standing up who are flunking. Some guys who are going to pass won't come because they don't like school."

He had, in his youthful and cynical way, touched on the disturbing aspect of such ceremonies. They are big, blown-up occasions but they are not the moment of truth.

That will come some time in the next few weeks when examination results are made known. Then some of those who were recognized will discover they have not done anything that merits recognition.

Actually, as G. A. Victor Thomson, principal of Victoria Senior Secondary School, explained, the ceremony was only a recognition that the students have passed through Grade 12, not that they had passed.

And that was "a very important milestone" in their lives, according to Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the University of Victoria, who spoke at another school.

It certainly was that: whether they graduated or not, it was the end of school days. And when you are at school that seems to be a point worth marking with some kind of ceremony.

Trouble was, the ceremonies were stilted and pretentious. The class of '66 was eulogized and so were their teachers and parents. The valedictorians, in phrases they had long labored over, revelled in the significance of the event.

And some parts of the ceremony were embarrassing. Practically every school sang Climb Every Mountain, a song that must sum up for educators, in an appropriate throbbing way, what life is all about.

Inevitably there was some sense of letdown. For some, the pressures of the night blew themselves out in a great, big, post-dance party that went on to dawn.

Equally inevitably, reality broke through at times. It did at one point when Peter Bunn, an outspoken school trustee, spoke at Mount View School.

He spoke of a world where American soldiers pour napalm on women and children . . . where Canada's leaders argue more about a call-girl than about ways to stop war.

He told the students he is not surprised when told that "youth is in revolt. Can we blame them?"

Said he: "When one thinks of the example that adults set for young people, I am amazed at the good sense and maturity of the vast majority of them."

'Hard to Believe Small Area Could Produce Such Horror'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

On a warm sunny day in May in 1896, an electric streetcar loaded with people, lumbered across Point Ellice Bridge on Bay St.

Suddenly there was a sway — the middle span collapsed — and the street car plunged into the water with more than 100 passengers.

Eighty-three-year-old Mrs. John Livingston, now of Newcastle, California, one of the few survivors of the accident still living, on Friday surveyed the scene of the disaster which killed 55 persons and plunged Victoria into mourning.

●

"I wish this new span had been there then," she said. "It's so different. It's size and structure makes the channel look much smaller. One wonders today how so many people drowned in such a small expanse of water."

She remembers the accident vividly.

She was then Edith Bull. and lived at the corner of Douglas and Garbally. She was 12. It was May 26.

The streetcar was packed with families, youths on their way to watch a sham battle at Esquimalt's Macaulay Point

●

"I was with my sister, Isobel, 20, and our two friends, Sarah and Lillian Sherriff standing on the rear platform," she said. "My father couldn't get on so he jumped on a brewery wagon which followed the streetcar.

"He was lucky. The horse suddenly stopped and despite the driver's exhortations wouldn't move. Then the span gave way just in front of his forelegs."

She remembers the streetcar crashing through the bridge and being swallowed by the water.

"Lots of things went through my mind between the time I went to the bottom and surfaced," she said. "My mother would not come with us because she had a bad dream on the previous night. I started to think how lucky it was that mother had not come along. And how lucky the baby was to be at home."

When she came to the surface, someone grabbed her, placed her on a plank and shoved it ashore. Her sister was rescued in the same way.

●

"My father rushed down to us," she recalled. "I have never seen a man weep so much. He took us first to a place where we were both given a drink of something and taken to a doctor."

Although the two Sherriff girls were standing on the same platform and beside the two sisters they never came up when the streetcar settled at the bottom. Their bodies were found later in the mud.

Mrs. Livingston, is visiting her brothers, Walter Bull, 1041 Bay Street, and Clifford Bull, 6281 Mauch Street.

AND OUT OF THE CELLAR . . . . . . CAME A RED LION

He Tied All His Experiences in One 'Hole'

Ab Kent Talks To KEN HOLE

Since he started blowing trumpet some 25 years ago, hotel manager Ken Hole has had a kind of whirlwind spinning around him.

It gives him a blurred image, makes him hard to catch and define, and frequently it snatches others into orbit with him.

Some have achieved a measure of fame since their association with him, although he makes no claim of being anyone's mentor.

Ken Hole — sometimes musician, inn-keeper, booking agent, sportsman, caterer, dance band leader, real estate agent, coffee house and jazz club founder, concessionaire and family man — has settled at least temporarily in Victoria, his birthplace.

Biggest Task

His biggest task — helping to create the Red Lion Inn, where he is hotel manager, dining room trio leader and expert troubleshooter — is the sum total of all his experiences.

His successes and setbacks, as with many a businessman who enjoys his work, has not been hampered by an interrupted education.

Ken started to attend University of B.C. in 1949 but never completed study for his degree. He was too busy.

His "firsts" are many:

- Operated the first downtown motor hotel in Vancouver after the Second World War.
- Opened the first semi-organized musicians' after-hours club in an ancient Fraser River "haunted house."
- Opened Vancouver's first basement coffee house-cum-night club.
- Opened Victoria's first two jazz coffee houses, the Scene on Fort Street and later on Wharf.
- Opened the first Vancouver espresso coffee house.
- Gave leading American jazz exponent Ornette Coleman his first professional job.
- Served the first pizza from a machine in B.C.
- Opened the first combined dining, dancing and drinking spot in B.C.
- Operates the first 2 a.m. liquor licence in Victoria.

ANCIENT UPRIGHT PIANO played by Ken Hole is a sentimental holdover from the Scene, which he helped set up in Victoria seven years ago. Until refinished it looked like junk, but has such a distinctive touch it was favored by men like Doug Parker and the late Chris Gage. (Times Photo.)

Ideal Hotel

When Hole planned his ideal hotel "I put all my experiences into one basket and tied it with a knot."

The result, with financing and other specialized help, is the Red Lion. A companion hotel along the same lines is being planned for suburban Vancouver.

Hole is 36, weighs 200 pounds and stands 6'1", giving him a comfortable grip on the bass viol he plays for the Lion Inn trio.

But he also plays piano and began his musical life as a trumpeter, one of the many Victoria depression kids who found an outlet in C. H. Rowles' Boys' Band.

"Davy Whittington (euphonium) was a school chum at Willows who got me into music. He said 'I can get a quarter if I get a new member into the band, and I'll split it with you.'

Got 12 Cents

"So I got 12 cents and that's how I started playing trumpet."

Ken's father, Sid L. Hole, ex-tennis champion and long with Rithet's real estate firm here, left about 1940 to set up his own business in Nanaimo.

Ken then joined the Nanaimo Silver Cornet Band, an award-winning group.

During the war, musicians became scarce and at the age of 14 Ken found himself playing "pro."

One day the band leader lost his bassist and approached the rookie:

The 'Worst'

"Look, Ken, you're the worst trumpet player we have and we need a bass player." So Hole was dispatched to learn how, taking lessons from the ex-player whose job at Pacific Biological Laboratory prevented Moonlighting.

After that he led the Pygmy Dance Band, most of whose members went on to become pro musicians. Hole went to UBC, where he led the 20-piece Varsity Dance Band that played all the big campus dances.

At that time a neighborhood place in Kerrisdale was an eatery called the Kerrisdale, with a back room that Ken saw had possibilities.

Make a Fortune

With the help of his father he bought it and with the wisdom of his 22 years he figured te campus crowd would make him his fortune.

"I worked day and night and never made a nickel out of the things. I lost my shirt and sold out," Ken said.

"But after working with my dad in the real estate business for a while, I discovered I'd learned a few things. I realized you could make money if you operated on a system."

That was when he invested in the Burrard Motel, studying the food and accommodation business closely and applying the lessons he'd learned. "Next thing I knew it started making money."

Consultant

That led to a catering consulting service.

Still interested in music and playing with other Vancouver musicians, he heard their doleful appeal of having no place to "jam" after hours.

So with a few friends such as Jim Carney, now a CBC producer; Wally Lightbody, a lawyer; Brian Gunns and Jack Reynolds, Hole rented an old house just across Fraser Street bridge.

"It had no paint, it was falling down, it looked awful and we got it for $7 a month. Every time a truck went over the bridge the house shook.

Big Storm

"But in 1956 or '57 during the winter there was a big storm and a tree went through the roof. The rain went in, snow piled up, then it froze and the pipes burst. There was no heat, either."

Musicians again were wandering around town without a place to play, which gave birth to the Cellar, a basement den at Main and Broadway that became famous in Canada and the U.S. Pacific.

Crowds had to be turned away and some of the top performers of today used is as a rung up the ladder.

Bob Goulet, Pat Suzuki, Don Francks, Chris Gage and Fraser McPherson were among the legion.

The Scene

Success of the Cellar led to the Scene in a trust company basement on Fort Street here. It lasted one glorious opening night before the fire marshal closed it because the burlap drapes weren't flameproof.

Exit the Scene to Wharf Street where it thrived 2½ years in an old fish-packing plant, this time using drapes remaining from the 1958 B.C. Trade Fair.

Hole opened cafes in Kelowna, Terrace, in Alberta — the Jasper Athabaska and Whistler hotel dining rooms.

The Barn, in downtown Vancouver, was next, first to have intimate dining, dancing and drinking in a public place.

There also had been a four-year stint at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre restaurant, where Hole developed a special atmosphere.

During the early stages of the Red Lion planning he played regularly in the Hotel Vancouver with Irvin Lang and Ernie Blunt who are now with him at the Lion.

Through it all, he married a Victoria girl, Chris Lanning, in 1959, and they have daughters Chenine and Genice.

BREAKAWAY RHODESIA PAYS QUEEN TRIBUTE

SALISBURY (Reuters)—The breakaway Rhodesian regime marked the Queen's official birthday with the traditional 21-gun salute today, but there were no ceremonial parades as in former years.

The date had an added significance for Rhodesians—the country was beginning its eighth month of independence from Britain.

New Threat To Europe's Space Club

PARIS (Reuters) — Rivalries over an equatorial rocket launching site today posed a new threat to Europe's space club after a crisis caused by soaring costs.

France wants the site allocated to French Guiana, off the South American coast, while Australia has countered with an offer to build facilities at Darwin, North Australia, at a cost of $7,400,000.

Britain's six partners in ELDO, the European Launcher Development Organization, Friday staved off a British withdrawal and possible collapse of their $420,000,000 joint space venture, by tentatively agreeing to cut Britain's contribution.

But afterwards France's minister for space, Alain Peyrefitte, told a press conference the change in contributions must be part of a package deal to include choice of a launching site.

The fate of ELDO is still dependent on agreement being reached when the conference, which adjourned Friday, resumes July 7.

The heart of the problem is Britain's announced intention of withdrawing unless other members take a greater share of the costs of ELDO programs.

Accused Sorry For Trouble He Caused

John Gagnon of 930 Southgate, previously convicted of forcible entry and assault, was jailed for a month and placed on a good behavior bond when he appeared in central court for sentence Friday.

At his trial eight days ago the accused said he could remember nothing of an incident May 31 when he forced the door of an apartment where his wife was and slapped her and the tenant.

Court was also told at the trial that it took two officers 20 minutes to subdue him.

Gagnon said Friday he was sorry for the trouble he had caused all the people concerned, including himself.

B.C. GIRL SURVIVES CAR PLUNGE

MONTEREY, Calif. (CP) — A Vancouver girl survived Wednesday when a car plunged over a 1,000-foot cliff near here, killing two students.

Imogen M. B. Dean, 19, of 1820 Nanton Ave., a Stanford University co-ed, was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

David M. Kauffman, 19, and Frederick Walker, 20, were killed and Mary E. McEnerney, 19, was severely injured when their car went out of control on Highway 1, 17 miles south of here.

Centennial Dogwood Festival Next Wednesday

In the spirit of British Columbia's centennial year, many of the auxiliary members will don period dress for next Wednesday's festival. In this picture, taken on the hospital grounds, are, left to right, Mrs. Norman James, Mrs. G. B. Olson, Mrs. H. F. Jarvis, convener Mrs. H. W. Vyvyan, Miss Dorothy Creighton, Mrs. Myron Pillup, president Mrs. F. R. Roberts, Mrs. B. M. Arnold, Mrs. J. R. Scott, Mrs. A. R. Minnis, Mrs. M. P. Lee and co-convener Mrs. J. K. Murray.

The tree-shaded grounds of the Veterans' Hospital will be agog with excitement on Wednesday afternoon. The occasion will be the Centennial Dogwood Festival, being arranged by the hospital's hard-working Women's Auxiliary.

Departing from custom, auxiliary members will forego wearing their newest and best spring finery. Instead, many of them will don the costumes of yesterday in tribute to British Columbia's centennial.

But, as any Victorian can tell you, no band of yesteryear can surpass the enthusiasm and skill of the Royal Canadian Navy's Band of the Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt. As in other years, the band will be doing its part in making the afternoon one of fun and delight for all those that attend.

Lasting from 2 to 5 p.m., the festival will be opened by Mrs. A. W. Toone, wife of Victoria's mayor. This year the patrons are His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett.

This is one affair that's always eagerly anticipated by the veteran patients and it's guaranteed that all those who are able will be there to enjoy the afternoon's festivities with their friends and well-wishers. Greeting guests will be auxiliary president Mrs. F. R. Roberts.

Gaily decorated booths will offer a choice of attractive articles and handicrafts, executed with the skilled fingers of auxiliary members.

While listening to the band and relaxing from their shopping sorties, guests will be able to relax at tea tables set on the velvety lawns. Convening this part of the afternoon's activities will be Mrs. H. W. Vyvyan and Mrs. J. K. Murray.

It's safe to bet that when the afternoon's over and the melee cleared away, many of the patients and their visitors will still be tapping their feet to the rhythms they heard during the gala afternoon.

Arranged by PAT DUFOUR,
Women's Editor

One of the most appreciated contributions that the auxiliary makes to the veterans at the hospital is the library service which it provides. Two afternoons a week, volunteers go to all the wards with book trolleys so that no patient need be without something interesting to read. Here, two of the patients visit the library to take out new books. Left to right, are Mrs. P. A. Hole, librarian Mrs. J. Lewis, Mr. George Friend, Mr. Fred Allen and Mrs. G. R. Fleming.

The dogwood blossom, our provincial emblem, has travelled to practically every spot in the world, thanks to the industry of auxiliary members who fashion and sell jewelry in the shape of the fragile flower. The proceeds help finance the group's ever-increasing contribution to the well-being of the hospital's patients. Mrs. F. T. S. Sehl (standing) is convener of this project. Among those who help her are, left to right, Mrs. P. J. Philpott, Mrs. F. A. Browne and Mrs. Dorothy Jewell.

Beautiful stained-glass windows add color and richness to the Chapel of St. Martin which provides spiritual comfort and a sense of community to hospital patients. Each week, auxiliary members provide flowers for the chapel and keep everything in it spotless and shining. Seen here are Mrs. R. C. Allder, left, and convener Mrs. Alan Gosse.

Many, many miles a year are walked by auxiliary members as they visit sunrooms and wards, distributing candy, cigarettes and other items to the grateful patients. None of them complain, the obvious delight of the patients in this facet of the group's work is more than sufficient reward. Here, a group visits one of the sunrooms before setting out on its afternoon's work. Seen, left to right, are Mrs. Duncan MacPhail, Mr. Clarence Jordan, Mr. K. Dickran, Mr. Victor Cramp, Mrs. C. M. Fulthorpe, Mrs. G. B. Olson, Mr. Albert Hurst, Mrs. J. R. Scott, Mr. Andy Gleeson, Mrs. Stanley Shawcross and Mrs. J. K. Murray.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Just off the boat from Britain . . .

High on the list of man's best friends . . . next to the trusty dog, that is . . . comes the gleaming pewter tankard from which he quaffs his draft . . . We're assured on good authority that such a tankard inspires affection, and remains a good friend for years to come! . . . There's a new shipment of English pewter at Sydney Reynolds . . . tankards, mugs, wine goblets, christening cups, etc. . . . Some of the mugs with glass bottoms etched with novelty designs . . . the famous "fox" handle mug in ½ and 1-pint sizes. . . . A really beautiful coffee pot and a sugar and cream set . . . Initials can be engraved on any of these pieces of plain or hammered pewter . . . So you might keep this handsome pewter in mind for wedding gifts and such . . . (and if your spouse doesn't already own a friendly pewter tankard, how about surprising him?) . . . Another new shipment is of truly outstanding Moorcroft . . . the late Queen Mary's favorite pottery . . . All hand-painted, the colors are gorgeous . . . deep and glowing . . Every piece of this was personally selected for Sydney Reynolds by Mr William Moorcroft himself . . . There are vases, candlesticks, lamp bases, bowls, ashtrays . . . delightful miniatures and many etceteras . . . No two pieces exactly alike! . . . Sydney Reynolds Ltd., 801 Government St., EV 3-3931.

We shouldn't be surprised if that blunt Dynel "hair" you've been seeing so many pictures of lately, became available here before long.

Executive socks and Gap-osis . . .

We call it "gap-osis" . . . the distressing sight that affronts our eyes when so many otherwise impeccably-clad males sit down with crossed knees . . . exposing a pallid expanse of bare leg between sock and trouser bottom . . . There's a remedy, though . . . the "executive sock" which you'll find at W & J Wilson . . . Knee length, elasticized top . . . finest quality wool . . . modestly priced at $2 and $3 . . . You might introduce your man to these by way of a Father's Day gift from one of the youngsters . . . we guarantee he'll bless you! . . . While on the subject of Father's Day . . . Wilson's have some really unique novelty items for gifts . . . like the Corky and Corkette cork extractors which whip corks out of bottles in split seconds by means of air pressure . . . Multiple-compartmented leather change purses so much liked by older gentlemen . . . Very efficient boot buffers ($1.95) . . . A terrific key case made on a brand new principle . . . keys can't slide out, but can be removed in a jiffy with a spring clip . . . A smart billfold matches this . . . Some very swank new Eminence polo shirts from France . . . sort of a wide square mesh to keep him cool . . . or warm, as the case may be . . . These you really must see . . . they have that subtly exciting "male" look! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

An Italian swimsuit of white and orange stretch puckered Lycra rises high at the top. Comes with matching squared helmet with eyeholes.

These chairs promote family togetherness . . .

Whether you call it your family room, rumpus room, or den . . . the keynote to this gathering-place for the whole family is comfortable informality . . . an atmosphere of cosiness and well-being . . . That's why Colonial maple furniture seems so singularly appropriate to such a room . . . furniture such as you'll find at Home Furniture . . . who've just received another long-awaited shipment of Colonial maple chairs covered with tweed patchwork . . . (Very much admired, as well as hard to come by!) . . . There are full-sized sofas, love seats, rockers, swivel rockers (a small two-seater in the latter, which we've privately dubbed a "smooching chair") . . . and large easy chairs . . . They're all blissfully comfortable . . . the sort of chairs you can take off your shoes and relax in . . . They have coil spring construction, and the intriguing patchwork covering has been treated to repel soil and stains . . . all pieces have removable arm caps . . . These sofas and chairs are terrific for a family room . . . just what you need to complement any maple furniture you already own . . . If you'd like one, do go see them soon . . . They're imported pieces, and once they're sold, it takes simply ages to get more! . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

Very thick, very black fake eyelashes are much liked and much worn by European women, according to fashion reports. Not confined to evening, either.

Myriad fashions for summer . . .

We may have mentioned previously those Canadian knit suits at Miss Frith's . . . which we consider such a tremendous value at just $35 . . . Looking at them again this week, we thought the good news would bear repeating . . . These 3-piece suits are delightfully styled and very well made . . . What's more, they come in sunny colors and summery pastels . . . lemon yellow, soft pink, lime green, coral . . . which makes them particularly nice for our local brand of summer weather . . . Just right for all except the very rare sizzling hot day . . . Another suit we admired is a white waffle knit terylene . . . which means it's hand-washable . . . Double-breasted jacket with navy buttons and trim . . . decidedly chic . . . Swinging over to the dresses, there are some honeys . . . One is a white linen sprinkled with red roses . . . sleeveless, with a flare-y cut to the skirt . . . soft red chiffon roll collar . . . There are some nice new arnel jerseys which are so comfortable and easy to care for . . . Lace coat and dress ensembles for best bib-and-tucker occasions . . . We can't begin to describe all the styles and materials but if you really want to know what's what in summer fashions, the place to go is . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

A whole section of this month's Vogue is devoted to summer knits . . . which is right in line with what we've just been telling you.

Dad loves luxury too . . .

It used to be that all the nice-smelling toiletries and attractive packaging of such, were a strictly feminine prerogative . . . but glory be, our menfolk are catching up with us fast . . . We've observed that they're very partial to the new masculine colognes and powders and pre-and-after shave lotions which are being put out by all the leading parfumeurs and cosmetic companies . . . Douglas Pharmacy now have a "Men's Bar" which is a pleasure to look at . . . and we recommend you visit it between now and Father's Day . . . Here you'll find the most complete selection of men's fine toiletries in the whole of Victoria . . . Names like Caron, Dunhill, Faberge, Chanel, Lubin, Kent of London . . . in a whole range of products . . . There's a complete line of the very popular Jade East . . . Tabac Original, from Germany . . . After-shave, cologne, stick deodorant and shaving bowl, in a nice masculine scent . . . Moustache, by Marcel Rochas . . . Another quality line from Victor of Italy . . . Canoe, which you see advertised in Esquire and Gentleman's Quarterly . . . It comes in cologne and talc, and is none too plentiful we hear . . . with anyone but Douglas Pharmacy, that is! . . . In fact you'll find all kinds of hard-to-get items at . . . Douglas Pharmacy, 1672 Douglas St., EV 5-1541.

A well-known cosmetic house is turning out new waterproof leg makeup . . . to wear under stockings for flawless-looking legs.

The "makings" of a beautiful wedding . . .

Reading newspaper accounts of weddings . . . which we sometimes do, harking back to the days when we ourselves wrote such stories in the hundreds . . . we're struck with the number of brides nowadays who make their own wedding gowns . . . a sort of feminine mystique we much approve of since we feel it adds a subtle something to the occasion! . . . And it certainly made us think of weddings when we saw the vast array of beautiful white eyelet embroideries at Saba Bros. . . . How charming for a young bride pronouncing her marriage vows this summer! . . . These eyelets come in a number of lovely designs and range in width from 36" to 54" . . . priced from $3.98 to $20 a yard . . . They make up beautifully . . . and after the honeymoon, an eyelet embroidery dress could easily be transformed into a delightful summery formal . . . Lace is lovely for weddings too . . . whether it be for the bride herself, her attendants, or mothers of the happy pair . . . Saba's undoubtedly have the best selection of laces in town . . . exquisite laces ranging in price from $1.49 to $30.98 a yard . . . Lace insertions too, and appliques for trimming . . . Pure silk illusion bridal veiling in snowy white or ice blue . . . at . . . Saba Bros. Limited, 1130 Douglas St., EV 4-0561.

Ain't it the truth? . . . Nowadays the only thing you can save for a rainy day is a cold tablet.

Titillate his sweet tooth with Welch's . . .

We know as a positive fact that most men have a sweet tooth for candy . . . (Even heard of one who sneaked a box of Welch's into a hockey game!) . . . and even while they're buying chocolates for you . . . they're almost certainly mentally ear-marking the pieces they intend to snag for themselves! . . . So this coming Father's Day, why not turn the tables and give the man of the house a box of Welch's chocolates for his very own? (then you can put a reserve sign on your favorites!) . . . Naturally on such an important occasion you won't want to take any chances . . . that's why we specify Welch's chocolates and candy . . . no matter which of the more than 50 varieties you choose, they're unfailingly delicious . . . The mint, coffee and rum flavored Truffles which Welch's have been selling for some time now, seem to be very popular with the menfolk . . . They're mouth-meltingly good . . . sell at $1.15 and $2.25 a package . . . For maple sugar fans there's candy made of maple sugar from Quebec . . . molded into intriguing shapes . . . $1 and $1.95 . . . All kinds of nice chewy wrapped candies at 80c a pound (tell the youngsters who are counting their pennies about these!) . . . Welch's Candy Shop, 755 Fort St., 383-6422.

DEAR ABBY . . .

What's in the Head Is What Matters

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am on the verge of a nervous breakdown and it's my own fault, but I can't help it. I was 20 when I married Woodley. He was 29 and completely bald except for a little fringe of hair around his head. It bothered me then, but I told myself I'd get used to it. Well, I never did. It kept bothering me more and more.

I finally made him get a toupee (it cost $200), and he looked 100 per cent better, but I was STILL ashamed to walk beside him. From a distance he looked fine, but from close up you could tell he was wearing a toupee. He said he didn't care if people knew he wore a toupee or not, he thinks it looks better than no hair at all.

I am so ashamed of myself for feeling like I do because he is the dearest, sweetest man in all the world. And the best husband, father, and provider a woman could ask for. I just hate myself for being dissatisfied with him just because he's bald. What can I do? Sometimes I think I can't stand it another day.

WOODLEY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your problem is that you obviously have never had anything important enough to worry about. A handicapped child, a helpless parent, a husband with a drinking, gambling, or chasing problem. The real problem is YOUR head and what's not IN it. Accept the realities of life if you cannot change them. And ignore the nonessentials in an otherwise good man.

DEAR ABBY: There is an old guy in our town who is driving everybody nuts. He's about 75 years old. His trouble is he can't keep his paws off women. No waitress will get within six feet of him. When he comes into the restaurant the cashier has to go over and take his order, and the cook comes out of the kitchen to serve it to him.

This guy went to a doctor for a check up and the nurse told me if he ever came back she was going to have a pair of handcuffs ready. Everybody in town knows about him. I can't understand why they let a man like that run loose. Isn't he dangerous?

SMALLTOWN GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Probably not. If everybody in town knows about him, they're safe. It's the ones they DON'T know about who are dangerous.

DEAR ABBY: Why are certain people always late? I know two. A man and a woman. The woman has no excuse whatsoever because she has no job, no children, and all the time in the world. The man is self-employed, and his reputation for tardiness is so well-known that when he makes an appointment it is assumed that he will be anywhere from half an hour to an hour late! And he always is.

But he never has the courtesy to apologize or explain. I am always prompt. My time is every bit as valuable as anyone else's, and I resent being kept waiting. Why, oh why, are some people always late?

ON TIME

DEAR ON: Show me a person who is "always late" and I'll show you a person who is selfish, inconsiderate, and emotionally immature. Like children, they live in a timeless world, and couldn't care less about the inconvenience they cause others.

Occasionally, one who is meticulously punctual will be made late through no fault of his own. But those who are chronically tardy are bound to be immature and inconsiderate in other ways.

CONFIDENTIAL TO J. F. H.: The only way I know of to double your money is to fold it over once and put it back in your pocket.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

By NONA DAMASKE

Vienna's Charm Captures Writer's Heart

Times' fashion editor, Nona Damaske, is on an overseas tour with other members of the Canadian Women's Press Club. In today's column she tells of her visit to the Glaser firm which manufactures knits in Vienna.

Damaske

VIENNA — I have fallen madly head over heels in love with Vienna . . . it's such a magnificently beautiful city. There is a distinct feeling of lightness and gaiety when you arrive in Austria after living in the Communist countries. The people seem happier, the shops are filled with beautiful merchandise and everyone is warm and friendly.

It may be all well and good to talk about quaint customs and ancient hotels but after three nights in the Hotel Slavija in Belgrade we were most happy to check into Conrad Hilton's Vienna Intercontinental.

For me, the footbath and shower arrangement which you have to hold by hand above your head will never replace a sparkling white bathtub. Bathrooms have remained very much in the dark ages throughout the Iron Curtain countries. I cannot understand why. If the Russians can send a man to the moon, why can't they stop taps from dripping, toilets from running and manage to scrape up just one rod or hook for a towel? The huge European bath towel is great but keeping it folded over a stool is impractical. And, after being without such items as soap and tissues, it was sheer joy to be able to blow your nose once and throw the whole tissue away!

We had never really been completely without these amenities because we had been told to include them in our luggage. But, we also became soft-hearted and gave everything away that we could.

Still, we were never warned to bring a sink plug and, in most cases, we had to use tissues to plug the washbasin so that we could wash out our nylons and undies. Each bathroom had a mirror of sorts but there were none in the bedrooms. With two gals in each room, this became almost a disaster situation!

While in Vienna I was able to visit a manufacturing plant where beautiful Austrian knits are made, to be shipped all over the world. In a huge 65-year-old building, Mr. Glaser continues to operate a business founded by his father. The Austrian consul in Vancouver is a member of this well-known family. All fabric is woven on the premises and the 390 employees take great pride in the gorgeous garments designed by Mrs. Glaser, a most attractive Czechoslovakian who visits Paris and Italy for design and color inspirations.

Canada receives 10 per cent of the factory's output. This is handled by Five Star Fashion in Montreal. There were many exquisitely hand-embroidered dresses and suits. The embroidery is done in the homes. There is no lack of material or customers but a dearth of experienced operators and other manpower holds production down.

Mr. and Mrs. Glaser are busy planning a collection which they'll show at Expo 67. Their display at the New York fair was a great success. The well-known and beloved fabric, jersey, was invented in Austria and is used extensively for export.

The showroom, where Mr. and Mrs. Glaser showed Nancy Lewis of the Halifax Herald and myself their fall fashions, was panelled in fine dark wood and the clothes were kept in wall cupboards with heavy carved doors. This old family business is making Austria's capital city known all over the fashion world.

PS: I bumped into Mr. and Mrs. Charles Putton and Betty and Jim Fiddess of Victoria in Yugoslavia. We met in the lobby of the Hotel Slavija. They had just come from Greece and all looked very fit and brown.

Ban Bucket Brigades— Use This Applicator

By PENNY SAVER

I swore that I would cook no more the last time I assembled bucket, scrub brush and various grease-eating compounds so that I could clean the oven. It brought to mind, more than anything, a friend of mine who was moving into a new home. The stove went with the house, and the former residents did not enjoy the oven-cleaning task at all. We spent all day scouring the inside and outside of that stove. I have found something that will take the place of the old-fashioned cleaning brigade.

This is a squeeze-on type of oven cleaner. The tube of solvent has a sponge applicator attached. You just squeeze the tube and spread the cleaner on the surface of the oven. It should be used only on ceramic-porcelain, chrome, iron or stainless steel surfaces. If you are in doubt about using it on a certain type of surface, make a test spot on an inconspicuous section.

Selling for 98 cents the tube, this cleaner is great for barbecue grills too. Just squeeze and apply. There is no more scrubbing between the tiny spaces with this.

Let the solvent react for 15 to 30 minutes, then wash off with a cloth and a solution of water and vinegar. The cleaner may be left on overnight, too, with no harmful affects to your oven.

I found another very interesting chemical while in this shop. It is for spraying on the undersides of rugs to prevent them from slipping and skidding. Calamity Jane that I am, I don't know how many times in the course of my life I have taken a quick trip on a carpet that has sent me flying!

This spray-on solution acts as an adhesive to keep your rugs stationary. Place your rug upside down on some old papers and spray away. Let it dry for an hour. Apply two coats for added protection, then worry no more. This is a boon to the homemaker for 98 cents.

Rid your home of dangerous "flying carpets". Give Penny a call at 382-3131.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

One of the clearest memories of my childhood is the rag and bone man who used to clatter his cart around our English town. The clang of those wooden wheels was always the signal for we tots to pester our patient mothers into a little unscheduled house cleaning. The reason for our enthusiasm was that the popular vendor was smart enough to appreciate a good "leg man" when he saw one. He always came armed with goodies, geared to disarm the most off-hand youngster. My very first pet was one of the goldfish he used to bring. It would have lived longer if I hadn't overfed it in my eagerness to see it grow an inch a day!

On first sight, Mrs. Edmund Lord, 2307 Victor Street, is the antithesis of my old chum, the rag and bone man. Yet, when I met her this week, I was struck by the similarity of their searches.

In the case of Mrs. Lord, she is always on the hunt for scraps of wool and material. No, she's not a confirmed "pack rat" . . . she uses every scrap given her to fashion heel-less socks, quilts and clothes for children in Korea and other needy countries.

Her "count" since the beginning of the year includes 20 pairs of socks, a veritable wardrobe of tots' dresses and baby sweaters by the dozen. All have been given to the Unitarian Service Committee for shipment to Korea and the Middle East.

And, although she was able to complete seven quilts before the year's end, Laurel Lord is already busy completing another stack of colorful comforters.

Hubby Pitches In Too

She's lucky enough to have a husband who doesn't object to her year-round charitable work. In fact, he gives a willing hand when it comes time to "stuff" the quilts.

Although the Lords have only lived here for three years, Laurel Lord's contribution to the needy children of the world began 25 years ago. This was when the Lords lived in Winnipeg and their three children were at the high school stage.

"I had time on my hands and I've always liked to be busy so I joined the sewing committee of the Save the Children Fund. We had a room in the basement of the civic auditorium. Three or four women worked there every day. There were six sewing machines, all donated. There should be something like that here"

Finding no such centre in Victoria, Mrs. Lord decided to start her own. Her far from large house is crammed with the results of her labors. But still she's not happy. "There are so many needy children in the world and I hate to think of them being cold or miserable because of a pair of socks or a dress I could have made to bring them pleasure."

What keeps her from being the happiest woman in town? "All I would like is to have any woman with scraps of wool or material which she isn't using to get in touch with me. I'm not an organizer, but I need those scraps to do my small part in helping children in want."

If she has one criticism of modern mothers, it's this: "They're so afraid that their children will break something that they never let them try anything for themselves . . . my mother was different."

Facts prove that she is right. At the ripe old age of 10 years, Laurel Lord completed her first major sewing project.

Made Her First Coat at 10

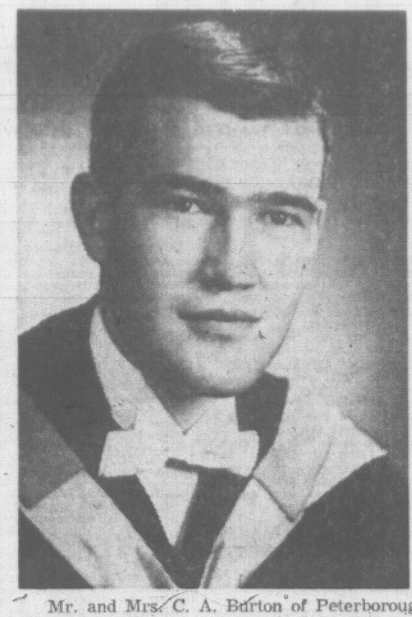
"Our family lived on a farm north of Winnipeg. My little brother, Garnet, needed a new coat to go to the city. My mother let me make it. It was of scarlet blanket cloth and he and I were pretty proud of it when it was finished."

Now with six grandchildren, all fortunate enough to have mothers who love to sew and knit, Mrs. Lord still uses her nimble fingers to bring joy and warmth into the lives of the children.

Unlike my old friend, the rag and bone man, she's not in the position to be able to trundle a cart through the streets in search of the items she needs. "All I ask is that people phone me at 385-0453 and I'll see that everything is collected. I want to stress that the committee provides wool, but it's only for sweaters. Nothing is provided for socks, and I know how miserable you can be when your feet are cold!

"So, any scrap of wool will be used . . . and, if there's wool suitable for babies' sweaters, I'd be so grateful. Any pieces that could be used for quilts would come in handy, and if anyone has any old flannelette sheets they don't want, they're perfect for filling quilts."

Mrs. Lord doesn't have any bowl of goldfish with which to cajole her "leg men." She has something better . . . the knowledge that your scraps could help bring happiness to a youngster who's earthly pittance is usually a tear-drenched pillow and an always empty stomach. It seems to me that we can't afford not to help.



Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Burton of Peterborough, Ont., announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Carol Ann, to Dr. Desmond Edwin Espley, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Espley, 3118 Henderson Road, Victoria. The wedding will take place on Friday, June 24, at 7 p.m. in Peterborough. Dr. Espley is a 1966 graduate of the faculty of dentistry, University of Toronto. Of Personal Interest

LUNCHEON GUEST

On Monday, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will give a luncheon in Government House. The guest of honor will be Mr. D. M. Thompson, dominion secretary of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Leaving Next Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Silvio Linuzzi of Albina Street will leave Victoria next Friday, en route to a three-month holiday in Italy, England and France. They will visit Mr. Linuzzi's parents, who live in northern Italy, and relatives of Mrs. Linuzzi, who make their homes in Italy, England and Paris. The couple plans to fly from Vancouver to Milan via Greenland and Amsterdam and will return to Victoria in mid-September.

Wed 60 Years

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Homuth left for Vancouver on Thursday, making the trip via Nanaimo. On Monday they will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary with relatives and friends on the mainland. The Homuths will return to their Wilmer Street home the following day.

Wishing Well

A decorated wishing well contained the gifts presented to bride-elect Miss Sherry Clay when she was entertained at a shower by Mrs. Joyce Hatcher. The affair was held in the Hadfield Road home of Mrs. Hatcher's sister, Mrs. H. E. Maitland. Ribbon roses en corsage were presented to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. Gordon Clay; the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. L. Easton, and his great-aunt, Mrs. Bea Patterson, Calgary. Invited guests were Mrs. A. Crouch, Mrs. T. Flannagan, Mrs. A. Cuthbert, Mrs. F. Wheeley, Mrs. A. Patterson, Mrs. R. Jackson, Mrs. J. Owens, Mrs. E. Alexander, Mrs. G. Kraeling, Mrs. G. Cook, Mrs. K. Spiers, the Misses Pat Jackson and Karen Easton.

Victoria Guests

A number of Victoria residents travelled to Salt Spring Island today for the wedding of Miss Susan Graham and Mr. Joseph Ortman. They included Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Thibault, Mrs. E. Here for Graduation

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Walker and their daughter, Sheilah, have arrived from New Delhi and were at Victoria Senior Secondary School on Friday evening to see their other daughter, Nancye, graduate. Also here from North Vancouver for the ceremony were Mrs. Walker's brother-in-law and sister, Mrs. T. R. Ryan. The young graduate is the granddaughter of well-known sportsman and coach, Mr. Archie McKinnon, and Mrs. McKinnon.

July Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Robin C. E. Justice, 848 Swan Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their second daughter, Barbara Jean, to Mr. Robert David Stuart Cutler, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Cutler, St. Bruno, P.Q., formerly of Victoria. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 2, in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Ortman-Graham Vows Heard In Ganges United Church

A family heirloom brooch, which dates back to 1835, fulfilled the bridal tradition of "something old" for Susan Daphne Graham, this afternoon, when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with Joseph L. Ortman in Ganges United Church, Salt Spring Island.

The brooch was the only jewelry accent to the bride's floor-length gown of white Guipure lace over pure silk shantung. The empire-line bodice featured a round neckline and the skirt was styled with a divided lace panel, forming a redingote effect. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted softly to her shoulders from a coronet of lace. Pink and white roses, stephanotis and ivy were in her cascade bouquet.

Arrangements of pink and white gladioli decorated the church for the service at which Rev. E. W. McQuarrie officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. H. Bradley, Salt Spring Island, and the late Lieut. Vivian H. Graham. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Ortman of Humboldt, Sask. Mr. Bradley gave his stepdaughter in marriage and Mrs. McQuarrie was organist.

Matching gowns of wild rose crepe, similar to the bride's, were worn by her attendants: Her sister, Mrs. Robert Wiebe, and Miss Margaret-Ann Moffat of Powell River; Mrs. Harry Bially, Victoria, and Miss Frieda Ortman, Humboldt. The empire waistlines and sleeves of the gowns were banded with appliqued lace daisies and similar highlights accented the butterfly bow headpieces of matching fabric. They carried bouquets of pink and white marguerites.

Rodger Boychuk was best man. Ushering guests to their pews were Gordon Uggla, Robert Grute and Mr. Wiebe.

The couple used a pearl-handled knife and fork to cut their three-tier wedding cake, topped with pink rosebuds, which centred the lace-covered bride's table at the reception following in the Booth Bay home of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley. The knife and fork were a gift of the bride's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. V. Case Morris, Ganges, and had been used to cut their own wedding cake. Peter Cartwright proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon in Mr. Bradley's cruiser "Latifa," the new Mrs. Ortman donned a white sharkskin suit, trimmed with navy blue braid. A blue hat, white accessories and gardenia corsage completed the outfit.

END OF SEASON GATHERING

Phi Zeta Chapter Honors Members

Members of Phi Zeta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, gathered in the Dallas Road home of Miss June Mann, following the chapter's wind-up dinner in the Princess Mary Restaurant.

Bride-elect Miss Joan Stallybrass was presented with a gaily decorated basket of gifts, in honor of her forthcoming marriage, by president Mrs. G. Ackerman and past president Miss Doreen Falkner.

During the evening, a pledge ritual was given for new member Miss Jan Manville and engraved coffee spoons were presented by Miss Audrey Hayley to Miss Falkner, girl of the year, and the Misses Lynne Wells, Cheri Custance, and Lorraine Hugh, who are leaving the city this summer.

Also attending the affair were Mrs. P. Frampton, member advisor Miss Doris Hooper, the Misses Christel Sundby, Donna Butler, Elaine Gent, Karen Hewett and Darlene Wilson.

Announcement

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Baker of Castlegar, B.C., announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Vivian Ruth, to Mr. Gordon Douglas Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fraser, 4237 Carey Road, Victoria. The wedding will take place on Saturday, June 25 in Como Lake United Church, Coquitlam, B.C.

FOLLOWS TODAY'S WEDDING

Honeymoon Trip to California

Following their wedding, this afternoon, in Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, Shelbourne Street, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bruessler left for a honeymoon trip motoring to San Francisco, Calif.

The bride, the former Sharon Rose Bjornson, is the daughter of Mrs. Perla Bjornson, 1170 Tattersall Drive, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. Bruessler of Port Alberni. Gerald Brookall officiated at the ceremony and Harold Bjornson gave his sister in marriage.

Lace appliques starred the front panel of the bride's floor-length bell-skirted gown of peau de soie. Similar accents trimmed the train which swept back from the waistline. Sleeves ended in lily points. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted to shoulder-length from a cluster of flowers and pearls and she carried gardenias and stephanotis in her cascade bouquet.

Miss Joanne Bjornson was maid of honor for her sister in an empire-line gown of rose-toned printed silk over blue. A similar gown with matching silk over lilac fabric was worn by bridesmaid, Miss Joan Valen. Both wore self-fabric rose headpieces and carried bouquets of toning carnations.

Best man was Hans Waschewski, Port Alberni.

The garden of the home of the bride's mother provided an attractive setting for the reception which followed.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Bruessler donned a sheer Paisley print dress in blue and green tones, topped with a matching tunic coat. Complementing the outfit were white accessories and corsage of gardenias.

The couple will make their home in Port Alberni.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bjornson and Shelley travelled from their Dawson Creek, B.C., home to attend the wedding, and here from Fort St. John, B.C., was Michael Bjornson.

Comedy-Errors

A number of the receipts from the recent Jerry Gosley Smile Show that "doubled" as receipts for membership in the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, were illegible or incorrectly completed. Those that attended the concert and have not received their membership cards from the branch are asked to phone 385-7811, giving their names and addresses.

TWO HAPPY ISLAND FAMILIES

Mr. and Mrs. G. Vandenburg and their 3 daughters of 2715 Scaffe Road, Langford, also Mr. and Mrs. A. Cockshutt and daughter of 3175 Tarn Place, were the lucky winners of a 13½-ft. trailer each, drawn for the Victoria Cosmopolitan Club at the Memorial Arena on Saturday evening, June 4.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

Here is an unusual type of bridge problem. The game was duplicate and South had no trouble making exactly three no-trump for a top score. It seems that at every other table North made the same spade overcall and for some reason or other South simply raised his partner in spades.

East-West vulnerable

West	North	East	South
1 ♦	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♥	Pass	3 N.T.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥ 2.

Four spades would be a wrap-up with South as declarer but when East was on lead he opened the ten of diamonds and the defence collected three diamonds and one club with no trouble at all.

Mike Thomas of Kansas City was South. Mike would be one of our top players if his duties with National Steel allowed him to play a lot of bridge. Still he does mighty well when he gets to play.

North was Priscilla Thomas. Priscilla is learning bridge and, as both Jacobys can tell you, in the process of teaching a wife to play bridge the husband takes considerable control in the bidding and tends to work the play around to his hand whenever possible.

Mike's bidding was brilliant. He could count six spade tricks as a no-trump declarer. He had found out that his partner had something in hearts. He was looking at that king of diamonds and knew that if he raised spades, East would lead through it. The result was as good as anyone can hope for. A top score is always a top score. So our problem is: Would Mike have bid the same way with another expert partner?

The really noteworthy feature of the hand is the remark by Priscilla as Mike played his sixth spade. She asked: "Would you have raised me with seven of my suit?"

OFFER FOR MARINE ENGINES

OFFERS: Plainly marked on the envelope, "Offer on PT 34" will be received by the undersigned up to 5 p.m., July 7, 1966, for the following marine engines:

Two Graymarine V-8 "Fireball" gasoline marine engines of 327 cu. ins. displacement together with instrument panels. (These engines being replaced by diesels.)

The engines will be sold on the basis of condition "as is and where is," when removed from the Forest Service launch Conifer II at a shipyard in Port Alberni early in July. The engines which have Paragon 1.5:1 reduction gears, may be seen in operation at the Stone Bros. float, ft. of Argyle Street, Port Alberni, B.C., between the hours of 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. Monday to Friday until June 30th by arrangement with Mr. J. Berg, phone Port Alberni 723-7615. Possession of engines may be taken on or about July 15 or earlier if available.

Offers must be accompanied by a certified cheque or money order made payable to the Minister of Finance for 10% of the bid.

The highest or any offers will not necessarily be accepted, but the bearer of a successful bid will be required to pay the SS Tax.

Catch Up on Life at
SHAWNIGAN BEACH HOTEL

Moderate prices begin at $15 a day for TWO persons, comfortable room and delicious meals included, or $94.50 for a full week's stay—larger lakeview rooms slightly higher.

For one person prices begin at $9 a day or $56.70 for a week, room and meals included.

This kind of holiday means no meals to get, cheerful and friendly hospitality, most comfortable surroundings and pleasant companions.

If you are the outdoors type, our 30 acres of grounds include a delightful 5-hole, 500-yard mashie golf course with quick action greens, tennis court, badminton court, volley ball, shuffleboard, table tennis, "Sherwood Forest" trails, launch trips on the lake, free boats and fishing tackle, water skiing, swimming and safe sandy beach.

Indoors, we have two large lounges, coffee room, excellent library. "The Fire That Is Never Out." This is "The" place for children, play area, rumpus room, planned programme, baby sitters and much more.

We suggest driving out for lunch or dinner, the new highway just completed into Shawnigan is great!

OR BETTER STILL—

145 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

DO YOU NEED A NEW INTEREST

Here's an intriguing opportunity for you. One acre of land and four cement block buildings all set up with heating plant and cooler for mushroom production. The land and buildings are worth more than the asking price. A terrific potential is here for an enterprising couple or family. If you are not happy later on then you can sell and get your money back — OR build a home and use the buildings for animals — OR use the property for purely storage purposes. There's a very lucrative business waiting here for someone and it's all a bargain at the asking price of $12,000. (Replacement cost would be $20,000 at least?) Interested? Call Mr. Yells, 382-2101. Res. 383-5069.

A WAY OF LIFE

Neat tidy general-type store, well located in a choice VANCOUVER ISLAND industrial area — excellent volume can be handled by the working family, or if father wants to fish, excellent staff are available. Clean up-to-date inventory, best of fixtures and equipment. Purchaser can buy the business only and rent the store, or can buy the buildings, which have three excellent rentals plus a large 3-bedroom home on beautiful waterfront. You won't end up a millionaire, but you will enjoy life, lose your ulcers and learn to live like a human being again. This is a unique opportunity and certainly worth your consideration if you are looking for 'A WAY OF LIFE.' For all particulars, please phone, write or wire BOB TURNER now at LAKE COWICHAN 749-3404 or 749-3252. No obligation, of course.

COULD IT BE?

V.L.A. that is? This amazing home started out as a Cape Cod Bungalow, a small home on a BIG, BIG ACRE, designed for seclusion — "close to everything." Now with the brand new addition there is a spacious 1400 sq. ft., 3 bedrooms, new hardwood floors, new electric heat, dozens of extras and the landscaped grounds are as beautiful as ever! You must see it to really believe it! AND believe it or not the price is $15,900. BEV McARTHUR, EV 5-6741 anytime.

BARGAIN!

Price slashed to $15,600. Owner has bought, will take a loss! Modern de luxe, 6 rooms, full basement. Large lot. Country views. Trees. Save as much as $2,000 on this one. Well worth a call to EV 5-6741. Frank Richardson.

SUNNY SERENITY

Looking for a large, gracious, no-step home? You'll fall in love with this charmer! Adjacent rocks and trees enhance the low architecture. The beautiful living room has deep windows nearly opposite wide windows for that "see through view" and "dawn to last light" brightness. The guest dining room inspires entertainment and the well planned kitchen a step away, makes it a joy. Three lovely bedrooms, 4-pce bath and big utility room, plumbed and wired with plenty of shelves and counter space, make for complete living. In a home of this quality, open fireplace, gleaming hardwood floors throughout and oil-o-matic heat are simply taken for granted. Everything is expensive but the price? Asking only $14,900. BEV McARTHUR, EV 5-6741 anytime.

SPARKLING NEW

A new home at less than building cost. This one-year-young, two-bedroom bungalow is absolutely in "mint condition". There is a large living room, fireplace (unused) a family-size elec. kitchen with all the cabinets you will ever need, plus a high basement and roughed-in play room. Drive-in garage and landscaped. All this for $14,200. Terms. Call J. RODGER or P. KUGENER, EV 5-6741.

CLOSE IN

Vendors of this 4-year-old stucco home are moving to Seattle this month. Large living room with L-shaped dining room. Electric kitchen with eating nook and utility off. 2-bedrooms. Looking for Something DIFFERENT?

For the couple or family that wants a 3-BR home — here is one with a plan that is practical, unique, charming. Architect - designed, quality-built, attractively finished post and beam. Open plan with combined dining area and family room opening onto large patio facing south. Located on a 92x95 lot, close in, midway between elementary and high schools. With the landscaped garden you couldn't duplicate this today for $24,900. WILF DAVIS, 388-4271 or residence 658-5276.

LET'S FACE IT

Where can you buy a spacious modern, completely finished home on a good seaview lot fully landscaped for $36,500? Isn't it worth living six miles from city centre in a select area where ALL homes are over $30,000, where schools, particularly the senior high are so handy, where the prevailing west wind doesn't bother? I have a house in Georgia Park that meets these requirements and much more. It has 3 BRs plus den and 2 full bathrooms on upper level, it has a 21-ft. LR, a 13x11 DR and kitchen with built-in range on main floor. It has a large family room which opens onto a patio at rear (the DR also has a raised patio through French doors), a games room, sewing room, workshop, double garage with automatic door. You can't find many to compare with this one and you'll never regret "moving out." Phone today for appointment to see WILF DAVIS 388-4271 or 658-5276.

BUILT FOR THE BRITISH ADMIRAL!
THE PRINCE OF WALES
SLEPT HERE

So the story goes — and we have no reason to disbelieve it as this 13-room home was obviously built around the turn of the century, is situated near the Navy Base. It has a commanding view of the sea and is nestled in a setting of Oak trees. What a story the old manse could tell!

And now that the Admiral has long since passed the maritime scene the house remains, and is being used as lodging for sailors. While the years have taken their toll and a renovating job is obviously needed this property nevertheless provides the owner with a home and income. Retiring owner wishes to sell and the price is $12,000. Call DON BACON, 388-4271.

BEAUTIFUL ESTATE
DUNCAN AREA

This lovely estate would make a terrific GUEST RANCH, SUMMER RESORT or CAMPING AREA for large organization. With a LARGE PRIVATE LAKE—WOODED AREAS — PASTURES — and MODERN BUILDINGS — The present owner, who is retiring raises beef cattle — The lake is stocked with trout and the area is teeming with WILDLIFE — Birds and DEER, LOTS OF WATER for irrigation and a DEEP WELL with continuous EXCELLENT WATER. The HUGE barn will hold a whole DAIRYHERD (Cement stalls) and the loft holds HUNDREDS OF TONS of hay. There are stables, equipment barns, etc., and a GOOD two bedroom residence, and many other fine buildings. At present used as a BEEF RANCH. This is no doubt one of the most delightful properties with its luscious green pastures, rolling hills and beautiful views. At the end of a PAVED ROAD and VERY SECLUDED yet close to Duncan and only 30 minutes to Victoria.

EXPERIMENT

Schools Integrate By Mail

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—An experiment aimed at promoting understanding between Indians and whites is being conducted by two schools 180 miles apart.

Students at Sir Richard McBride elementary school here have been linked with Indian students at the remote Gilford Bay school on Simoom Sound, 180 miles northwest of Vancouver.

At first the students will exchange letters. Later they plan to exchange tape recordings and photo albums and eventually have students from one school visit students at the other.

The experiment is part of what may become a province-wide project marking the 100th anniversary this year of the union of Vancouver Island and mainland British Columbia.

Planned by 50 students from all parts of the province, the project would seek to have 100 schools in isolated Indian communities paired with non-Indian schools.

"There are children in these remote communities who have never seen a car or a road," says Isla Service, director of the B.C. and Yukon division of the Canadian Junior Red Cross, sponsor of the project. "And at the same time there are children in Vancouver who have no idea how people in their own province live. This project will be of mutual benefit."

Break, Entry Charges Laid Against Youths

Two youths charged with breaking and entering had their cases remanded when they appeared in central court today.

Albert Canfield, 1140 Palmer, and Barry Cragg, 9655 First St., Sidney, are charged with breaking into the Supersonic Car Wash, 628 Gorge Rd. Both reserved plea. Their cases will be heard June 17.

Two youths arrested near the car wash early today.

Pays Back Rent With Bad Cheque

A youth who cashed a worthless cheque at a store to pay his back rent pleaded guilty to false pretences when he appeared in central court today.

Ian Tateham, 20, of 123 South Turner will appear in court June 21 for sentence.

He admitted cashing a cheque for $25 at Woodward's April 30 on a bank account with a $3 balance. The money was used to pay his board at a house from which he had just moved.

Theatre Set For Re-Opening

The former Atlas Theatre, 836 Yates, will re-open to the public as the Coronet on Friday, June 24, at 6:30 p.m., John Kostiuk, resident manager, announced today.

Under new management, the 900-seat theatre has been renovated and new sound equipment installed.

The first of a series of new films, A Thousand Clowns, will be shown.

Visiting Mayors Tour City Area

Nearly 400 of the 1,000 delegates to the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities paid a social visit to Victoria Friday following their four-day Vancouver convention.

They were entertained at luncheon in the Empress Hotel and toured the district before returning to the mainland in the afternoon.

Politics Play Leading Role In Judgeships

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Almost all judges appointed to superior courts in eight provinces between 1945 and 1965 were affiliated with the political party in power, an informal study by members of the Association of Canada Law Teachers shows.

R. C. B. Risk, associate professor of law at the University of Toronto, read a summary report of the study Friday at the association's annual meeting.

Based on data collected by faculty members at law schools in the provinces the study shows:

- Of 10 persons appointed in Nova Scotia, 14 in New Brunswick, 23 in Saskatchewan and 25 in Alberta, almost all were affiliated with the party in power and almost all were active in politics.
- Of 108 in Quebec, more than four-fifths were affiliated with the party in power and affiliated with the party in power and active in politics.
- Of 44 in Ontario, at least seven-eighths were affiliated with the party in power and two-thirds were active in politics. Of 21 in Manitoba, "about 18 were affiliated with the party in power."
- Of 31 in British Columbia, nine-tenths were affiliated with the party in power and two-third were active in politics. Newfoundland and Prince Edfard Island, which do not have law schools, were not included in the survey.

Superior courts include such courts as the high court and the Court of Appeal in Ontario and the Superior Court, Court of Queen's Bench and the Court of Appeal in Quebec.

DEFENDS PROCEDURE

A. T. Hewitt, an Ottawa lawyer and lecturer in law at the University of Ottawa, defended the existing procedure.

He said all but a few lawyers are affiliated with the political parties and active in politics. To eliminate politics would eliminate most members of the bar as possible candidates for the bench.

Harry W. Arthurs of Osgoode Hall Law School, Toronto, said Mr. Hewitt misinterpreted the significance of the survey, which was the lawyers picked to be judges came from "one particular side of the political war."

Jacob S. Zeigel, professor of law at the University of Saskatchewan, said:

"Since judges are appointed to administer justice, the system by which they are appointed should reflect justice."

No one was protesting that lawyers picked to be judges should not have had a background in politics. Those who wanted reform in the existing system just felt "political considerations should not be the governing factor."

William H. Angus, professor of law at the University of Alberta, recommended that an independent committee be established in each province.

The committee could select a list of qualified candidates for the federal justice minister, who could make a recommendation to the cabinet. Or if the justice minister wished to consider other prospects, he could submit names to the committee for appraisal.

Dragnet Collects 'Pushers'

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have arrested 95 persons in a round-the-clock crackdown on narcotics in Harlem.

More than 100 detectives participated in the roundup. They worked on information gathered for more than a month by undercover agents—some of them women and many of them in various disguises.

Most of those arrested were accused of being dope pushers. The others were charged with being narcotics users. Women were among those arrested.

Heroin worth several thousand dollars was reported seized.

Deputy Chief Inspector Ira Bluth, commander of the police narcotics bureau, said no "kingpins" were caught.

Chief Inspector Sanford Garelik said:

"This will not end the dope trafficking in Harlem, because it did not cut off the supply. And no matter how many pushers you knock over, there are more who will take their place. But this will limit it."

'Can't Remember What He Does When Drinking

A Sooke man who kicked and punched his friend while drunk was remanded in custody when he pleaded guilty Friday to assault causing bodily harm.

William Nelson admitted he didn't know what he was doing or where he was when he got in the fight with Edward Delahunt, 116 North Park, early in the morning on June 2 at his friend's apartment.

He had been celebrating earlier in the evening because he thought he was going to get a job, the accused told the court.

Mr. Delahunt, who said Nelson "doesn't remember what he does when he gets a little too much to drink," said he was hit in the eye and kicked in the face and ribs.

Nelson was released from jail May 20 after serving five months for assaulting a police officer. He has also been jailed for breaking and entering with intent and indecent assault.

Magistrate Ostler said he wanted a pre-sentence and a psychiatric report before passing sentence June 17.

Commons Reviews Youth Corps Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The bill setting up the Company of Young Canadians received second reading in the Commons Friday. Clause-by-clause study of the measure has now begun.

Prime Minister Pearson, who introduced the bill, said 2,500 applications and inquiries from potential volunteers have been received. Forty per cent were from women.

Applications were from all age groups including the 50s and 60s, although 85 per cent were from the 18-25 bracket. Mr. Pearson hoped more older people would apply. There's a minimum age of 18 but no maximum.

The Commons is expected to complete its consideration of the bill next week, but the first order of business Monday is legislation to expand the student loan fund.

The company is to start work in earnest later this month with a six-week orientation course for its first 69 volunteers. They will get expenses in the field, a little spending money and, when they finish service, a small honorarium.

GIVES WARNING

Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle) although supporting the bill, warned of dangers.

"Horrible snafus" had occurred in the U.S. Peace Corps, "resulting in a tremendous amount of idealism and enthusiasm being turned into an unholy mess."

He said nothing in the bill gives a "clear-cut concept of what is to be done." Mr. Pearson had been vague.

The Commons turned to the Company of Young Canadians after side-stepping a bicultural dispute over a bill to set up a corporation to run the National Arts Centre.

All parties favored the centre—a $36,000,000 Ottawa complex now under construction—but the ethnic composition of its board of trustees proved the stumbling block.

Raynald Guay (L — Levis) proposed an amendment that would make the membership of the board reflect the bilingual nature of Canada.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said that it was dangerous and would divide Canadians on the basis of race. Immigration Minister Marchand said he wished the amendment hadn't been moved but he would find it hard to vote against it.

The Commons approved all other clauses in the arts centre bill and allowed membership on the board to stand for further debate, likely next week.

On the new company, Mr. Hamilton urged that its directors consider the "desire of young people to take action and to belong to groups that are different from their seniors." This thinking could be used "for good purposes."

But he was not suggesting that the answer was to "teach them to wear tight pants, pointed shoes, long hair and beat guitars."

David MacDonald (PC—Prince) said it would be a tragedy if anything impinged on the company's independence. It could become the biggest political football.

The bill sets out the objects of the company in part as: Community development work in urban and rural Canadian areas; programs to assist young people handicapped economically or socially and school dropouts; vocational training projects; recreation projects for young people; public health programs; home economics education, and assistance programs to people in other countries to raise their standards of living.

LIN PIAO
. . . emerging?

Peking Hints At Successor To Aging Mao

TOKYO (AP) — China's defence minister, Lin Piao, seemed today to be emerging from the country's current purge as a likely successor to aging Communist Party Chief Mao Tse-tung.

Red Flag, the theoretical organ of the Chinese Communist party's central committee, portray's the 57-year-old defence minister as an interpreter of Mao's ideas—a distinction not given any other of Mao's associates. Mao is 72.

The important journal says that good Marxists must "place Mao Tse-tung's thought right in the forefront in all work and absorb comrade Lin Piao's very important instructions on the living study and application of Chairman Mao's works."

ISSUED TO ARMY

The instructions referred to were issued to the army by Lan Piao last November. They advise that the best military weapon in modern times is not aircraft or atom bombs but the thinking of Mao.

Lin's instructions have been cited many times during the purge and their reprint today was bound to reinforce speculation that the defence minister has come forward as the main candidate for Mao's mantle.

Another contender, Peking Mayor Peng Chen, was caught up in the purge and fired as the party's chief official in the capital's municipal administration.

In the article, Red Flag says the purge was designed to block a possible overthrow of the Communist regime and a bloodbath.

China Crops Showing Increases

PEKING (Reuters) —China, which has bought wheat from Western countries after drought-hit harvests, reported today a bumper crop from Shantung, one of its major wheat-producing provinces.

The New China news agency says that except in a few districts particularly hit by drought, crop yields in general showed an increase over last year.

It recalls that last fall the Communist party called on communes to "discard illusions and get ready for a protracted fight against drought."

"More than 70 per cent of the party and government functionaries in charge of agriculture left their offices and went out to the villages," in Shantung, the agency says.

Work on large-scale irrigation projects continued through the winter and spring.

Canada, Australia, Argentina and France are among the countries which have exported wheat to China since 1964.

ABOLITION of NATO and Warsaw Pact was urged today by Romanian Communist party leader Nicolae Ceausescu. He called for a new basis of international relations in Europe after withdrawal of all foreign troops and dismantling of foreign bases.

Plane Getaway Foiled by Pilot

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) Two men accused of a flying robbery were in jail today after the pilot of a plane searching for them spotted their hiding place.

A bloodhound led a ground party to a garage 15 miles north of here Friday where police found Larry Crews, 26, and James Harkenson, 27, rain-soaked and weary.

Officers said earlier Friday two men chartered a plane in Juneau and told pilot Ken Locken they were on a business trip that included a stop at Sitka.

At Sitka, Locken was told to wait at the plane float. A short time later, Sitka police said two men held up the Pioneer Bar and escaped with $2,500.

Locken said his passengers returned, climbed back into the plane, pulled pistols and ordered a quick takeoff. He said the men offered him $1,000 to fly them to Seattle.

Locken appeared to play along with them, but flew slowly to use up fuel. After flying 130 miles he told them he would have to land because he was low on fuel.

He landed off a beach north of here and the two fled into the woods.

Crews and Harkenson, who said they were from Everett, Wash., were charged with armed robbery and bail was set at $10,000 each.

CHURCH WORTH MORE

The Lutheran Church in America had assets of $67,466,484 in 1965, an increase from $59,915,866 the year before.

HORSING AROUND TO WIN?

To select a winning horse number at a race, a gambler divided the number of people present by the temperature, multiplied by the number of horns on a horse's head, and added 44. What number did he play?

Answer: He played number 44.

BICYCLING BUILT FOR TWO

Four boys in the Tugg family share two bicycles and, therefore, are able to go on bicycling expeditions only two at a time. In how many different pairs can they go?

Answer in one minute, if you can.

Answer: In six different pairs. Suppose they are A, B, C and D. Then they can go AB, CD, AC, AD, BC, BD.

TALKING POINT

It takes just 30 seconds to read this story and another 30 seconds are allotted to test your reasoning power.

A woman enters a taxicab.

Cab starts off.

Woman begins to talk.

Driver hates talkative passengers.

Woman continues to talk; asks a question.

Driver thinks fast; points to mouth, shakes head as if to signal he can't reply; points to ears, signalling he can't hear.

Woman stops talking.

Arriving at her destination, the woman realizes she's been hoaxed.

What makes her aware?

Answer: If the driver couldn't have heard, as he intimated, he wouldn't have known where to take her.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

A retrospective glance shows that our recent Centennial Stamp Exhibition was well worth the effort, for it was successful in all respects.

Eighteen hundred people visited the show, many of them from the United States and the mainland; and nearly 200 attended the banquet, where provincial archivist Willard Ireland gave an amusing talk on the state of local affairs a century ago.

Victoria exhibitors did quite well; and if we did not receive the Grand Award (a cup which had been presented by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes) we can console ourselves with the knowledge the one or two of our finest collections were on exhibit in the Court of Honor, and therefore not for competition.

Col. Chas. Marston of Spokane won the coveted trophy with a very fine display of Great Britain. Dr. W. C. Horning of Victoria was the runner-up, receiving the Van Dahl Reserve trophy and a gold medal for his New Zealand.

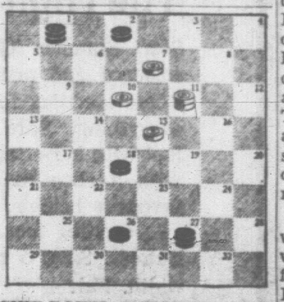
Two other gold medals were won by local collectors — one by Walter Hundleby for his exhibit of U.S.S.R. (which was also awarded the Benjamin Weeks Jr. Trophy) and the other by Gerald Vaulkhard, a junior, for his Canadian entry, for which he also received the Robertson Trophy.

Silver medals were awarded to Abner Garland (for his unique Assassinations and Executions); Miss Jessie Gordon (Milestones in Canadian History); E. Lorenson (Canadian Pioneer Airmail Covers), and Miss Vida Morley (Israel). Two juniors, Margaret Hopkins and Keith Morley, also got silver medals for their frames of Hungary and New Zealand, respectively.

Lester Small, who incidentally was chairman of the exhibition, won two bronze medals — one for his attractive collection of Israel, and the other for B.C. cancellations.

A similar award was given to Mrs. D. de Tremaudan for her Gallery of Paintings; to Vernon Richards (Nepal); Stuart McDonald (Space Age), and to a junior, Janet Arnold (Nature Study).

Miss Helen Small received an honorable mention for her study of The Dance, as Shown on Stamps.



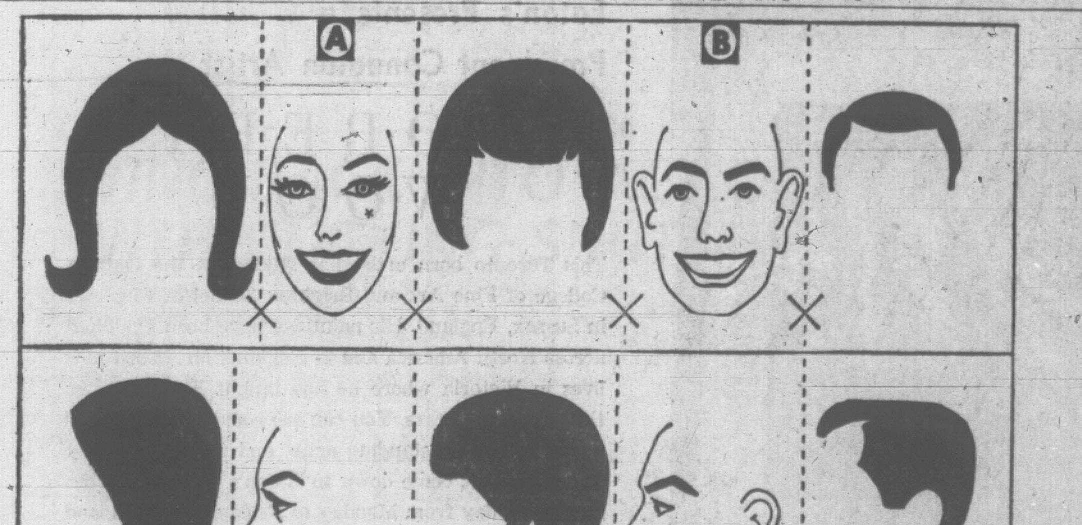
CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST

White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in three moves is the challenge at right. How is it done?

For your information, White gives away one man, then two, then sweeps the board.

Long-time checker champ Millard Hopper gives his solution below, if needed.

Solution: White 11-8, Black 2-11, White 10-6, Black 1-10-19, White 8-15-24-31-22-15.



Hair today and gone tomorrow? Old hat! Our new slogan: Hair it is, hair it ain't! Not only do we put hair on and take it off, but we're able to flip it and flop it from she to she, she to he and vice versa (that's really splitting hairs, folks). Here's how:

Let's say you want to observe the young lady in column A at right sporting the hairdo to her left. Hold the page before your eyes, about ten inches away, and fix your gaze upon the figure X (between the girl and the hairdo). Then, bring the page slowly forward, continuing to stare at the X. Presto, chango, alakazam! The hairdo shifts to the young lady's head. To flip to the style in centre, simply repeat the process, staring at the adjacent X, etc. Side views below are effected similarly. Substitute your own likeness for the faces shown and, who knows, you may come up with a new hairdo.

Ganges Residents Petitioned

GANGES — Residents here Friday night took the first step towards incorporation as a village.

At a public meeting a steering committee was elected to circulate a petition to obtain the signatures of 60 per cent of the owner-residents favoring a referendum.

The proposed village area includes the property from the Lady Minto Hospital to Cranbury Road and from the waterfront to Atkins Road. It also includes limited sections on either side of the Fulford-Ganges Road.

The village proposal arose as a result of a local sewer survey. The investigators decided that the cost of disposing sewage would be less if the area were incorporated as a vallage.

At the present time individual septic tanks are used.

The area has a population of about 500 persons.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Board 'Shakes Its Head' At High Bids for School

CAMPBELL RIVER — School trustees here could only shake their heads at tenders for an addition to Quadra Island School which were twice as much as the estimates.

Chairman Bruce Saunders suggested trustees take time to study the tenders and regain their composure.

Lowest bid was $33,262 by Casey Johnson Construction, Victoria. Ewert Construction Ltd., Campbell River quoted $46,591.

* * *

MAYNE ISLAND — An anthropological field party has started a dig at an ancient Indian midden on Rocky Point in Active Pass.

At the present time the midden is being slowly worn away by the backwash of B.C. Ferries sailing through the pass.

The project, jointly financed by the provincial Archeological Sites Advisory Board and the University of Victoria, is similar to one which was carried out last summer on Galiano Island.

Mrs. Dorothy Mullen, 591 Latoria Road, was appointed returning officer of the newly-created East Latoria Road Waterworks district Friday.

A provincial cabinet order authorized her to organize the first meeting and election of trustees for the new district board which will seek to provide a water system in the area, near Colwood.

* * *

DUNCAN — Robert Earl Eckert, a Duncan logger, was sent to jail for 30 days Friday when he pleaded guilty to charges of creating a disturbance, resisting arrest and assaulting a police officer.

Eckert admitted previous convictions.

The charges arose from an incident at a local apartment building when RCMP were called to quell a disturbance.

Eckert will be on a year's probation after finishing his jail term.

* * *

DUNCAN — The engine and steering of a light truck was torn out in a spectacular Friday morning accident in which the driver, Richard Brooks, received only minor injuries.

Brooks told RCMP he was driving south on Lakes Road when the steering of the truck failed and he crashed into a telephone pole.

Canadian Comstock Ltd. has been awarded a $7 million contract for installation of all the equipment at the Tahsis Co., Gold River pulp mill.

Tahsis president J. V. Christensen said Friday the North Vancouver-based company will start work immediately installing the drying machine, washers, pumps, motors and transformers.

The installations will also include highly automatic equipment for the 750-ton-a-day bleached draft pulp mill.

Production is scheduled to start in June, 1967.

* * *

NANAIMO — Harbor Pile Driving Company, of Nanaimo, has been awarded a $91,335 contract for the second phase of waterfront development for the Pacific Biological Station, it was announced in Ottawa Friday.

Construction of a wharf 204 feet long by 50 feet wide will be undertaken in this phase of the development program.

Work is to be finished in five months.

* * *

CAMPBELL RIVER — Five municipal residents will contest the council seat left vacant by the resignation of Arnold Cameron.

Entered in the race are two previous councillors, two newcomers and one campaigner from two previous elections.

The unexpired term of the councillor extends to December, 1967.

John Steven and Arthur Clinton will seek to return to council after being defeated in the last election.

Kenneth O. B. Forde will make another attempt to gain a council seat after missing by a narrow margin last year and Herb Osing and Morris Beck will seek election for the first time.

400 Attend First Concert By Musical Club

DUNCAN—More than 400 persons Friday night heard the first concert by the new Duncan Musical Club choral group.

Guest artists included Erika Kurth of Victoria who sang operatic arias; Elsie Kirby of Burnaby, and Hew Gwynne, Vancouver.

The young Duncan trio of Laurel Gourlay, Donalee McDonald and Carol Daniels, which toured the world with the Vancouver Elgar Choir, also performed.

Conductor was Duncan schoolteacher Peter Yelland who himself was a soloist in pieces selected from Handel's Messiah.

Firing Sparks Labor Dispute

COURTENAY — Firing of a school janitor has mushroomed into a major labor dispute here between the school board and its maintenance staff.

Latest move came Friday when trustees asked the Labor Relations Board to appoint an investigator.

Janitor Len Mark was dismissed several weeks ago and when the school board was confronted by a citizens delegation it refused to detail the reason for the dismissal.

The janitors want full reinstatement without penalty. The school board has refused.

The investigator can make a decision on the dispute or can report to the Labor Relations Board who may then make a decision as a body.

In either case the findings are binding on both parties.

Appointment of an investigator relieves both parties of financial obligations such as would be incurred by an arbitration board.

READING SPEED

When we are reading, only one or two letters are seen clearly at one time. The eyes move across the pages in a series of jerks, hopping from one group of letters to the next—and not in one long sweep across the line as might be expected. It is only by practice that we learn to read rapildy. By experience we are able to recognize a long word by looking directly at only a few parts of it. However, a person just learning to read new words or a new language must study each letter in turn, and the reading is slow.

Through practice, we group a number of letters and words together and are able to recognize the group at one glance.

The average person reads only 250 words a minute but this can be more than doubled through training.

It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least once every two years.

Jungle Battle Kills 700 Reds

Artillery, Bombers Unleashed

SAIGON (UPI)—American planes and artillery unleashed their full fury today on a bamboo jungle area swarming with Communists after surrounded U.S. paratroopers fought their way out to safety, ending an epic two-day stand.

With the five-day toll of Communist dead already around 700 in one of the biggest battles of the Vietnamese war, U.S. big guns and aircraft—including giant B52 Stratofortresses — zeroed in on the entire enemy area 300 miles north of Saigon in the central highlands.

"We're going to plaster the area with everything we've got, everything we own," said Col. Theodore C. Mataxis of Seattle, deputy commander of the 101st Airborne's 1st Brigade.

FOOTBALL STAR

He spoke after two paratroop companies—one of them led by former West Point football star Bill Carpenter—slashed their way out through Communist machinegun fire, carrying their dead and wounded with them.

Carpenter called in U.S. planes to fire-bomb his own position when it appeared his company might be annihilated.

"Put the napalm (jellied-gasoline bombs) right on us," he told an air-control pilot. "They are overrunning us. At least we will get some of them, too."

BURNED SURVIVORS

Some of Carpenter's men were killed in the air attack and some of the survivors who fought their way to safety today were burned, but the company commander himself emerged without a scratch.

Before the paratroopers fought their way through heavy machine-gun fire to safety today, U.S. army marine and air force helicopters had tried repeatedly to break through the deadly hedge of fire the Communists had thrown around the encircled Americans.

A few made it but most had to turn back. One marine helicopter crashed, killing one and injuring another of its three crewmen.

"This is one of the heaviest battles of the Viet Nam conflict," a U.S. military spokesman said. He added, however, that overall U.S. casualties were "light."

HE CAN'T KILL, SO OFF TO JAIL

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — A U.S. soldier who refused to accept a rifle because he did not want to kill was sentenced to a year's hard labor and fined $540 by a court martial here today.

Pte. Adam R. Weber, 24, of New Orleans, said before his sentencing on conviction of a charge of disobeying an order that he would do any job that did not require him to kill.

He volunteered to serve as a front-line combat medical corpsman if he remains in the army.

The maximum sentence for the charge is five years' imprisonment with hard labor and a dishonorable discharge.

The court also reduced him to buck private, the lowest enlisted grade.

Webber, who describes himself as a humanist, arrived in South Viet Nam April 29 to serve with the 25th Infantry Division headquarters at Cu Chi, 25 miles northwest of Saigon.

Police Arrest 100 Rebels In Hue Area

SAIGON (UPI) — Riot police and military forces arrested about 100 rebel leaders today in the Hue area while Buddhist monks led thousands of followers on an anti-government march in the dissident northern city.

In Saigon, more than 100 monks and nuns joined a hunger strike as the newly launched Buddhist passive resistance campaign against the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky gained momentum.

Buddhist leaders called for a big demonstration Sunday in Saigon's main Vie Hoa Dao pagoda and moderate Buddhists announced the formation of a new political party to lead the church's campaign for a civilian government and Ky's ouster.

The creation of a national "Council of Protection of Nation and Buddhism" was announced by Thich (Rev.) Pham Minh, a lieutenant of moderate Buddhist leader Thich Tam Chau.

At the same time, Minh denounced as a "bluff" the military junta's inclusion of 10 civilians in the ruling 10-man military national leadership council.

Quebec Strike Bogged Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Nicholson met separately today with labor and management negotiators in the Quebec longshoremen's strike but there was little sign of optimism for a settlement.

He and top labor department officials spent two hours with leaders of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) before going into a nine-minute joint session with the nine-man group from the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The federation group left the meeting in a parliament hill committee room and told reporters it was merely a luncheon break.

The earlier meeting with the union in Mr. Nicholson's private office was attended by Health Minister MacEachen, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian labor Congress, Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor and Judge Rene Lippe, the federal mediator.

WOULDN'T COMMENT

No person in any of the three groups would comment officially on the latest developments. But members of the shipping federation said privately they were not hopeful of an immediate settlement.

Mr. Jodoin said he attended the discussions as an observer but added:

"If I feel there is some advice to be given. I'm not shy about it."

Earlier, union lawyer Phil Cutler told reporters:

"We're bogged down on a number of points and until some of these are cleared away we won't know where we stand."

Alma Weeps On Leaving

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Tropical storm Alma pounded the North Carolina coast with gale force winds, drenching rain and moderately heavy surf today as she headed seaward.

Nearly eight inches of rain were reported in the Wilmington area as Alma remained on an east-northeast course past the coast and threatened shipping lanes off North Carolina's outer banks. The season's first such storm, she was downgraded from a hurricane Friday after leaving 47 dead.

Bandits Get Rich Haul

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two masked bandits robbed a downtown Washington jewelry store of between $250,000 and $500,000 in gems today, police reported.

A 16-year-old boy was wounded in the back when struck by a stray bullet fired at the fleeing gunmen.

Witnesses Face Lisbon Trial For Subversion

LISBON (AP)—Portugal will try a congregation of 48 Jehovah's Witnesses Tuesday for subversive activities against the state.

Members of the sect claim the case will set a precedent for general policy against Protestant and Jewish minorities in this country of 10,000,000 persons, 95 per cent of whom profess the Roman Catholic faith.

But the government of Premier Antonio Salazar thinks otherwise.

The official accusation against the Witnesses alleges that thy are a political movement inciting disobedience, agitation and subversion of the masses, especially those of military age. The accusation specifically refers to the sect's refusal to salute any flag or submit to the draft.

ARRESTED AT MEETING

The 48 Witnesses were arrested during a meeting at Feijo, near Lisbon, June 1, 1965. Two ministers were detained for four months by police for questioning, but the other members, including 35 women, were released on bail.

Officials allege that the sect, which refused to recognize any law but the divine, has been infiltrated by Communists.

TWO BRITONS DIE OF COLD IN ANTARCTIC

LONDON (AP)—The colonial office announced today that its Antarctic survey expedition has lost two men on the west coast of Antarctica.

The ministry said survey director Sir Vivian Fuchs reported that Thomas John Allan, 26, and John Fraser, 24, were dead. Five dogs were also found dead when another party came upon their camp.

A radio message said the camp had apparently been destroyed by high winds.

The colonial office did not report the cause of the deaths. It was presumed to have been exposure after their tent blew away.

Indians Living Amid Squalor

CALGARY (CP) — Indians and teachers on two southern Alberta reserves have asked the federal government for a royal commission inquiry into Indian affairs and education.

Rev. Maurice McMahon, principal of the Crowfoot school at the Blackfoot reserve 70 miles east of here, said Friday the Indians are living in "absolute squalor, worse than any white slum."

The government is "skimpy and penny pinching just because the facilities are for the Indians," Father McMahon said. "You look at an armed forces school and you'll see they haven't spared a penny for those children.

"No wonder the Indians distrust the white man. We treat them like second - class citizens."

Built two years ago, the eight-room school has a coal furnace, no library space, insufficient classrooms and was built to a plan drawn up in 1947, he said. The Oblate fathers manage the school for the federal government.

WINDOWS WON'T OPEN

The school had to use two rooms in a 50-year old building that was condemned by fire inspectors two years ago, he said. There is no ventilation system and the windows won't open.

The Central Alberta Indian Teachers Association and the Catholic Indian League have sent briefs to Northern Affairs Minister Laing on the subject.

Mr. Laing said in an interview from Ottawa there seemed to be "no great concern" over the problems and "no urgency in the matter."

Father McMahon said the reserve roads are so bad that

SWING BACK INTO ACTION WITH CLICKING SHUTTER

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Days are nearly at their longest, weather is at its best, children count the days until school ends, and it's THAT time of year again—time for the Amateur Snapshot Contest sponsored by the Victoria Daily Times.

Starting June 25, the six-week contest will offer the year's best chance for amateur camera fans to swing back into action . . . and make their pastime pay off, too.

This is the fourth year The Times has sponsored the contest and a record number of entries is expected

Strictly for amateurs, the contest is geared for the photographer who does it for fun, not the one who goes around with camera permanently in hand, the words "say cheese" on his tongue, and tables of settings and shutter speeds always in mind.

It is for the one with a sharp eye, a steady hand and a quick mind for the unusual, the humorous and the touching scenes and situations.

These qualities could win you first prize, a spectacular trip for two around the world, or to Europe, Mexico, or the West Indies.

Add to this $1,000 spending money on the trip, and you have more than ample reason to reach for your camera.

This year the contest is divided into three categories, leaving lots of scope no matter what the subject of your picture is. You can choose from the topics—The World in Which We Live, People of the World, and Animals of the World—or enter photos in all of them.

Good judgment is more important for this contest

Dealers Ask Wider Controls

A federal regulatory authority for interprovincial, national and international companies in Canada is proposed by the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada.

Better securities regulation, and savings in time and cost would be the result, IDA said in a brief to Prime Minister Pearson.

The association recommended the matter be taken up at a forthcoming federal - provincial conference.

A statement from the IDA said:

"We consider that the licensing of investment dealers, brokers and other firms and their salesmen should remain in provincial jurisdiction.

'USEFUL ROLE'

"There are situations where a federal regulatory body could play a useful role in co-operation with provincial authorities in the enforcement of the security fraud clauses of the federal Criminal Code."

At present there is no uniformity in securities control in Canada and registration must be made in each province individually.

There is a small degree of reciprocal agreement between provinces and some standardization of legislation.

But investment dealers say there remain "important differences in emphasis, regulation and in enforcement."

And complete lack of any federal securities legislation has been the cause of problems "or even a degree of embarrassment internationally," the IDA said.

THREE CLASSES

The association proposes federal registration for federally incorporated companies, and of issues of any company which were to be issued interprovincially or internationally. It also would cover issues of foreign companies in Canada.

Registration of issues for companies with head offices in a particular province would continue to be made in that province, the IDA said.

But it hoped that other provinces would accept the additional federal registration, regulation and administration as sufficient and provide their own clearance almost automatically.

The effect would be to narrow down the registration processes to two, without paring investor protection.

HOW SAFE IS A MORTGAGE?

Whereas most investments risk a loss on the first dollar's depreciation of the value of the security, a mortgage can retain its full value IN SPITE OF A DEPRECIATION of the property secured. Therefore, the LOWER PER CENT of total value represented by the mortgage, the lesser the projected risk.
But real-estate is considered so basically sound by many lending institutions that 75%, 83% and as high as 87½% MORTGAGES are given. Their projected confidence in real-estate is further manifested by their low monthly repayment requirements allowing 15, 20, and 25 years to repay.
We in Victoria Mortgage Corporation agree. Property values have increased steadily for 30 years, and will continue to do so for another 30 years, especially in this PARADISE called BRITISH COLUMBIA, where people are coming from all over the world.
We, therefore, at times make higher percentage loans on the type of security WE PREFER. However, our current mortgage investments average only 39% of appraised security.
We feel fairly confident about it. Our investors seem to feel the same way.
5-Year Debentures pay 7½% — One year, 7%.
There is no acquisition cost.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1966—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Down at the grass-roots of Victoria baseball are teams whose members average out at about 10 years of age, and don't stand very many inches higher than a World Series bat. They play in the minors, which may be described as Little League farm clubs, but what they lack in height and heft they make up in enthusiasm.

One of these outfits is called the Cubs. Its members play at Majestic and Leyn Road parks in Gordon Head, and what with minor ailments, a cracked finger and other tribulations, they have had a rough time. But the Cubs took their lumps, reminding themselves that they'd won an early game and run up close scores in several others; and not even a 16-0 shellacking could rob them of their spunk.

Of course, as has been pointed out times beyond number, the game's the thing and the score doesn't matter. This may be acceptable doctrine for adults. Still, when you are nine years old, or eleven, or probably ninety if you last that long, it does hurt to keep on losing.

As one who has rooted impartially for the Cubs and their opponents at quite a few games, I have been hoping very much to see them break their jinx. On Friday, we went out to Majestic Park to watch them play a tough one.

It was another of those chilly, windy evenings we've been getting this spring. The gusts scoured the clipped grass of the diamond to send dust-devils scampering across home plate. The flag above the scoreboard at the far end of the field whipped briskly, and the parents in the bleachers huddled in coats and heavy veloped into a pitchers' duel.

Jammed into their dugout, the Cubs in their red caps and sweaters wiggled and squirmed and elbowed while manager Bob Thompson gave them their final briefing.

Over on the other side, the team they were to play was going through the same drill. This bunch had out-scored the Cubs at their last meeting, and stood ready to do so again.

At six-thirty, with plenty of light in the windy sky, the players trotted out to the field. The pitcher worked the kinks from his arm with a couple of throws to the catcher who squatted behind the plate with cap reversed and mask tugged down.

Then the umpire called 'Batter up!' and the game was on.

★

I do not propose to weary you with a play-by-play account, since one baseball game is much like any other.

There is the pitcher, jaws working deliberately on his gum as he coils into his wind-up and unleashes his throw. There's the smack of ball against leather, and sometimes the crack of a hit, with the whoop from the bleachers for echo.

Senior team or minor, amateur or professional, the excitements are the same. It matters not at all that the fellow at bat is a chipmunk-faced eight-year-old with running shoes on his feet and an outsized head protector jammed over his ears. It's all baseball, played hard and honestly, and it makes good watching.

This game, the one the Cubs so badly wanted to win after their five straight losses, developed into a pitchers' duel. No homers were scored, but there was plenty of clever base-stealing, and the fielding was both fast and accurate

Finally, a few minutes before 7:45 p.m., when Little League games are called, the Cubs, second pitcher of the evening burned his last throw across the plate.

The game was over; and this time there was joy in Mudville. The Cubs had ended their losing streak with a score of 11-3.

The boys in this minor club are Bill Cochrane, Greg and Lorne Coleman, John Coupar, Ray Dilba, Rupert Golding, Mike Heinekey, Frank Immink, Colin and John McCrea, Barry Owens, Roy Parkhouse, Gordon Pike, Bill Quinsey, Sid Saunders, Steve Tate and John Thorneloe.

They win, they lose — and like hundreds of others in this town, they play good baseball.

TRYING IT ON for size is Ringo, guinea pig owned by Pat Ellis, 7, one of ringful of trophy hopefuls today at SPCA junior pet show. Ringo, says Pat, eats lettuce, "pelleps" and toast. Something else. He bites. Show officials expected no trouble. Dogs, cats, and everything else behave well with lots of little girls around, said one inspector. (Strickland Photo.)

SHORT, TALL OF IT ALL

Even Judge Not Sure On How Many Entries

By GLEN ALLEN

There were the long and the short and the tall.

There were the speckled and the banded and the noisy and the nervous.

There were the white and the black and the white-and-black and the curly and the hairy and the very, very big and the very tiny.

There were whole nations of dogs, and baskets and baskets of cats, two mice that have had 100 children this year, a guinea pig that eats toast and bites, a great big giggle of children.

The SPCA junior pet show opened this morning at the Victoria Riding Academy in bright sunshine and just a hint of pandemonium.

Competing in orthodox classes and classes like longest-haired dog, best cared-for mouse, heaviest cat, and cat with the most extraordinary markings were 55 dogs, 20 cats and about 35 animals ("we're not sure," said a judge, "they keep hiding").

Except for a rogue guinea pig named Tilly and Barney, an unheelable springer spaciel, pets and their owners behaved with enviable decorum.

One very blase cat even went to sleep.

Winner in the best cared for mouse category, Gary Webb, 13, didn't know to what he ought to attribute his success.

"It's a good mouse, that one," he said pointing to a handsome and energetic white specimen running madly around a wheel.

"But I didn't do anything special for the show, just fed him up a little."

OKAY WITH MUM

One young man who brought six boxfuls of guinea pigs ("one for the maternity cases") said his mother got along with his pets alright.

"My mother isn't especially keen sometimes," said Mark Hinson, 14, who keeps a 17-pound Giant Flemish rabbit, lizards, frogs, mice, hamsters and an albino guinea pig in the basement.

Show officials and SPCA president Captain Douglas Prentice (whose setter Adam is "a little too fond of the ladies" said the show was good and showy.

Judged winners by press time today were: Marguerite Cervin, best Rabbit; Shelly Blanchard, best hamster; Garry Copeman, best Guinea pig; and Debby Ellis, best-cared for horse.

Rousing Welcome For Band

A big welcome is planned Sunday for Victoria Boys' Band on its triumphant return from the Portland Rose Festival.

The 37 instrumentalists will arrive at the B.C. Hydro building, 820 Pandora Avenue, at about 6:15 p.m. They won the perpetual trophy in the junior parade at the festival in competition with 24 bands from different parts of the United States.

The band, conducted by George Kraeling, has won the top award in the Junior Parade every year for three consecutive years.

"They are a great credit to our city," said Ald. Michael Griffin, chairman of recreation and community services to Victoria city council.

"We hope Victoria will give the boys a rousing welcome."

HEALTH CARE SEQUENCE 'ALL WRONG'

The federal goverment's method of introducing medical care insurance will cause "great problems," Esquimalt - Saanich MP George Chatterton said today.

He told delegates to the quarterly meeting in the Olde England Inn of the Progressive Conservative Association of B.C., the government is introducing the insurance plan in a different sequence to that recommended by the Hall Royal Commission on Health Care.

This commission recommended four medical colleges be established by 1971 and a fifth by 1973 to train more doctors.

But no steps were being taken to start the medical schools and 10 years from now — if these steps were not taken — there could be a shortage of 4,600 doctors in Canada.

SHORTAGE MOUNTS

In 20 years, if delays continued, the shortage would amount to 13,000 doctors, and similar situations would apply to nurses, pharmacists and other technical people involved in health care.

"People are going to have insurance next year but they will not get the services because of the shortage of personnel," he said.

POOR HEALTH

Mr. Chatterton said poor health, including accidents, cost the country 30 times the lost production that result from strikes

He also outlined growing problems in education, housing and welfare.

University enrolment of 178,000 in 1964 would rise to 480,000 in 1970, while the cost would increase from $355 million to $1.1 billion.

500,000 HOMES

The last figures for housing showed there would be a need for 500,000 homes by 1980 for those over 65.

In 1961, 54 per cent of the population over 65 had incomes of less than $1,000 a year. The welfare bill today comes to $1.7 billion a year.

Mr. Chatterton said the primary solution to such problems is more education because this is necessary for economic development.

He also thought immediate steps should be taken to assist Canadians until the Canada Pension Plan starts helping them at retirement.

Two Killed in Crush Between Car, Trailer

RCMP Still Probing Up-Island Mishap

Two young men were killed late Friday night when their car was crushed by a 16-ton semi-trailer unit in a head-on collision on the Island Highway nine miles north of Nanaimo.

Dead is the driver of the car, Robert C. Richardson, 20, of Nanaimo, and a passenger, Leonard Walter Bachewick, 25, of Vancouver.

The truck driver, Walter Zacharuk of Port Alberni, escaped injury.

RCMP today were still attempting to piece together details of the accident which occurred at 11:30 p.m. on a slight curve near the Nanoose railway bridge.

The facts known at noon today were:

- The West Coast Freight Ltd. truck was on a freight run with general cargo from Port Alberni.
- The slight curve in the highway would present no problem under normal circumstances.
- The 1958 model car apparently went out of control and slammed into the front of the truck.

RCMP said they still did not know where the two young men were heading when the accident occurred, except that the car was northbound.

The two men were dead at the scene on arrival of RCMP.

Their bodies were being held in Nanaimo General Hospital pending autopsies to determine the exact cause of death.

Nanaimo coroner Russ Inkster has indicated an inquest will be held, but no date has been set.

POLICE NET CATCHES 11-YEAR-OLD

Saanich detectives came up with a mixed bag of stolen hardware goods earlier this week when they spread their net at Fairburn School.

To officers hid in the school and caught an 11-year-old boy after he broke into the building. The youngster, scheduled to appear in juvenile court, admitted to 12 such burglaries.

Police recovered tools, hinges, paint and a variety of similar items worth $68.30.

The Red Lion Motor Hotel Friday signed the standard area agreement with Local 513 of the Beverage Dispensers Union.

About 20 bartenders and waiters in the cocktail lounge and beer parlor of the Douglas Street hotel are covered by the agreement.

Strike Notice Served On 120 Forest Firms

Strike notice is being served by the International Woodworkers of America on 120 coast wood industry companies.

The move, authorized by the regional negotiating committee, is being carried out by the eight coast locals which hold bargaining certification.

The 48-hour notice was being received today by the companies.

The 48 hours notice is a requirement of the Labour Relations Act before a legal strike can take place.

The two-year master contract expires next Wednesday midnight. All that is needed now for a strike to take place is a call from the 10-man negotiating committee.

APPOINTMENT of Victorian, Capt. Raymond A. B. Creery, as commander of the First Canadian Escort Squadron was announced today. The squadron, based in Halifax, includest the helicopter destroyers Saguenay and Nipigon and the destroyer-escort Kootenay. Capt. Creery, 42, entered the RCN as a cadet in 1940 and subsequently qualified as a naval pilot. Since 1963 he has been naval, military and air attache of the Canadian ambassador to the The Netherlands.

WRINKLES HAVE A HABIT OF MOVING UP FROM NAVEL

By GORDON RITCHIE

They call him "the colonel." Colonel Brooks.

He's like an apparation from a Kentucky fried chicken advertisement.

And he's the feature attraction of the Regional Conferende of Toastmasters International, held at the Empress Hotel this weekend.

An ex-hillbilly from California, he's a real character.

Long white hair down over his ears. He lived with the Hopi indians, he explains, and they taught him this mas to keep his hearing intact

* * *

A bushy white mustache peeks out from under a wrinkled nose.

"No man should have his picture taken when he's more than nine months old," he observes.

"At nine months he has all those cute little wrinkles around his navel. But when he's over 80, the wrinkles are all around his nose."

'COLONEL' BROOKS
. . . feature attraction

He wears a gaudy red and black checkered lumber-jack shirt instead of a sports jacket. The cleaners still have his suit, he explains.

* * *

And cowboy boots.

Not quite the conventional garb for a man celebrating his 85th birthday today.

He fought his way into the finals of the Toastmasters' speech contest with a speech on evolution—"Our Amazing Mamas," he calls it.

"Evolution theory is all just speculation," he says," and in my book, one speculation is as good as another."

He refuses to accept what Darwin said about his ancestral mama.

"It's all Marxism," he claims, "that our unerudite educators are teaching. They tell our youngsters they're descended from monkeys. Consequently, the kids are acting like monkeys these days."

He prefers the biblical version.

Cynic Spoofs 'Moment of Truth'

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

A school recognition ceremony thrills you, disturbs you or leaves you cold, depending on the sort of person you are.

There were four of them Friday night at Mount View, Mount Douglas, Victoria and Oak Bay senior secondary schools. (See Page 15.)

Mostly it was parents, particularly mothers, who thrilled to the occasion.

Their children are a cooler generation, more interested in the parties later than the actual recognition ceremony. They looked on the ceremony with an honest eye, unclouded by sentiment.

One young man at Oak Bay described it as "a gas. It's kind of funny watching all the guys standing up who are flunking. Some guys who are going to pass won't come because they don't like school."

He had, in his youthful and cynical way, touched on the disturbing aspect of such ceremonies. They are big, blown-up occasions but they are not the moment of truth.

That will come some time in the next few weeks when examination results are made known. Then some of those who were recognized will discover they have not done anything that merits recognition.

Actually, as G. A. Victor Thomson, principal of Victoria Senior Secondary School, explained, the ceremony was only a recognition that the students have passed through Grade 12, not that they had passed.

And that was "a very important milestone" in their lives, according to Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the University of Victoria, who spoke at another school.

It certainly was that: whether they graduated or not, it was the end of school days. And when you are at school that seems to be a point worth marking with some kind of ceremony.

Trouble was, the ceremonies were stilted and pretentious. The class of '66 was eulogized and so were their teachers and parents. The valedictorians, in phrases they had long labored over, revelled in the significance of the event.

And some parts of the ceremony were embarrassing. Practically every school sang Cilmb Every Mountain, a song that must sum up for educators, in an appropriate throbbing way, what life is all about.

Inevitably there was some sense of letdown. For some, the pressures of the night blew themselves out in a great, big, post-dance party that went on to dawn.

Equally inevitably, reality broke through at times. It did at one point when Peter Bunn, an outspoken school trustee, spoke at Mount View School.

He spoke of a world where American soldiers pour napalm on women and children . . . where Canada's leaders argue more about a call-girl than about ways to stop war

He told the students he is not surprised when told that "youth is in revolt. Can we blame them?"

Said he: "When one thinks of the example that adults set for young people, I am amazed at the good sense and maturity of the vast majority of them."

'Hard to Believe Small Area Could Produce Such Horror'

By HUMPHRY DAVY

On a warm sunny day in May in 1896, an electric streetcar loaded with people, lumbered across Point Ellice Bridge on Bay St.

Suddenly there was a sway — the middle span collapsed — and the street car plunged into the water with more than 100 passengers.

Eighty - three-year-old Mrs. John Livingston, now of Newcastle, California, one of the few survivors of the accident still living, on Friday surveyed the scene of the disaster which killed 55 persons and plunged Victoria into mourning.

●

"I wish this new span had been there then," she said. "It's so different. It's size and structure makes the channel look much smaller. One wonders today how so many people drowned in such a small expanse of water."

She remembers the accident vividly.

She was then Edith Bull. and lived at the corner of Douglas and Garbally. She was 12. It was May 26.

The streetcar was packed with families, youths on their way to watch a sham battle at Esquimalt's Macaulay Point

●

"I was with my sister, Isobel, 20, and our two friends, Sarah and Lillian Sherriff standing on the rear platform," she said. "My father couldn't get on so he jumped on a brewery wagon which followed the streetcar.

"He was lucky. The horse suddenly stopped and despite the driver's exhortations wouldn't move. Then the span gave way just in front of his forelegs."

She remembers the streetcar crashing through the bridge and being swallowed by the water.

"Lots of things went through my mind between the time I went to the bottom and surfaced," she said. "My mother would not come with us because she had a bad dream on the previous night. I started to think how lucky it was that mother had not come along. And how lucky the baby was to be at home."

When she came to the surface, someone grabbed her, placed her on a plank and shoved it ashore. Her sister was rescued in the same way.

●

"My father rushed down to us," she recalled. "I have never seen a man weep so much. He took us first to a place where we were both given a drink of something and taken to a doctor."

Although the two Sherriff girls were standing on the same platform and beside the two sisters they never came up when the streetcar settled at the bottom. Their bodies were found later in the mud.

Mrs. Livingston, is visiting her brothers, Walter Bull, 1041 Bay Street, and Clifford Bull, 6281 Mauch Street.

Strategy on Strategic Goods?

AN AMERICAN MOVE TO PERsuade allied industrial nations to tighten curbs on sales of computers to Communist countries has failed — not so much, perhaps, because of ideological disagreement as suspicion that the United States is trying to reserve the market for itself.

The move was pushed at a recently held meeting of the Co-ordination Committee, a 15-nation group including all NATO members and Japan but excluding Iceland. The committee was set up to establish a list of products denied in sale or trade with the Communist world on the grounds that they would enhance its military strength.

Demand for sophisticated electronic computers is expected to be strong from Eastern European countries as they push further into attempts to rationalize their economies. Their use would be in making the complex price-demand-production calculations which are expected to supplant the cumbersome and ineffective method of leaving production decisions up to bureaucratic managers who usually fail to take price and demand considerations into account.

While the American delegates to the recent conference insisted that their only motive in seeking tighter curbs was to deprive the Communist countries of technological advances which could be used in planning military strategy, their allies couldn't help but be suspicious. For one thing there was the fact that the chairman of giant International Business Machines' World Trading Corporation had just completed an extensive tour of Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Rumania, all prime markets for both new and used computers. Secondly, the United States government, for the first time, permitted IBM to exhibit a medium-sized, advanced computer at an Eastern European trade show, in Prague, last month.

What else could the Western European and Japanese delegates think of this but that the United States was trying to hold its allies out of the Communist market until American firms had a chance to organize their sales effort?

In any event, the American attempt to cut off supplies of so-called "strategic" materials to the Communist countries is obviously becoming more irksome to allied countries whose dependence on world trade is much greater than that of the United States. The classic argument—and it is being shared increasingly by American businessmen—is that the embargoes do not in the long run deprive the Communists of anything. They merely lengthen out the time required for the Communists either to set up their own production of the materials or to obtain them through round-about channels.

A Long Life Ahead

GREATER VICTORIANS WHO had been waiting for many weeks for word on the crucial CPR decision regarding the Empress Hotel have breathed a collective sigh of relief. The grand old structure will remain unchanged in its outward appearance but will undergo a $4-million modernization program inside.

This is wonderful news for the whole community. It is difficult to think of Victoria without the social focus provided by the Empress; it is difficult to imagine, after all these years, any alternative use for the site. Both the distinctive garden environment and the interior atmosphere of the building are features which few centrally located hotels in any city can offer. Preservation of such effects should be one of the prime considerations in any renovation program and it is gratifying to know that the owners recognize this. On the other hand, today's travellers also demand the maximum of convenience and comfort in their accommodation and conformity with this requirement is essential if a hotel is to stay in business.

The plan as announced appears to combine both of these requisites, and the tentative proposal for an adjoining convention centre has interesting possibilities in the light of the hotel's need for conference facilities and the city's need for auditorium space.

The Empress decision is the best news so far in this centennial year.

The Pupils Per Room

THE RECENTLY RELEASED results of a B.C. Teachers' Federation survey confirm the fact that the Greater Victoria School district contains more classrooms housing 40 or more pupils than any other school district except Vancouver in the province.

Furthermore, about two-thirds of this district's elementary classes run to more than 35 students. The Chant Royal Commission recommended a maximum of 35 and the provincial government now makes its regular contribution to teachers' salaries on a basis of 37 pupils to the room. Thus, Greater Victoria engages fewer teachers than the number for which it can receive government grants.

The statistics may paint a darker picture than is justified. Greater Victoria is a large school district. On a basis of percentages of all classrooms under a board's jurisdiction, the local area appears in a more favorable light.

The facts remain, however, that the number in too many of our classrooms is greater than the experts consider satisfactory for efficient schooling, and that we are not using to the fullest extent the financial aid for teachers' salaries which could be collected if the excess above 37 pupils per room could be assembled to fill other rooms.

It is not feasible, however, to transfer the excess from different classes to fill other rooms. The extra children could come from different grades, or might be separated so far geographically within the area that attendance in a new combined class — even if the students were all in one grade — would not be practicable.

In any case, the Greater Victoria school district just has not enough classrooms to permit such an arrangement.

When this has been said, it still seems obvious that the district has failed to solve a problem which must be solved if our children are to benefit from the advantages of instruction in smaller classes and if the district is to take full advantage of the government payment toward teachers' salaries.

It is an over-simplification to say that the government's refusal to let boards plan more than three years in advance has hampered Greater Victoria in its efforts to build sufficient classrooms to permit a lower pupil-teacher ratio. There can be no prohibition of construction planning itself, even though financing is provided only for three years in advance. There is still a measure of flexibility, but school boards are inevitably pinched between rising costs and rising population—with a frequent reluctance to pay for school building on a local basis as an added problem.

A farther projected development may be expected in Greater Victoria in the future. The board now has on its staff a permanent planner whose duties no doubt include studies and recommendations to meet the needs of the expanding child population and to meet them on the most efficient and economic basis possible. As the B.C. Teachers' Federation statistics show, he has a considerable job to do.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

WHILE the weather this spring has given us a mixture of warm and cool, it has been an exceptional one for the plant world.

The flowering dogwoods have produced more blooms than they have for some years. This applies to the osier dogwood as well.

We have one of the best crops of Douglas fir cones that we have had for some seven or eight years, and they now seem to be maturing with very little withering.

The red cedars are loaded with so many cones that the branches are bending with the weight.

Amongst the smaller flowering plants that showed an abundance of blooms were the erythronium, false lady slipper and the sea blush.

The vanilla leaf now in bloom is showing a lot of the spike-like flowers, while the twin flowers are putting forth an abundance of its dainty pinkish blooms.

Along the roadside ditches the cow parsnip with its massive, slightly-rounded flower head, is eye-catching.

The wild roses are still putting on a bright display of pink blooms.

The bitter cherries are hanging in dense clusters on the twigs, while the Indian plum, already turning yellow, is very plentiful.

The fruit of the Oregon grape is heavy on the stalks; the salal blossoms are hanging on the twigs like beads.

The wild grasses as well as those in pastures and hay fields are thick, promising a good crop.

Nature has been generous this spring in producing a wonderful crop of our life-giving green plants to ensure the species shall not die.

The New Leader of Quebec: The Enigma of Our Politics

THE future of federal-provincial relations is clouded by the fact that Mr. Daniel Johnson is the enigma of our politics. After his guarded comments of Tuesday on television, his intentions remain as obscure as ever. It is by no means easy to reconcile Mr. Johnson wth Mr. Johnson's ideas. There is a wariness about him which, combined with his rather precise manner of speech, conveys the impression of a cautious, calculating and essentially conservative man. But there is nothing precise about his ideas. He has outdone the Lesage Liberals in grandiose and even verbal nationalism; he is the proponent of revolutionary constitutional ideas; and he has managed to convey an impression of sympathy for separatism without specifically endorsing it.

Western

The so-called quiet revolution has seldom been quiet and never, in any strict sense, a "revolution." Mr. Lesage in one of his sterner moments threatened to take the federal government to court. This would not have been unprecedented and it would most certainly not have been the act of a revolutionary. On another occasion he used words which were widely interpreted as a threat to defy the courts but it turned out happily that this was far from what he had in mind.

Mr. Johnson has used some rather harsh language. With reference to his claims for the 100 per cent reversion of the shared tax fields (a demand which Ottawa could not possibly concede), he has said that Quebec should not beg but take. This sounds distinctly more revolutionary but it would be premature to leap to concluuions.

There is nothing to prevent Mr. Johnson from levying any income tax he likes but the British North America Act guarantees to the federal government the irght to raise money "by any mode or system of taxation." Unless Ottawa is to be displaced from the field, Quebec would face double taxation but the reduction of taxation was a central theme of the Union Nationale in the recent campaign.

Mr. Johnson is no admirer of the British North America Act. He thinks that it should be scrapped and that a new constitution should be worked out by negotiations between the two "nations." But it happens to be the constitution (or at least a major part of it) and it would be unthinkable for Mr. Johnson to act in an unconstitutional manner when he has spoken with great emphasis about the importance of constitutions.

These are his words of February 22, 1965, when he was dealing, very disparagingly, with co-operative federalism:

"I'm astonished that French-Canadians can gaily and smilingly propose we put aside legal guarantees and replace them with highly changeable institutions and techniques of perpetual compromise such as co-operative federalism, where only a stronger law can finally prevail."

Again: "Constitutions are made precisely in order to protect the fundamental human rights against possible abuses of power and to protect fundamental rights of minorities against possible abuses of majorities.

"They are made to establish the rule of law in place of the rule of numerical strength.

"That is why I revolt with all my powers against those who are looking to spread the idea that constitutions have lost their importance in today's context and that constitutional discussions are no more than empty debates."

Mr Johnson is also, of course, the author of numerous other statements which may have struck some of his readers as pleasantly nationalist and others as vaguely threatening. "For example, he once assured a press conference that French-Canadians "will progress whether within Canada as a country or on a smaller scale." This is an observation but not a commitment.

He said on the same occasion: "Canada will be a biethnical and bilingual country or it will not be a country at all." This is prophecy, somewhat lacking in definition. There was also the famous "separation if necessary but not necessarily separation" which, as Mr. Johnson afterwards explained was not blackmail but "pure political realism."

In Mr. Johnson's situation, realism may suggest one of two alternatives. When one has a razor-thin majority, it is natural to think of an early election. A Quebec leader of such a mind may seek a quick legislative build-up in order to appeal on a promising record (as Mr. Diefenbaker did in Ottawa in 1957). Or he may formulate unacceptable demands and then campaign against Ottawa according to the ancient and cherished provincial tradition.

As this is tax agreement year, we can probably assume that Mr. Johnson, immediately on taking office, will begin preparing for an autumn round of federal-provincial meetings. Whether he will come as the "pragmatist" of the Tuesday interview or whether he will come like Mr. Duplessis in former years remains to be seen.

The Heaviest Volume of Potential Canadians Since Suez

CANADA'S high-keyed pitch for more British immigrants is at the moment proving almost too successful for comfort. For the past two weeks the six immigration centres in Britain have been bending under the weight of the heaviest volume of potential Canadians since the great exodus which followed the Suez crisis of 1956. Initial interviews have been running at almost twice the normal daily rate for early summer — traditionally the peak period for immigration — and postal inquiries arriving at the London central office have swollen to a flood of 10,000 a month.

Dewey

Immigration offices in London alone are currently interviewing up to 400 applicants and their families each day — which can mean well over 1,000 individuals — in addition to dealing with uncounted numbers of applicants at more advance stages in the immigration process. One day last week matters reached the point where, again, for the first time since Suez, the London staff had to abandon the standard individual interview for first-time visitors in favor of group interviews.

The various national immigration centres in Britain are used to summer rushes, of course. After what one Canadian official called "an incubation period" averaging two years, restless Britons usually decide to make their move while the children are out of school. But the sheer size of the present rush, which is forcing Canadian experts to revise their estimates of this year's "take" upwards from 50,000 to 60,000 British immigrants, is not so easy to explain.

None of the classic reasons for large increases in immigration totals is evident this year. The last budget was not particularly harsh by British standards. One political crisis fades into another, but no single political development appears to have spurred the present outflow. The winter was not expecially severe and there were no more than the usual disruptions of services. At most, such negative factors seems to have formed a backdrop against which more positive factors have been at work.

Several prospective immigrants in the London waiting room last week did speak of overcrowded conditions, the lack of housing, high taxes and too much government. In two separate cases a vaguely defined complaint was of a loss of national pride and eminence. But the deciding factor usually appeared not to be that Britain was so bad but that Canada — so they had heard — was so good.

Such attitudes bear out the contention of Canadian immigration officials that Canada's current popularity is due to what they like to call "pull factors" (it is an unspoken rule of thumb in all immigration offices that negative reasons for leaving Britain are never stressed). The spectre of seasonal unemployment in Canada has receded in British thinking. Relatives and friends have been writing back with favorable reports of conditions and prospects.

But despite the extra effort, the waiting room at the London headquarters still manages to look like the steerage hold of an old-time ocean liner. Often there is standing room only. Applicants must join a long queue to ask even the simplest question of distracted receptionists. Babies spend much of their time wailing. Immigration officers trot about bawling out names, and they conduct interviews in short breaks between answering their telephones.

After six hours in the waiting room a faimily can get awfully hungry. There is a restaurant downstairs, but no one tells them about it and there are no signs. Even some of those who know about the restaurant confess that they are afraid to leave the room for fear of missing their turn — "they put you back at the bottom of the pile, you know. A lady weeps in a corner, sobbing something about having got an initial wrong and having to go through "the whole damn business again."

Happily, such conditions are not likely to last. Officials believe that the present rush has just about peaked and that traffic through the immigration centres will before long begin to fall to manageable proportions. Moreover, a new and streamlined system of processing applications is expected to cut the waiting period between the approval of an application and the final authorization to travel — now running at up to five weeks — to about five days.

But that is all in the future. Those who are at this moment going through the long, painful process of coming to Canada would be less than human if they didn't find themselves wondering why the gate to the promised land couldn't be just a little wider.

FROM WASHINGTON

Racism Remains a Threat to the American Dream Itself

IF there is a single word to sum up the feeling behind last week's huge White House civil rights conference, it is "urgency." Time after time, Negro leaders and their white supporters stressed the need for immediate action to back up the tired old promises about giving Negroes equality in fact as well as in theory. The threat of violence was sometimes delicately raised — not organized violence but the spontaneous violence of a night crowd on a hot slum street, reacting to a spark such as the word "nigger" coming from a policeman's mouth.

Purser

More often, however, the 2,400 invitees realized that the real threat of continued racism was to the success of the American dream itself. The downward path, by now clearly outlined, lies in the deterioration of the cores of great metropolitan areas. The U.S. population has become urban-centred, and it is to the cores of the urban areas that Negroes fleeing oppression in the South have come to find jobs and freedom. Often, they fail in both quests.

Improvements in some aspects of race relations have of course been tremendous in recent years in many parts of the country. When this writer first visited Washington in the late 1940s the White House conference could only have been held with difficulty, because most of the invitees would not have been acceptable in hotels and restaurants.

Nowadays, affluent and cultured Negroes mix easily with their white compatriots in all Washington's best establishments; good job opportunities are opening up, and there have even been some breakthroughs in the "crunch" area of housing, if not in the other "crunch" area of schooling.

But the civil rights movement fears that the obvious profusion of well-off Negroes who have made it in the white man's world, will blind whites to the plight of the vast majority of Negroes who have not shared the advantages of a good home, good school and good luck enjoyed by the few.

The conference invitees, although themselves among the few, spoke for the many. An articulate young Negro state senator from Kansas, Mr. George Haley, described his distress at the inability of Negroes in Mississippi to help themselves rise up, as Negroes in Kansas have been able to do.

Speaker after speaker had his example of the bonds around the Negro, denying his freedom: less pay for Negro professors in North Carolina than for whites in similar positions, refusal to bury a Negro war hero in a Southern cemetery, stacking of the cards against Negroes in Southern courts, an urban renewal program in Wilmington, Del. that merely transferred the ghetto from one part of town to another, a $90 a month relief ceiling in Dorchester County, S.C., for a family of nine to 12 children with both parents out of work, the total exclusion of Negroes from electrical and other craft union locals, the absence of job insurance, sickness benefits, etc. for household workers (many Negro women whose husbands ar unable to find work support their families by going into domestic service).

Sen. Haley had a tale to tell that illustrates the unpublicized "minor incidents" that harrass Negroes daily. He was driving through Sikeston, Mo. on his way from St. Louis to Memphis when he was stopped at an intersection, for no apparent reason, by two white policemen. They asked to see his wallet. They didn't just look at his driver's licence, but proceeded to go through the wallet. Their first comment was, "What are you doing with a white girl's picture in your wallet?" (He explained that it was his light-complexioned sister.)

As the officers leafed through his wallet, their tone changed and they became noticeably upset. This happened when they spotted evidence that he was a metropolitan lawyer and a member of the NAACP. They handed back the wallet, assured him that he had not been stopped just because he was a Negro, and waved him on.

"They realized I was somebody who would be missed and could protect himself," said Sen. Haley. "The story might have been different otherwise."

Negroes are fed up with the white argument against trying to move "too fast" in improving the situation. Isaiah Robinson of the Harlem Parents Committee — a possible name to watch in the movement, as he is a brilliant, fiery, articulate speaker with potential demagogic appeal — said the argument is ridiculous, considering that the reconstruction fiasco took place 100 years ago. Is it "too fast" to take 100 years to fill the rights of all Americans?

Your first impression of the brown shingle exterior will be "that realtor is crazy," but back up please. Have a closer look. New roof! It'd look a lot better painted white with a white fence and the garden brought up to scratch. What else? Not much. Pretty convenient area and it does have a new cabinet and arborite kitchen, full basement, automatic furnace, new wiring, new copper plumbing, and glass-lined hot water tank. True, one of the two bedrooms needs painting but you'll have fun doing that. Why not call us now for a look inside?

Littler, Venturi in B.C. Golf

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Open champion Gene Littler and Ken Venturi, winner of the U.S. Open in 1964, have entered the 1966 Canadian Open golf championship at Vancouver, was announced today. The $100,000 Open will be played at Shaughnessy Golf Club Sept. 29-Oct. 2.

South Africa Wins Cup Tennis

ROME (AP)—South Africa won both singles matches today and defeated Italy 3-2 in the European Zone B semifinals of Davis Cup play. The victors next will meet the Germany-England winner.

18,000 More U.S. Troops to Viet

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced today that an additional 18,000 troops will be sent to Viet Nam in the next few weeks, bringing the total U.S. buildup to 285,000 men.

At a joint news conference with Secretary of State Dean Rusk at the White House, McNamara reported that the present level of U.S. manpower in Viet Nam now stands at 267,000.

Midget Auto Racing Star Dies

HINSDALE, Ill. (AP) — Jimmy Davies, 36, three-time United States Auto Club midget driving champion, died today of injuries he received a week ago in a warmup run prior to a race at the Santa Fe Speedway at Willow Springs, Ill.

Jungle Battle Raging

Bombs, Guns Plaster Reds

SAIGON (UPI) — American planes and artillery unleashed their full fury today on a bamboo jungle area swarming with Communists after surrounded U.S. paratroopers fought their way out to safety, ending an epic two-day stand.

With the five-day toll of Communist dead already around 700 in one of the biggest battles of the Vietnamese war, U.S. big guns and aircraft—including giant B52 Stratofortresses — zeroed in on the entire enemy area 300 miles north of Saigon in the central highlands.

"We're going to plaster the area with everything we've got, everything we own," said Col. Theodore C. Mataxis of Seattle, deputy commander of the 101st Airborne's 1st Brigade.

FOOTBALL STAR

He spoke after two paratroop companies—one of them led by former West Point football star Bill Carpenter—slashed their way out through Communist machinegun fire, carrying their dead and wounded with them.

Carpenter called in U.S. planes to fire-bomb his own position when it appeared his company might be annihilated.

"Put the napalm (jellied-gasoline bombs) right on us," he told an air-control pilot. "They are overrunning us. At least we will get some of them, too."

BURNED SURVIVORS

Some of Carpenter's men were killed in the air attack and some of the survivors who fought their way to safety today were burned, but the company commander himself emerged without a scratch.

Before the paratroopers fought their way through heavy machine-gun fire to safety today, U.S. army marine and air force helicopters had tried repeatedly to break through the deadly hedge of fire the Communists had thrown around the encircled Americans.

A few made it but most had to turn back. One marine helicopter crashed, killing one and injuring another of its three crewmen.

"This is one of the heaviest battles of the Viet Nam conflict," a U.S. military spokesman said. He added, however, that overall U.S. casualties were "light."

OTTAWA PROBE URGED

Indians Living Amid Squalor

CALGARY (CP) — Indians and teachers on two southern Alberta reserves have asked the federal government for a royal commission inquiry into Indian affairs and education.

Rev. Maurice McMahon, principal of the Crowfoot school at the Blackfoot reserve 70 miles east of here, said Friday the Indians are living in "absolute squalor, worse than any white slum."

The government is "skimpy and pennypinching just because the facilities are for the Indians," Father McMahon said. "You look at an armed forces school and you'll see they haven't spared a penny for those children.

"No wonder the Indians distrust the white man. We treat them like second - class citizens."

Built two years ago, the eight-room school has a coal furnace, no library space, insufficient classroom and was built to a plan drawn up in 1947, he said. The Oblate fathers manage the school for the federal government.

WINDOWS WON'T OPEN

The school had to use two rooms in a 50-year old building that was condemned by fire inspectors two years ago, he said. There is no ventilation system and the windows won't open.

The Central Alberta Indian Teachers Association and the Catholic Indian League have sent briefs to Northern Affairs Minister Laing on the subject.

LAING
. . . 'no urgency'

Mr. Laing said in an interview from Ottawa there seemed to be "no great concern" over the problems and "no urgency in the matter."

Father McMahon said the reserve roads are so bad that

TWO BRITONS DIE OF COLD IN ANTARCTIC

LONDON (AP)—The colonial office announced today that its Antarctic survey expedition has lost two men on the west coast of Antarctica.

The ministry said survey director Sir Vivian Fuchs reported that Thomas John Allan, 26, and John Fraser, 24, were dead. Five dogs were also found dead when another party came upon their camp.

A radio message said the camp had apparently been destroyed by high winds.

The colonial office did not report the cause of the deaths. It was presumed to have been exposure after their tent blew away.

Witnesses Face Lisbon Trial For Subversion

LISBON (AP)—Portugal will try a congregation of 48 Jehovah's Witnesses Tuesday for subversive activities against the state.

Members of the sect claim the case will set a precedent for general policy against Protestant and Jewish minorities in this country of 10,000,000 persons, 95 per cent of whom profess the Roman Catholic faith.

But the government of Premier Antonio Salazar thinks otherwise.

The official accusation against the Witnesses alleges that they are a political movement inciting disobedience, agitation and subversion of the masses, especially those of military age. The accusation specifically refers to the sect's refusal to salute any flag or submit to the draft.

ARRESTED AT MEETING

The 48 Witnesses were arrested during a meeting at Feijo, near Lisbon, June 1, 1965. Two ministers were detained for four months by police for questioning, but the other members, including 35 women, were released on bail.

Officials allege that the sect, which refused to recognize any law but the divine, has been infiltrated by Communists.

HE CAN'T KILL, SO OFF TO JAIL

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — A U.S. soldier who refused to accept a rifle because he did not want to kill was sentenced to a year's hard labor and fined $540 by a court martial here today.

Pte. Adam R. Weber, 24, of New Orleans, said before his sentencing on conviction of a charge of disobeying an order that he would do any job that did not require him to kill.

He volunteered to serve as a front-line combat medical corpsman if he remains in the army.

The maximum sentence for the charge is five years' imprisonment with hard labor and a dishonorable discharge.

The court also reduced him to buck private, the lowest enlisted grade.

Webber, who describes himself as a humanist, arrived in South Viet Nam April 29 to serve with the 25th Infantry Division headquarters at Cu Chi, 25 miles northwest of Saigon.

Police Arrest 100 Rebels In Hue Area

SAIGON (UPI) — Riot police and military forces arrested about 100 rebel leaders today in the Hue area while Buddhist monks led thousands of followers on an anti-government march in the dissident northern city.

In Saigon, more than 100 monks and nuns joined a hunger strike as the newly launched Buddhist passive resistance campaign against the military government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky gained momentum.

Buddhist leaders called for a big demonstration Sunday in Saigon's main Vie Hoa Dao pagoda and moderate Buddhists announced the formation of a new political party to lead the church's campaign for a civilian government and Ky's ouster.

The creation of a national "Council of Protection of Nation and Buddhism" was announced by Thich (Rev.) Pham Minh, a lieutenant of moderate Buddhist leader Thich Tam Chau.

At the same time, Minh denounced as a "bluff" the military junta's inclusion of 10 civilians in the ruling 10-man military national leadership council.

SHUTTER CONTEST STARTING AGAIN

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Days are nearly at their longest, weather is at its best, children count the days until school ends, and it's THAT time of year again—time for the Amateur Snapshot Contest sponsored by the Victoria Daily Times.

Starting June 25, the six-week contest will offer the year's best chance for amateur camera fans to swing back into action . . . and make their pastime pay off, too.

This is the fourth year The Times has sponsored the contest and a record number of entries is expected.

Strictly for amateurs, the contest is geared for the photographer who does it for fun, not the one who goes around with camera permanently in hand, the words "say cheese" on his tongue, and tables of settings and shutter speeds always in mind.

SHARP EYE

It is for the one with a sharp eye, a steady hand and a quick mind for the unusual, the humorous and the touching scenes and situations.

These qualities could win you first prize, a spectacular trip for two around the world, or to Europe, Mexico, or the West Indies.

Add to this $1,000 spending money on the trip, and you have more than ample reason to reach for your camera.

This year the contest is divided into three categories, leaving lots of scope no matter what the subject of your picture is. You can choose from the topics—The World in Which We Live, People of the World, and Animals of the World—or enter photos in all of them.

Good judgment is more important for this contest

Alma Weeps On Leaving

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Tropical storm Alma pounded the North Carolina coast with gale force winds, drenching rain and moderately heavy surf today as she headed seaward.

Nearly eight inches of rain were reported in the Wilmington area as Alma remained on an east-northeast course past the coast and threatened shipping lanes off North Carolina's outer banks. The season's first such storm, she was downgraded from a hurricane Friday after leaving 47 dead.

Bandits Get Rich Haul

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two masked bandits robbed a downtown Washington jewelry store of between $250,000 and $500,000 in gems today, police reported.

A 16-year-old boy was wounded in the back when struck by a stray bullet fired at the fleeing gunmen.

MORE TALKS, BUT . . .

Quebec Strike Bogged Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Nicholson met separately today with labor and management negotiators in the Quebec longshoremen's strike but there was little sign of optimism for a settlement.

He and top labor department officials spent two hours with leaders of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) before going into a nine-minute joint session with the nine-man group from the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The federation group left the meeting in a parliament hill committee room and told reporters it was merely a luncheon break.

The earlier meeting with the union in Mr. Nicholson's private office was attended by Health Minister MacEachen, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian labor Congress, Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor and Judge Rene Lippe, the federal mediator.

WOULDN'T COMMENT

No person in any of the three groups would comment officially on the latest developments. But members of the shipping federation said privately they were not hopeful of an immediate settlement.

Mr. Jodoin said he attended the discussions as an observer but added:
